THE COAL SITUATION.

Executive Board of the Society of American Florists to Discuss Serious Problem at St. Louis, Mo., January 21.

All Growers Should Co-Operate.

Members of the Society of American Florists:

You are all of you perfectly well aware that the coal situation over the country generally is a critical one. A committee representing the Society of American Florists met in Washington and interviewed the Fuel Commissioner, December 4. He greeted us very fairly, but emphasized the serious condition of the coal shortage, and thought that the florists should make an effort to curtail their use of coal one-third for the balance of the season. This we agreed to do so far as could be done without seriously impairing business. Since that time, the situation has become even more acute, and Wm. F. Gude, Washington representative, has been summoned by the coal administrator, to see what action the florists are taking. The matter is now in abeyance waiting for the meeting of the executive board in St.
Louis, January 21, at which time some action must be taken. The executive board of the S. A. F., at that time, will officially approve the suggestion of the United States government, and asks every one of its members to notify the executive board by telegram at the Jefferson hotel just what their wishes and suggestions are in the matter.

Also any florist who has already conformed to the suggestion of the fuel commissioner and reduced his use of coal one-third, or any proportion thereof, should immediately notify us so that some tabulation can be made of the way in which the florists are meeting the critical situation.

The government's intention is to keep every florist in business and there is no intention of closing any establishment up, but the figures for a reduction of the coal necessary will be taken on the basis of the coal consumed during the past three years at each establishment.

This is the time when every member of the S. A. F. must stand together, shoulder to shoulder, but also must stand with the government in every provision which they feel necessary to winning the war. The florist is second to none in his loyalty and now is the time for him to prove it.
The S. A. F. as being the representative body of florists is looked to by the fuel administration to carry out its wishes. As a matter of fact, arbitrary action would have already been taken if it had not been for the good offices of Mr. Gude, our Washington representative, in having the matter held over until the executive board meeting in St. Louis, January 21.

Boston Stores Hit.

The fuel commissioners at Boston, Mass., having made a decision that the flower business is, in their minds, in the non-essential class, and whereas any hasty action or sharp reply might result in the refusal of a hearing or the elimination of fuel and light from their establishments, the two flower markets of that city together with the wholesale and retail florists represented at a meeting January 11, adopted the following resolution:

Whereas, it is the desire on the part of the flower growers and wholesale florists of Boston and New England to do their part in assisting the authorities in the conservation of fuel, and despite the perishable nature of their stocks, which, in order to be handled with proper care, has made it necessary to open stores at 6 A. M. and close at 7 P. M., be it

Resolved, that on and after January 14, 1918, the opening hour of all wholesale markets and wholesale establishments in the florist trade will be at 7
A. M. and the same will close at 3 P. M.

A committee consisting of Wm. Stickle, Henry Penn, James Lister, P. Donohue and C. Robinson was appointed to present the resolution to the fuel commissioner at a hearing at the state house. Mr. Seymour was appointed a committee of one to call upon the retailers and secure their signatures approving the resolution.

St. Valentine's Day Posterettes.

The St. Valentine's day and Mothers' day advertising campaign, so successfully conducted in 1917 by the Chicago Florists' Club, will again be undertaken this year upon a national scale for the welfare of the trade at large. The posters and posterettes, the latter shown in the illustrations herewith, will be offered at last year's prices, there being no advance in the cost.

In case any profits are derived from the sale of these posters or posterettes, the Chicago Florists' Club will immediately transfer 50 per cent. of the net proceeds to the Society of American Florists for the national publicity campaign for flowers and the remainder will be reserved for future publicity purposes. Remember that 50 per cent. of the net proceeds of the sale of these posters and posterettes will be given to the S. A. F. for the national publicity campaign and the remainder will be reserved for future publicity purposes. No individual profit to anyone—a campaign conducted by the florists for the florists.

Buy a quantity of both posters and posterettes at once. Combine your order with your neighbor florists' and secure the quantity rate. This will reduce the cost and thereby also insure and organize a campaign of advertising for your entire community.

Display the posters inside and outside of the entrance to your store and greenhouses. Paste them in every show window. Put them on your automobile or delivery wagon. Use them for your street car advertising. Paste the posterettes on every box of flowers that you send out. Use them on every letter you mail. Use them with your advertising matter. Everywhere these beautiful posters and posterettes will remind the public to use flowers. Use them at once. Millions of the posterettes should be in circulation—everywhere.

Send the names and addresses and number of posters and posterettes wanted by every florist in your city and we will make delivery direct without extra charge. Get busy. Telephone your brother florists. It will help your business and theirs.

Everyone in the trade will use these posters and posterettes this season. Do likewise. This is your opportunity. It will identify your business with the national campaign at small cost and with the benefits obtained you will be well rewarded.

The posterettes for St. Valentine's day and Mothers' day are printed in two colors, gummed and cut ready for use, the sizes being 2x2 inches for the St. Valentine's heart and 2½ inches high for the Mothers' day design. The posters, same design as the posterettes, are 7¼ inches high. Orders for St. Valentine's day and Mothers' day posters and posterettes may be combined to secure the maximum quantity rate.

It is necessary to send remittances with orders, as we have no facilities for carrying charge accounts. Make all checks payable to Otto H. Amling, Treasurer, Chicago Florists' Club, sending all orders and remittances to F. Lautenschlager, 440-472 West Erie street, Chicago, Ill.

Prices for the posterettes are as follows:

PLANT NOTES.

Seeds For Present Sowing.

There are a number of plants that, in order to obtain the best stock, it is necessary that the seeds be sown during January. Centaurea gymnocarpa is slow in making its growth, and to have nice plants for edging the beds of geraniums and other plants an early start is required. Vinca rosea should be sown in January to obtain a good blooming stock at planting time. Lo-belias should be sown by February 1, that fine stock plants may be had. If it is proposed to reset the smilax beds next year, this is the time to get the seed started. Begonia Vernon and the other summer-blooming varieties, if sown early, make fine plants by May, full of flowers. Gloxinias and tuberous begonias can be sown at this time and blooming plants had for the coming summer. Many growers have given up the propagation of verbenas from cuttings and depend upon seedlings, and to have a nicely branched plant by June 1 the seed should be sown the last of January. Another useful border plant is Pyrethrum aureum (golden feverfew), and this should be sown early to get good sized plants at bedding-out time. There are not many cannas these days grown from seed, but anyone intending to grow them in that manner should sow the seeds in January. These seeds will germinate much more readily and evenly if soaked in water for 24 hours before planting. Asparagus plumosus and A. Sprengeri should be sown now if there is good heat in the greenhouses, and these seeds, like the cannas, start much more evenly if soaked.

Cyclamens.

"What can we do with the old cyclamen plants?" is the question often asked by many growers. As a rule, the answer is "Throw them away," for a plant can be grown to a 6-inch or 7-inch pot size in 16 months. That is, seed sown in September will produce such a plant for Christmas the following year, and it is uncertain how the old plants will carry through the spring and summer. There is a limited demand for cyclamen plants in larger sizes than 7-inch pots, and they must of necessity bring a good figure to make them remunerative. After they are through blooming, the best way to handle them is to shake the old soil out and pot them up in fresh soil, two parts loam, one part well rotted manure and one part leaf mold, with a good sprinkling of sharp sand. If the soil is inclined to be heavy and sticky add more sand. They can frequently be potted in a pot a size smaller than that in which they have been growing. Place them in a cool temperature, that is, in a house from 45° to 50° at night, so as to encourage root action and slow growth. It used to be the custom to dry the bulbs off so that they lost all their foliage, and start them in the spring, but growers have found that our springs and summers are too hot and dry, and it is often difficult to make the bulb, after it has been dried off, break a good, luxuriant foliage, and it is far better to keep the plant growing all the time. As the warm, sunny days of spring come on, the plants should be slightly shaded and as early as possible placed in cold frames and the glass shaded. The shade should not be made too heavy, or the leaves will become drawn and an unshapely plant will be the result. After the plants have begun to grow, care should be taken that they do not become pot-bound, but shifted into large sizes as soon as necessary. The watering of this stock will require constant study and attention. They should never become too dry, and it is very easy to over-water, so they will require looking after very closely until a good growth has been encouraged.

Begonia Glorie De Lorraine.

For the large plants for next winter's flowering we are placing the cuttings in the propagating bench now. The plants were selected before Christmas, and strong, healthy specimens taken for propagation. The flowers were removed and the plants given a warm location, that the best vigor might be maintained. Any leaf showing blemish is discarded, only clean, healthy leaves being used from which to raise the young stock. A warm propagating bed is chosen for these plants, and the stems are inserted in the sand deep enough so that about half an inch of the leaf is below the surface. They are kept moist and warm until they are rooted, when they are potted in 2½-inch pots and placed in a warm house and shifted along as required. This may seem a trifle early by many growers to start the propagating of these plants, but there is always demand for some large specimens and fine leaves are obtainable at this time, and they root easily during January and February when the propagating bench is warm. The plants will require considerable care and attention during the heated spell of July and August, but with plenty of ventilation and a light shade they are easily kept moving, and make fine plants for the holidays.

Spiraeas.

The spiraeas are always a very useful plant at Easter, but they are classed among the cheaper plants at that time, so should be grown in such a way that they do not occupy valuable space any more than necessary. They should be brought into a cool house by the middle of January and until the foliage begins to grow can be placed along the edge of the walks if room is not available, but they must not be left standing in this location too long, for when the leaves begin to unfold they quickly draw toward the light, and a plant growing to one side of the pot will be the result. So, as soon as the growth starts they should be placed on the bench in full light. They can be grown quite close together for some time, but when the foliage begins to touch that of the plant beside it they should be spaced out and given room enough for the plants to grow shapely. Spiraeas require a large quantity of water during their entire culture, especially those that are potted in as small a pot as possible, which is the general custom with all growers. To make the large specimens, two or three clumps are planted in the same pot when started. These will make large plants for church decorations at Easter. If the plants are grown in a house which is to be fumigated by tobacco smoke, they should either be removed from the house or covered with papers; the foliage quickly burns when subjected to tobacco smoke and the plants are blemished.

ATTLEBORO, MASS. — E. E. King's flower shop recently suffered heavy loss in a fire which caused $500,000 damage in this city.

DETROIT, MICH. — James Taylor, 35 years of age, who formerly conducted a flower shop at Woodward and Pine avenues, died January 5.

Rambler Roses for Easter.

The very early date of the approaching Easter, which falls on March 31, requires that flowering plants should be in such a state of preparedness by this time that they can, with good culture, be at their best when the call for market comes.

Rambler roses, which are such a factor of the Easter stock, should now be fairly well rooted with shoots several inches long showing finished character leaves. John Prince, foreman and grower with William K. Harris, Philadelphia, Pa., is an expert with this class of stock and describes their handling of ramblers as follows:

The field-grown stock is lifted and potted in late October. As dug, the roots are at once puddled, which he believes to be a very necessary precaution, preventing any drying out before potting. Plants are pruned as potted, and the shoots tied together with soft twine. They are then plunged in manure in field beds and the tops filled in with salt hay to keep the wood from drying out. It is necessary that they get a check and rest as long as possible before starting. The lifting and pruning checks them, and while resting in the field beds, the warmth of the ground and manure induces a slight root growth. Late in December, as the Christmas plants are sold, and room made in the houses, the roses are housed and kept at a night temperature of 40°. Water is given sparingly at this time, but they are syringed once a day to keep the wood fresh and plump. By the second week in January there is a good showing of roots, with a growth of a half-inch to an inch. Plants that do not show action are placed in a cold house and brought on later.

To have the plants well set with buds, it is advisable to lay the branches down at the start to encourage the bottom eyes to break. When standing erect, the eyes near the ends of the shoots will break and get away strong at the expense of those lower down.

Fumigation by burning tobacco dust is given once a week, whether they seem to need it or not, on the ground that prevention is better than cure.

As the root growth increases, the temperature is gradually raised up to 55° at night, but kept as regular as possible, as variations are apt to bring on mildew. In dull, damp weather, sulphur is blown about, and also put on the pipes, as a preventative.

In pruning, Mr. Prince takes out the weak shoots or trims them back to one or two eyes, as often one stout shoot will bear a truss of flowers, and help fill in the bottom.

Magna Charta is the only hybrid grown at this establishment, it being the best of its class for forcing. It breaks freely and sets quantities of buds, which all opening about the same time, make it an ideal pot plant.

Staking allows for a growth of 30 to 36 inches in height. In the pruning, canes are left of good length, as a rather tall plant looks more for the money. Cutting back to stronger eyes will, however, get almost as high a growth, as the shoots from the heavier wood are very vigorous. For the most part, the ramblers here are tied to one cane stake, and allowed to branch naturally. Even with several together in tubs they make very showy and salable plants with this method of staking.

The baby rambler type is also largely grown, field grown stock being potted up and treated much the same as the others. Baby Tausendschon and Echo are good varieties of this dwarf type; they look much alike, but Echo is a much freer bloomer, being covered with flowers all summer. Other good kinds of this type are Baby Rambler, Ernst Teschendorf and Ellen Paulsen. Tausendschon is the ideal Easter rose; the light and dark shades of pink on the same plant, which are intensified by changes of temperature, make the plant very attractive. It forces very readily and can be brought into flower at any time after March 15. Crimson Rambler can also be brought in for the earliest Easter date. Dorothy Perkins and Excelsior, which flower two weeks later than Crimson Rambler out of doors, are fine sorts for late Easter dates, holding their flowers and color during the warm spells of middle April. When the pots become full of roots, they can scarcely be given too much water. If allowed to get dry at this time, the buds are injured and the development and finish of the plant are greatly impaired.

The Arnold Arboretum.

Abstract of an address by Edward I. Farrington, Weymouth Heights, Mass., delivered before the Massachusetts Horticultural Society at Horticultural hall, Boston, Mass., January 12, 1918.

"For a thousand years, and then another thousand years, and so on forever," reads the solemn agreement by which the city of Boston enters into contract with Harvard University to care for and perpetuate the Arnold Arboretum in Jamaica Plain, undoubtedly the greatest tree museum in the world. Curiously enough, the great majority of people, even in Boston, know nothing about the arboretum or its purposes. This is distinctly unfortunate, for the loss is not the arboretum's, but that of the public which should profit by its work and enjoy its beauty.

Expert landscape gardeners and nurserymen know the arboretum as a clearing-house of knowledge. They use it. The Arnold Arboretum is the only place in this country where data on the comparative hardiness of woody plants covering a long period of use can be found. Perhaps if the arboretum were not so modest about "tooting its own horn," it would receive greater credit for what it has done. Do not think, though, that its work is wholly aesthetic. Within its borders nature is working miracles which must have a profound effect on all gardens of the future. Every fruit grower has an interest in the arboretum. Future years will yield finer apples and pears and peaches than any you yet have tasted. They may come from crosses with Chinese trees introduced by arboretum explorers.

We know little so far about the possibilities of nuts as a food. Yet the time may come, and before long, too, when the whole world will be eating nuts. Practically every nut tree which will grow in this climate is now to be found in the Arnold Arboretum. As for its value to the home gardens of the country, nobody can estimate it. Every plant brought from foreign lands—and they number thousands—if suited to this climate, is tested and reported upon in the arboretum trial grounds. In this way, the people of the country are protected from losses and discouragements. Where else can the public learn the secrets of the rhododendrons, the eccentricities of the azaleas, the varied habits of the viburnums, and the unexpected values of the lilacs?

How are all these new things obtained? A book of romantic adventure might be written in answer to that question. Plant hunters sent out by the arboretum have penetrated to corners of the globe seldom, if ever, before reached by the foot of a white man. The most famous of these explorers is Ernest H. Wilson, who has given hundreds of plants to American gardens through the arboretum. How he rolled down a mountain side in Thibet and lay for weeks in a native hut is now a well-known story. Among the most notable plants introduced by the Arnold Arboretum are Azalea Kaempferi, the tree lilac, the Sargent cherry, and the climbing hydrangea.

The arboretum had its origin in the imagination of George B. Emerson, and the generosity of James Arnold. Mr. Emerson was one of the trustees in charge of $100,000 left by Mr. Arnold to be used for the advancement of agriculture and horticulture. He suggested the arrangement with Harvard University, by which they turned over to it the Arnold bequest, the university in return agreeing to devote to the arboretum a part of a farm in West Roxbury which had been left to it by Benjamin Bussey to be used for a farm school. This agreement provided that the university should grow on its land every tree and shrub able to endure the climate of Massachusetts. It is safe to say that none of the men who signed this agreement had any real conception of what they were doing.

The late Frederick Law Olmstead urged the city of Boston to take the arboretum into its park system. Much opposition resulted. Some five years of rather disagreeable, semi-political work were required to bring it about.

Finally a contract was made by which the city came into possession of the land, but leased it back to the university, agreeing on its part to lay out a system of drives and walks, to protect the grounds by its police, and to assume any taxes which may be levied on it. This great tree museum now occupies 220 acres of hill, valley and meadow.

The gates of the arboretum are open from sunrise until sunset. Everybody is free to enter. You can spend an hour or a day there, with profit and with pleasure. Take your luncheon and eat it on the grass under the waving trees if you care to do so. Follow the grassy paths; they lead to unexpected beauties. You will find every tree and shrub tagged with its rightful name. Take a notebook along and jot down the names of such plants as you would like in your garden. If you want any special information, stop at the administration building, near the Jamaica Plain entrance, and it will be given you.

This building was erected for the arboretum by the late Horatio Horace Hunnewell, whose gardens and pinetum at Wellesley are known to all students of trees. Here are 32,000 bound volumes, together with many pamphlets, constituting a library of incomparable value. The herbarium is believed to be the richest and most complete collection of material representing the coniferous plants of the world, which has ever been made. It contains also a collection of the woods of North America. The dried specimens are stored in fireproof metal cabinets, and all are so carefully indexed that any one among the hundreds of thousands can be located in less than one minute.

In one corner of the upper floor of the administration building, is the office of Professor Charles S. Sargent, the first and only director of the arboretum, and the man most responsible for its development. It was Professor Sargent who nursed the institution through its early days of stress and trouble. Nothing but his enthusiasm could have withstood the depressing public indifference and the lack of expert co-operation.

Nowhere else in all the world can so many different plants with brilliant autumn foliage and handsome fall fruits be found in one collection. Likewise there is no other garden in all the world where these plants can be so easily and conveniently studied. The shrub garden, too, is made attractive in the fall months by the beauty of the leaves and berries produced by a large number of plants. It is a pity that people do not realize the possibilities of enriching the home garden in this way. Every garden maker by rights should plant with the idea of keeping his garden gay with color practically the year round. As Bacon puts it: "I do hold it in the royal ordering of gardens that there ought to be gardens for all the months of the year; in which severally things of beauty may be there in season."

As a matter of fact it has been found from actual observation in the arboretum that it is possible in this climate to have flowers every month of the year, except possibly December. The foreign witch hazels begin to blossom in January, and last through until March, when some of the willows burst into bloom.

Perhaps all this will give you at least a meager conception of the great work which the Arnold Arboretum is doing, the great task to which it has set its hand, and what it offers to the public as well as to specialists and nurserymen. Unfortunately it is handicapped by lack of funds. It needs both money and land, money more particularly, in order that the land may be acquired.

To sum up the work of the arboretum, it may be said that in the last 25 years more than 2,000 species and varieties of trees and shrubs, previously unknown, have been added to its collection. Twenty-five years ago only 16 American hawthornes were known to botanists. Now more than 600 species have been established in the arboretum grounds. Western China alone has furnished the arboretum with more spruce trees than were known 20 years ago in the whole world.

Fuchsias.

It is a good time now to start the old stock plants of fuchsias, for there is plenty of room in the propagating bench and it is the early struck cuttings that make the fine plants for vases and boxes, and if cuttings are taken in spring they immediately produce a flower and it is difficult to get a good growth, the plant often remaining short with a stunted appearance yet bearing flowers. If the old plants have been thoroughly ripened, shake the soil off and pot in a good new loam, cut back the wood and place them in a warm house and syringe plentifully. The young growths will shortly appear and should be made into cuttings as soon as they have attained a length of an inch and a half or two inches. As soon as rooted pot in 2-inch pots and give the young stock a warm temperature. When growth commences the top can be taken off and another cutting made, and the plants shifted to 3-inch pots. Another stopping will be necessary in late winter to make nice, bushy plants that will be full of bloom in early spring. Keep them clean from mealy bug by constant spraying.

Propagating.

Along about the first of the year one should be getting things in readiness for propagating. As a rule there is not a great amount of wood available in January, but a little can be taken here and there without hurting the stock plants, particularly if one is short on a certain variety, or wishes to get up an extra amount; otherwise, the wood will be much more plentiful and of better quality during February. Yet by the time the propagating house is placed in readiness, and an inventory of what is needed listed up, the time will be ripe, perhaps, to take the wood.

One of the important things to remember is that cleanliness is essential in and about the propagating house. If one has a house, especially prepared for the work, all the better, but perhaps on the small place it is a section of a raised table that is devoted to this work, and in this instance, the location of the bench is most important. It should, preferably, be on the south side of a house that has a partition that will shade the bench. When preparing the bench be sure that there will be no drip from the eaves strike the sand. For good strikes, there should be bottom heat enough to bring the three inches of sand up to a temperature of 65° to 70° in the coldest weather. A medium fine grade of sand should be used, either washed sand or quarried sand, containing no foreign matter, soil, vegetable matter, etc. The sand can never be packed too tight, and it should be leveled off nicely in order to drain evenly. There should be sufficient spacing at the bottom of the bench to insure perfect drainage, and if the bottom of the bench is made of six-inch boards the spacing can be at least $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch or $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch, or better tack some short pieces of lath about a foot apart crosswise the crack and cover the crack longitudinally with a lath. The short pieces of lath will raise the cover strip just high enough to afford excellent drainage, as the covering lath will have top enough on each side to keep the sand from washing through. If the outside edge of the bench is exactly three inches from the bottom of the bench this will be found about right and the sand should be even with this three-inch front board when firmly packed. This board should be 12 inches wide. This will leave about eight inches of covering for the outside, below the bottom, and will help very much to hold the heat, although it will be found necessary to inclose the bench with heavy building paper. This can be tacked on to the bottom edge of the 12-inch face board and carried down to and tacked to a narrow strip that should rest on the ground, being nailed to the bench supports. The overhead temperature should be about 60 degrees. And no cold draughts should ever be allowed to strike the cuttings. Cloth curtains can be handily arranged to take care of this easily.

Never water the sand or cuttings with water lower than a temperature of 65 degrees. If a barrel is sunk under the bench, with a lid on it, the water can be kept at an even temperature. Be sure that the barrel is absolutely clean and keep it so. A lump of lime, the size of one's thumb, placed in the barrel every three or four days will purify the water nicely. The best working tools for the cutting bed are a thin table knife, a smooth strip one inch thick and two or three inches wide for a marker; a short-handled hammer and a good, solid oak or hardwood block, 4x8 inches, and four inches thick, with a good firm handle for packing the sand, and a thin, bladed sharp knife will meet all requirements. The table knife should be broken off so as to leave a $2\frac{1}{2}$ -inch blade.

A great many growers prefer blind wood for cuttings. Personally I prefer the light or small, short-stemmed growths that will eventually throw a flower. Wood of uniform ripeness should always be selected and the tops of the growths should have barely reached the stage of ripeness. Wood too hard will be hard to root and the percentage will be poor of well rooted cuttings. Take the cuttings with a heel as often as possible and trim all foliage cleanly from the stems up to about two inches from the bottom. Keep the foliage away from the surface of the sand by all means. Select only enough wood at a time that can readily be made up before wilting. Place the wood as soon as taken off on some good, clean newspapers and sprinkle well, turning the wood so that the water gets to all the foliage. Make only two or three-eyed cuttings for good results. Two eyes for American Beauties and the middle section of the American Beauty canes that will be found more uniform in ripeness, will make the best cuttings. Open up the sand at the side of the ruler with the table knife. Insert the cuttings evenly and without crowding either in the row or between the rows, placing the taller cuttings at the back of the bench and grading the shorter ones towards the front. One can either firm the sand close up to the cuttings with the finger tips or place the strip alongside of the cuttings and tap it down firmly with the hammer. Give the cuttings a thorough soaking and do not put it more than 400 or 500 before watering. Place a few dairy thermometers here and there in the sand to be sure of the temperature. In about four weeks' time the cuttings should be ready to pot off. They can usually be allowed a little sunshine after the eighteenth or twentieth day or as soon as some root action has started, increasing the amount daily until they are rooted enough to pot off. When the roots have spread out a little less than an inch they will then be about right for potting. Any larger than this will mean lots of broken roots trying to pot them.

If these directions are carried out faithfully there is no reason why one should not get a fair strike. Be sure to carry both the top or overhead temperature and the sand temperature even at their respective temperatures—sand 65 to 70 degrees, overhead 58 to 60 degrees.

War-Time Obligations.

For the past three months, owing to the railroad congestion, due in a large part to the urgent needs of the government, there have been many delayed deliveries, which, in the perishable stock, such as plants and cut flowers, has resulted in total loss. Heretofore the express companies have with varying success been called on and made to stand the expense. Under present conditions, however, they refuse to assume any responsibility, boxes when accepted being forwarded entirely at owner's risk. Producers and wholesale commission dealers in plants and cut flowers, because of the risk and uncertainties of the present transportation facilities, have taken the firm stand that after orders are delivered to the express companies, the goods belong to the purchaser and are his property to be paid for the same as if delivery had been made in his store. They will do everything possible to see that goods are forwarded by the quickest route; in fact, placed upon the trains, then the express companies' receipt to be the same as if the sales slip was OK'd on his counter.

The loss when shipments are delayed and frozen is at times serious, resulting in addition to the first expense, in the florist not being able to fill his orders, or carry the line he expected for his trade. However, the obligation is his to pay, the same as he expects remuneration from his customers. The florists' supply men have been up against the same harrowing experience. Many orders filled in every item and delivered on time to transportation companies as directed, have on account of delays in delivery been refused and ordered returned. This class of goods differs from the florists' perishable stock, and the dealers feel that customers are under obligations to accept orders, which, through no fault of theirs, were not delivered on time. The dealer in good faith fulfilled his part of the contract to the letter and feels that the customer must assume the risk of delay in delivery. The stock is not perishable; much of it can be sold at any time during the year, while they may be very glad to have the exclusive Christmas stock when the season rolls round again. Such stock as sea moss and many other all-the-year-round articles, which should be in every retailer's shop, were returned because they arrived too late for the Christmas trade. One of the large supply houses said that customers did not realize the difficulties of transportation in large cities. Goods were taken to depots, the wagons or cars obliged to stand in line, and finally, when the shipping clerks were reached, it was found that embargoes had been declared against various points of destination and half the load had to be taken back. Express packages were taken from one office to another, to avoid embargoes which were on and off again daily. It was very discouraging to have packages returned under these conditions.

Lilies for Easter.

The lilies for Easter should be brought into warm temperature right after the first of the year. A house of 60° at night should bring them into perfect condition for Easter when it occurs at the time it does this year. Those that are in 4-inch pots should be potted in 6-inch, and we have found the best way to do this was to first place a crock in the bottom of the pot and cover with about an inch of soil, then place the 4-inch plant on this, filling in around the stem above the old ball. The lily always throws out roots at the base of the stem when the buds form, and if potted in this manner these roots will be in soil and materially aid the plant in perfecting the bloom. With these roots covered with soil the plant also makes a much better appearance. The soil in which they are potted should be a rich compost of about the same composition as is used in rose culture, and the plant should be firmly potted and well watered and placed in a good light location where the plants will not get drawn. A plant 18 to 24 inches high when in bloom with the foliage thickly studded along the stem is the one most desired at Easter. Keep the aphids down all the time by constant fumigation. These little insects are the worst plague to the lily grower, for if they once get established on lilies they are very difficult to dislodge, so it is much better to give the plants a fumigation every week and thus guard against them than to wait until their presence is manifest and try to kill them. This is one of the most pronounced cases where "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

The Late Charles F. Knorr.

Charles F. Knorr, of Lawndale, a suburb of Philadelphia, Pa., died January 8, aged 65 years. Mr. Knorr was a well known grower of roses. Years ago he made a great success with Bride, Mermet and Kaiserin. The size and quality of the flowers were remarkable, due it was said to heavy applications of manure. Mr. Knorr had been a truckster, and had then learned the virtue of manure and how to use it.

FUEL administrators now propose closing down various so-called non-essential industries three days a week, Saturdays, Sundays and Mondays.

FLOWERS were so scarce, owing to lack of coal to heat the greenhouses, that the society of flower dealers of greater Berlin recently circularized the various shops admonishing them to confine sales to their regular customers.

Florists' Day at Ames.

Plans are under way for a "Florists' day," to be held at Ames, Ia., January 29, in connection with the winter short course and convention week of Iowa State College, January 28-February 2. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the college and it is expected that a good representation of florists will be present, as an up-to-the-minute programme is being planned. The list of speakers includes J. C. Vaughan and George Asmus, Chicago; J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb., and Samuel Murray, Kansas City, Mo.

American Carnation Society.

The following additional classes have been announced for the annual exhibition of the above society at Boston, Mass., January 30-31:

Class 57—Prize of $10 offered by Mark Roper for best 50 blooms of Carnation Albert Roper. This class to be included with section C.

Class 58—Prize of $25 offered by the Boston Gardeners' and Florists' Club for the best collection of six vases of carnations, six varieties, 50 blooms in each vase.

Entries may be made in these two classes up to the time set for staging without the payment of a fine.

Chicago to Boston.

The Chicago Florists' Club has chosen the New York Central (Lake Shore) Railroad for conveying members and friends to the convention of the American Carnation Society at Boston, Mass., January 30-31, leaving La Salle street station, Chicago, Monday, January 28 at 5.30 P. M., due in Boston the evening preceding the convention at 8:35, affording reasonable margin for possible delays. Friends from the north, west and southwest are invited to join the party at Chicago and others enroute. This train is due at way stations as follows.

Toledo, Monday.....11:08 P. M.
Cleveland, Tuesday.... 2:00 A. M.
Rochester, Tuesday.... 8:47 A. M.
Syracuse, Tuesday.....10:30 A. M.
Albany, Tuesday..... 1:55 P. M.

The fare each way is $23.10, plus $1.85 war tax. Pullman fares are: Lower berth $5.50, war tax 55 cents; upper berth $4.40, war tax 44 cents. It is urgently necessary, that on account of congested traffic, reservations be made at once by addressing W. C. Hazard, City Passenger Agent, 100 South Clark street, Chicago; telephone Randolph 5300.

National Publicity for Flowers.

The promotion bureau established by the joint committees has been organized and is now busy formulating plans for supplementing the publicity to accrue from the national magazine advertising, the schedule for which has been carefully prepared, and begins with a full page advertisement in the Saturday Evening Post of February 9 just prior to St. Valentine's day. In addition the bureau stands ready to give service in any direction which may be considered as along the lines of publicity, such as furnishing sets of lantern slides for use in moving picture theatres, the preparation of advertisements for use by florists in local papers, and in general to assist publicity work in every possible way. The bureau invites suggestions from the trade in such matters, believing that many ideas may be forthcoming which could be utilized to advantage. A mailing list is in course of preparation which shall be thoroughly up-to-date, and kept so, all recorded changes in business being noted each week.

Copies of the page advertisement in the Saturday Evening Post, featuring St. Valentine's day, will be mailed to all members of the S. A. F. for display in stores, all of which it is hoped will tend to bring individual connection with the advertising campaign. Now that the holiday season has passed it is hoped and expected that florists generally will give heed to this publicity campaign, and, if not already subscribers, will subscribe as much as they feel they are able to the fund. While we are considerably short of our ultimate aim, subscriptions are coming in nicely, and payments upon obligations are being met in a most satisfactory manner.

The florists of Boston and vicinity are responding nicely to the appeal of the local committee, the personnel of which is Patrick Welch, chairman; E. Allan Peirce, secretary; W. R. Nicholson, B. Hammond Tracy, and J. K. M. L. Farquhar. From the west comes a nice bunch of subscriptions collected by Roy F. Wilcox, Council Bluffs, Ia., chairman of the Iowa local committee. From New Jersey comes a club subscription of $50. from the Essex County Florists' Club of Newark. Other clubs are getting their memberships into line, and quite a little support is expected from such sources.

Chairman Henry Penn of the publicity committee is working hard in his official position and is most enthusiastic as to the outcome of the campaign. He will attend the meeting of the executive board of the S. A. F. to be held in St. Louis January 21-22, at which he will present a report covering the progress of the work up to that time. He is constantly in touch with Major O'Keefe of the O'Keefe Advertising Agency, who is leaving no stone unturned to advance the campaign.

Chairman Asmus of the finance committee reports the following additional subscriptions, annually for four years except as otherwise noted:

New York Florists' Club.

The New York Florists' Club met on the evening of January 14 in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building with a large attendance. In a neat speech, G. E. M. Stumpp, retiring president, handed the gavel to President Schenck, who read his address and made a number of wise and timely recommendations, all of which were by resolution adopted, among them being one to have Past-President Charles H. Totty, now president of the Society of American Florists, bend every energy to increase the membership of that organization. It was also suggested that the club pass a resolution giving the president the necessary credentials for representation on the executive board of the S. A. F. and that all bonds and valuable papers held by officers of the club be placed in a safety deposit vault and that access to them be had only by an officer of the club selected and sufficiently bonded. It was recommended that the annual dinner for promoting good fellowship be held as usual. President Schenck also suggested that a budget for the year's expenses be created. In speaking of existing conditions he said in part: "This club should take its stand with other trade bodies and demand for our business the recognition to which it is entitled by virtue of the many millions of dollars invested and by the large number of employes that are engaged in the florist trade and allied industries that aid in making it a vast factor. I hope for the co-operation of every member and particularly of members of committees and it should be the duty of every member to denounce any attempt that may come to their notice from those who decry our business as a non-essential." Among his recommendations he also urged that a registration headquarters be maintained for all enlisted soldiers connected with florists' families when in the city or at nearby camps in order that they may be cared for if necessary or entertained.

The president's address was well received and the reports of the secretary and treasurer showed the club to be in good financial condition with $17,000 in the treasury. Twenty-eight names were proposed for membership. Chairman Kessler of the house committee was commended by President Schenck, who expressed his opinion that the entertainments given by the club were excellent features.

By resolution, the board of trustees were instructed to secure a safety deposit box as recommended by the president and appoint the officer to be in charge of the club's securities, such officer to be properly bonded at the expense of the club.

W. A. Maude moved the following amendment to the constitution and by-laws which will be voted on at the next meeting: To amend Article 6, Section 3, to read: "For his services the secretary shall receive the sum of $500 per annum." A. F. F.

STOCK PLENTIFUL; PRICES LOW.

Business could be a great deal better but the below zero weather is having its effect with no relief in sight. The effect on transient buying is especially noticeable and if it were not for funeral orders trade would be at a standstill. Stock of all kinds is quite plentiful and prices are not quite as high as usual at this season of the year, a condition the reverse of what is usually expected in January. Many growers are cutting heavy crops of carnations which should have been in for the holidays. The best price is $4 per 100. Roses in all varieties are plentiful and are offered at from $4 to $12. American Beauties are in good supply but the quality is not of the best and the main call is for the shorter grades. There is a surplus of orchids with no demand and the same is true to quite an extent of sweet peas, yellow daisies and calendulas. The receipts of lilies are about right to hold the price firm. Paper Whites have suffered in price on account of the large supply in evidence. All in all, however, market conditions in this city are more satisfactory than in many of the eastern and western cities.

NOTES.

Members of the committees appointed for the flower show to be held this fall are urgently requested to be present at the next meeting which will be held at Carnegie hall, North Side, Tuesday evening, February 5. Matters of importance will be discussed.

C. H. Frey, Lincoln, Neb.

Pres.-Elect Nebraska State Florists' Society.

Jack Frampton has the sympathy of the trade in this city and vicinity in the death of his father, which occurred at the family home in Clarion, Pa.

Oliver Langhans has joined the Foresters' regiment and expects to leave for Washington in the near future.

Bert Huttinger has enlisted in the navy and expects to begin training at once.

Visitor: J. W. Dudley, of Parkersburg, W. Va. M.

Nebraska State Florists' Society.

The annual meeting of the Nebraska State Florists' Society, held at Lincoln, January 15, was well attended and matters of interest to the trade were covered in the well arranged programme which had been prepared. A committee was appointed to arrange for a large floral exhibition at the state fair which will be held in September and liberal personal subscriptions were made to the fund for the national publicity campaign for flowers. The annual banquet which was held at the Lincoln hotel in the evening was an enjoyable feature.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: C. H. Frey, Lincoln, president; C. H. Green, Fremont, vice-president; Lewis Henderson, Omaha, secretary-treasurer.

LEWIS HENDERSON, Sec'y.

FUNERAL WORK BRACES WEAK DEMAND.

A slight falling off in trade was noticeable during the past week, with few social functions and a general indication that many people are Hooverizing. Funeral work forms the bulk of the business. Much inconvenience is caused by delayed shipments, some being from two to three days late. Stock is fairly plentiful as a rule, but there is a shortage of asparagus due to cold weather in the south.

NOTES.

Schuyler Arnold is now in France serving with the field signal corps of the United States army.

Miss Lillian Wheeler, formerly with E. C. Kaelber, is now in the employ of George T. Boucher.

TRADE FAIR; SUPPLY VERY LIMITED.

Weather conditions here are simply terrible, all train service from the east and west late or express trains from the east cut out, but trade is fair with a limited supply of stock. Christmas and New Year's business was not good enough to tide over some of the local florists and three were forced to give up. The Lenox Flower Shop was sold by the sheriff January 14, the Wm. F. Kasting Co., being the purchaser. J. Benson Stafford removed from his store and Harry Aust also gave up, several things making a longer trial inadvisable. The coal situation here is bad and unless relief comes very soon Easter stock will suffer. Lilies and carnations are about all there is to offer to satisfy the trade at present but hopes are entertained for a better condition soon.

BUSINESS RETURNING TO NORMAL STAGE.

The blizzard at the end of last week put a serious crimp into shipping, both on inbound and outbound trains. The weather, however, has begun to moderate and the chances are that by the time this is off the press transportation conditions will be about normal. The supply of stock in the market is adequate, both in respect to quality and quantity. Business, considering everything, is fairly good. Several shipments came through frozen at the end of last week when they were tied up on the road for, in some instances, a day or more. Roses are in fairly good supply. A good cut of carnations is coming into the market. Sweet peas are fairly plentiful and sell well. Easter lilies, rubrums and callas are proving good property. Paper White and yellow narcissi are plentiful, Freesias and jonquils may be had. Other offerings include single violets, calendulas, forget-me-nots and baby primroses.

NOTES.

Some of the florists' places were nipped in spots by the cold last week when the high winds would blow out a pane of glass or would break one, but outside of that no serious damage in and about this city from the blizzard has been reported by any of the florists.

C. E. Critchell has been getting in some excellent baby primroses.

Ten truly marvelous acquisitions, introducing new tones of color and showing the highest development in form and habit.

Carmine Beauty. Deep bright carmine flowers, freely produced high above the heavy dark-green foliage which has a narrow red margin. The flowers, while not as large as those of Olympic, are of a much brighter and more pleasing tone. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 75 cts. each; \$7.50 per doz.

Cheerfulness. No more appropriate name could be given to this brilliant novelty. Its beautiful bright fire-red or deep orange flowers appear early and continue without interruption until frost. Add to the prevailing color a golden border and center with each petal flaked carmine-crimson and you may form some conception of this fascinating variety with its erect stems always topped with clusters of cheerful color held high above the foliage. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 35 cts. each; \$3.50 per doz.

Cloth of Gold. A very attractive dwarf, compact, growing, free-flowering golden yellow. 3 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Dazzler. Time and again the past season the dark green foliage of this variety has been hidden beneath the mass of clusters of deep fire-red flowers. The intensity of coloring and freedom of blooming coupled with compact habit, make this variety the peer of the best for bedding purposes. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 35 cts. each; \$3.50 per doz.

Golden Eagle. A wonderfully intense golden-yellow. Very free upright grower. The large flowers are produced in great clusters well above the foliage. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 50 cts. each; \$5.00 per doz.

Harmony. Great clusters of good-sized, well-formed Geranium-red flowers are arranged on good stems in such a manner as to give the trusses an almost globular appearance. Altogether a dignified harmonious combination. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 50 cts. each; \$5.00 per doz.

Poppy. Intense poppy-red. Large perfect florets in good trusses over greenish-bronzy foliage. Rich and effective. 5 ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Salmon Queen. An entirely new color in Cannas. Rosy salmon-scarlet, blending to a rosy-carmine toward the center. The large substantial flowers are freely produced in great clusters high above heavy green foliage. Very effective in bedding. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Sensation. To get a sensational color-tone in a pink Canna is particularly noteworthy. Our first impulse was to call it "La France" because the color called to mind the La France Rose but the tone is even cleaner and purer; it being a lovely pale-rose. The foliage is a beautiful glaucous-green; the plant dwarf and compact. One of the most noteworthy additions to Cannas in recent years. 3 ft. 75 cts. each.

One each of the above Ten Novelties for $4.00.

New Cannas From Other Sources

We offer here eight new varieties, which after several years' trial have proven themselves worthy of our commendation.

Cleopatra. A striking beauty. Wonderful deep carmine-crimson flowers surmounting the dark glaucous-bronze foliage. This variety stands out strongly in effectiveness. 4 ft. 50 cts. each; $5 per doz.

Dragon. An incessant bloomer, continuing to produce new stalks of flowers until cut down by frost. Dark ox-blood red. 3 ft. 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Flag of Truce. A large flowered creamy-white, with faint pink dots on each petal. The general effect is white. Not as white nor as tall as Eureka but quite distinct and valuable. 4 ft. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Gaiety. Reddish-orange mottled with carmine and edged with yellow. The tongue is yellow and densely spotted with carmine. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 15 cts. each; \$1.50 per doz.

Lafayette. In some respects resembles the variety "Meteor" but the flowers are not quite as dark, stand more erect and the plant grows taller. 5 ft. 30 cts. each; $3.00 per doz.

One each of the Eight Varieties for $2.00.

TYPE OF NEWER CANNAS.

Superb. This variety is unique in color and truly superb; having large, clean bright orange-scarlet blossoms of good substance, produced on strong stalks with glaucous-bronzy foliage giving a most pleasing effect. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Pocahontas. (Bronze-leaved Olympic.) Large oriental-red flowers borne on firm upright stems, just high enough above the foliage to show the entire head. The foliage is a dark bronze-green with emerald shadings; the ribs a darker bronze; one of the best recent introductions. 4 ft. 30 cts. each; $3 per doz.

San Diego. Chinese-orange or Persian-yellow. The crimped petals are remarkable for substance which enables them to withstand the hot summer sun without wilting. Another charm lies in the dark bronze color of the buds which harmonize with the rich bronze foliage. 4 ft. 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Varouna. We have tried this variety for several years and at all times the bright orange-scarlet flowers, combined with the good bronze foliage, has won our admiration. A free luxuriant grower, producing its flowers well above the plant. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 25 cts. each; \$2.50 per doz.

Dethlef's Range Destroyed By Fire.

The Davison County Greenhouses, Mitchell, S. D., of which Wm. Dethlef's is proprietor, caught fire, December 30, following the collapse of a 30-foot concrete chimney at the rear of the heating plant. Much glass was broken and plants were killed by exposure to below zero weather, the loss being estimated at $6,000. The night fireman, who had left the furnace room three minutes before the chimney fell, would have been killed had he been at his post. The extensive repairs necessary will be made as soon as possible and in the meantime the retail business will be continued as usual.

THE STORM DID NOT AFFECT OUR GREENHOUSES

Consequently Our Quality and Quantity Are The Same As Usual.

For a few days until the railroads get in good running order again Express shipment will be considerably delayed. Customers should take this into consideration when ordering.

Our Roses now are coming in fine crop. Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Russell and White Killarney, besides the Brilliant and Pink Killarney are producing in choice quality and large quantity.

Our Carnation crop also is coming in heavy with a choice quality of flowers.

We offer our Roses and Carnations, all grown by specialists, at prices no higher than others. Our flowers are cut as soon as ripe and after being in water for several hours in our chilly rooms are sent twice each day direct to our city store. This gives our customers the choicest fresh cut stock on the market. Our entire efforts are devoted to the flowers we grow. No side lines handled to help pay expenses.

All flowers will be charged at regular market prices and stock not grown by us will be bought on the market for you.

NOTICE: We close at 5 o'clock Week Days, Sundays and Holidays at Noon.

SECOND BLIZZARD HITS CITY.

This city was practically isolated from the rest of the world, January 12, when snow blocked all east and west bound railroad traffic. There was no movement of passenger or freight trains in or out of the city, consequently it was impossible to bring any stock from the greenhouses to the wholesale stores or make any shipments to out-of-town points. The retail florist establishments and department stores closed about 3 o'clock in the afternoon owing to the intense cold and heavy blizzard. The thermometer registered in the neighborhood of 18° to 20° below the greater part of the day and what few people were out experienced considerable difficulty in reaching their homes in the city, while those who lived in the suburbs were obliged to stay in hotels owing to the lack of transportation. On Sunday there was practically nothing doing and six of the leading wholesale houses report that they did not make out a single ticket. The public schools have been closed for a week to give 60,000 school children a chance to shovel the city out of the snow. With transportation facilities paralyzed and deliveries of coal stopped, an order to railroads to seize every available carload of fuel and deliver to the nearest yard for the benefit of the general public was issued January 12 by Raymond E. Durham, chairman of the Cook county committee of the fuel administration, which has seriously affected many of the growers in this vicinity who had coal on the track. The situation has improved considerably at this writing and a few of the express companies started to give service late Tuesday for the first time since the storm started. There is plenty of stock of all kinds in the market at this writing but there is likely to be a shortage in some lines by noon as it is impossible to fill all the out-of-town orders which are calling for a large quantity of flowers. Tulips and freesias are more plentiful and the same holds good for jonquils. Violets, especially New York doubles, are in short supply and what few did arrive the past week reached here in such poor condition owing to the delay that they had to be dumped. The storm cost the trade thousands and thousands of dollars, which is the second severe blow that has been suffered since the first of the year. Notwithstanding the setbacks the dealers are optimistic and call attention to the old saying that a poor start means a good finish, so here's to better days for the balance of the year. Everyone is making large preparations for St. Valentine's day, which will give all an opportunity to recover some of the ground lost owing to the two recent heavy storms. The wholesale houses are making every effort to fill all of the out-of-town orders today, Wednesday, January 16, to points where the express companies are accepting shipments. The situation is far from normal but is slowly improving with the outlook gradually becoming brighter. All the dealers are obliged to deliver their packages to the depots in almost all instances because there have been no pick-ups since the storm started.

NOTES.

Fuel Administrator Durham has announced that reports from the southern Illinois coal fields, which were visited January 14 by a severe snow storm, indicated possible trouble in getting cars to and from the mines. This, he said, might necessitate asking some of the local industries temporarily to curtail their coal consumption until traffic could be opened.

Lena M. McCauley, secretary of the Horticultural Society, has the sympathy of many friends in the death of her mother, Mrs. Lena R. McCauley, widow of James McCauley, who died January 14.

Archie McDonald, who has charge of the flower department at Gimbel Bros.' department store, Milwaukee, Wis., was a visitor in the wholesale market January 15.

C. L. Washburn says that Bassett & Washburn are now in heavy crop with carnations which accounts for the large receipts at the store this week.

Allan Humason, who is with the national army at Rockford, has been promoted to Acting Battalion Sergeant Major, senior, which means that he is the second highest non-commissioned officer in the regiment. Hugh Barker, formerly with THE AMERICAN FLORIST, is Acting Regimental Supply Sergeant of the Supply Company, 35th Infantry, now stationed at Nogales, Ariz. Jack Byers, formerly with Zech & Mann, writes from Houston, Tex., that he is well and hints that his regiment is likely to embark soon.

Joe Bieber is devoting considerable time to the selling of space for the Fifth National Flower Show to be held at St. Louis, Mo., April 6-15 inclusive, under the auspices of the Society of American Florists in Moolah Temple and auxiliary buildings, Lindell boulevard, McPherson and Van de Venter avenues. The cost of space is $1 per square foot and the first come will be first served. Mr. Bieber can be reached at A. Lange's store, 25 East Madison street.

Peter Miller, of the George Wienhoeber force, is in St. Mary's hospital where he is recovering from an operation for blood poisoning in the right arm caused by a scratch from a rose thorn. His condition was so serious that the attending physician thought at first that it would be necessary to amputate the arm but fortunately this was averted and his friends will be pleased to hear that he is now getting along very nicely.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has been shipping its stock to the store from the greenhouses at Morton Grove by express owing to bad condition of the roads, which make it impossible for the trucks to get through. This firm was fortunate in receiving a large shipment of coal just before the first blizzard which will carry them through until conditions permit securing more.

Peter Reinberg is again sending regular shipments of stock to his store which were cut off for a couple of days owing to the heavy blizzard. His carnation range particularly, which is located on the farm, was cut off almost completely but shipments are now reaching the store and conditions are rapidly approaching normal again.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is well fixed on all kinds of stock, particularly roses and carnations. Pussy willows are seen in large supply at this establishment but are in such brisk demand that they clean up regularly.

Frank Farney, who has had charge of the nursery furniture at A. L. Randall Co.'s store for some time, will also look after the output of his firm's Burlington baskets.

George Rozakles, Jr., with the Chicago Florist, 35 East Adams street, has joined the colors. Miss Olive Kracke will assist Mike Poletsos during his absence.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. continue to have a good demand for freesias which they are handling in quantity along with a complete line of other stock.

Peter and Louis Duris, of the Central Floral Co., have the sympathy of the trade in the loss of their sister whose death occurred recently.

Zech & Mann are handling a large quantity of tulips, jonquils and freesia in addition to their usual fine line of all other seasonable stock.

At Wietor Bros.' store carnations are arriving in larger supply as well as roses which are in good crop, especially White Killarney.

Erne & Company are strong on fancy smilax which has been their leader in greens for some time.

Herbert Stone has accepted a position with the Atlas Floral Co.

Arthur Schutz reached his store at Hammond, Ind., January 14, after being snowbound here with his stock since the previous Friday.

Visitors: T. E. Terrill, of the Terrill Floral Co., Lethbridge, Alberta, Can.; Judge Vesey and wife, Ft. Wayne, Ind.; Fred Cowperthwaite, Philadelphia, Pa.; Chas. Loveridge, Peoria; P. W. Peterson, of the Chicago Carnation Co., Joilet; M. Stanch, Council Bluffs, Ia.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Briggs House, January 10, Vice-President Klingsporn in the chair. There was a fairly good attendance considering the severe weather, and much interest was shown in the plans for the present year's work. The various officers having presented their annual reports, the chairman introduced the officers-elect, Fred Lautenschlager, president; O. J. Friedman, vice-president; Otto H. Amling, treasurer; Allie Zech, secretary, and T. E. Waters, trustee, the hold-over trustees being H. N. Bruns and W. J. Keimel.

President-elect Lautenschlager, in taking the chair, outlined the policy he had in mind for the coming months in an able address, and his numerous suggestions met with general approval, his recommendations for a number of new standing committees being adopted. The other elected officers pledged themselves to promote the club's interests in every possible way, Vice-president Friedman's slogan being "Members, More Members, and Still More Members." The president announced the appointment of committees as follows: Sports and pastimes—Edward Enders, chairman; James B. Foley, R. E. Kurowski, Transportation—Michael Barker, chairman; balance of committee to be appointed later. Good-of-the-club—T. E. Waters, chairman; balance of the committee to be appointed later. Advertising—F. Lautenschlager, chairman; George Asmus, Michael Barker. Standing committees on publicity and on the garden movement will be announced at the February meeting.

Retiring President Amling sent a letter of regret at his inability to be present, on account of his health, and thanked the officers and members for their many courtesies of the past year. Harry Gardner and Harold A. Wolf were elected to membership, and Johann E. Ebbers, 1235 Victor avenue, and E. W. Young, 7044 Greenview avenue, Chicago, were proposed for membership.

The transportation committee reported in favor of the New York Central (Lake Shore) railroad for the trip to Boston, Mass., on the occasion of the annual convention of the American Carnation Society, to be held in that city, January 30-31. The train chosen leaves the La Salle street station Monday, January 28, at 5:30 p. m., due Boston at 8:35 p. m. the following day. The fare each way is $23.10, plus $1.85 war tax. Pullman fares are: Lower berth, $5.50, war tax 55 cents; upper berth, $4.40, war tax 44 cents.

The February meeting was selected for the annual novelty show, particulars of which will be announced later, and on the motion of E. A. Ollinger it was arranged to invite Levy Mayer, the well known attorney who has so ably championed so-called non-essentials in recent addresses, to be present on that occasion. Chairman Waters of the good-of-the-club committee will have charge of the arrangements for the novelty show.

The advertising committee was instructed to renew the posterette campaign for St. Valentine's day and Mothers' day business on the lines inaugurated last year, the net profits to be divided between the national publicity fund of the Society of American Florists and the club.

F. W. Webb's proposal of a membership committee met with warm support, as did M. C. Wright's suggestion of a committee on resignations, the latter claiming it was quite as important to retain good old members as to secure new ones.

The visitors included Fred Cowperthwaite, secretary of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, and Chas. Loveridge, of Peoria, the former giving an interesting account of school gardens as conducted in his city. Mr. Loveridge told of the holiday business in central Illinois, reporting it generally satisfactory, notwithstanding the many difficulties of the past year.

Vice-President Friedman was appointed general provider of information, instruction and amusement for the March meeting, and he promises a carnival of fun.

PRES. LAUTENSCHLAGER'S ADDRESS.

In assuming the presidency of your club I do so with the full knowledge of its responsibilities and opportunities, and I pledge you the best I have, to serve you with loyalty and efficiency. It is with pride that I look backward upon the activities of the Chicago Florists' Club, and I take this opportunity to express my appreciation of the splendid work that has been done by this organization, of which every member may well feel proud.

The club has for sometime held the foremost position amongst floral organizations in this country, and with its record of many successful enterprises as the floral art and novelty display, the St. Valentine's and Mother's day advertising campaigns, the Y. M. C. A. war fund flower sale and other events of local and national character, which the club has handled so successfully, you have set a very high standard for greater work and possibilities.

There are many duties before us for the coming year, but we can only continue to render creditable service with the cooperation of all, and I know every one will respond to the call. The question of trade welfare is of such vast importance to every one in the trade these days, and I feel it is my duty to say a few words of the good work that is being done by our mother organization, the Society of American Florists. That organization is working out our trade problems and by indefatigable work of its able committees, has brought about many improvements in trade conditions. During the past year, our national society has probably accomplished more for our welfare than during any preceding year, and there is no one of our trade in this country who has not benefited thereby. Take for instance the wonderful work accomplished by this society in regard to the coal situation. Consider the great benefits of our national flower shows, and the advantages that will be gained by the national publicity campaign for flowers. The work of its representative at Washington, D. C., and its tariff and legislation committee, our school and convention garden work. Committees have been appointed on a national credits and collection bureau, and on developments of American products.

It is needless to say that all these matters are of interest to all, and as stated by President-elect, Charles Totty, in his New Year's greetings: "If there ever has been a reason for the existence of the Society of American Florists as a live body to look after the interests of its members, that time is now, and any florist that expects to stay in business, that is not a member of the national society, is not playing fair with his fellow florists." Gentlemen, this strikes the keynote. It cannot be disputed that we owe a great deal to the national society, and by reaping the benefits of its good work everyone in the trade it duty-bound to become a member. At the present time, the Chicago Florists' Club has an S. A. F. membership of 109; this is very creditable, indeed—everyone in our club is eligible for membership in the national organization and we should make every effort to increase this number at once.

One of the questions of the moment is the subject of publicity, and in speaking of publicity I want to lay particular stress upon the necessity of both national and local advertising for our trade welfare. Plans have already been laid for a national campaign of floral advertising by the S. A. F., which contemplates an expenditure of $50,000 for the coming year. This movement is already in actual operation; the first series of advertisements will appear in page form in the Saturday Evening Post, February 6, and subsequent announcements will follow immediately thereafter. Chicago has already sent in 52 subscriptions to this fund amounting to $3,000, but there are a great many of the trade still to be heard from. Everyone in the trade in Chicago who has not yet subscribed should do so at once, in order to make a success of this movement.

30 East Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

The business outlook for 1918 on the whole is very encouraging. Millions of people will have more money to spend by far than during any previous year, and this remark applies especially to the masses. Money will be spent for the necessary and desirable things, including flowers. One thing is certain. If florists of this country grasp the situation, and plan to urge the people who have the money to spend, the flower business will be exceedingly good, and by making the coming year the best year for all business we will then do our part to help win the war. To my mind, local advertising is so fundamental to national advertising that we should immediately formulate plans for a local campaign of advertising for trade promotion which is to link with the national enterprise. Funds for a local campaign can be easily obtained; in fact, a nucleus has already been established for such a fund by the Chicago wholesale florists' organization of this city, the members of which have established a fund of $4,500 for advertising purposes. A part of same has already been diverted to the national campaign, and of the balance a goodly portion has been set aside for local purposes. Local trade publicity is of such great importance that I deem the appointment of a standing committee on publicity one of our greatest needs, and trust that this recommendation will be acted upon and approved at this meeting.

We are facing a time in the history of America when it is the duty of everyone, from the most humble to the highest, to co-operate with our government, and therefore we as members of a horticultural organization can lend a helping hand in connection with the great garden movement, which is sweeping over this country, and it would be proper that we should at once adopt a resolution indorsing this work, and to offer every assistance possible, under the direction of a standing committee, to be appointed especially for this purpose.

One of the problems also before us is in securing a larger attendance at our meetings. There must be no letting down in the spirit of the meetings. There must be a marked character given to the meetings which will attract the retailer, the wholesaler, the grower and the allied tradesman, and thereby induce the needed growth of our club to secure it the influence that can only be exerted through an impressive number of the best representatives of all branches of the trade. In order to bring about a better attendance, and also to stimulate a greater interest at our meetings, I suggest that we adopt the custom to place the social feature of each meeting in charge of a committee which shall conduct this portion of our meeting on such a plan as they may perfect; this committee of course is to work in conjunction with the good-of-the-club committee. The social features of all meetings shall be conducted by the chairman of the special committee immediately upon the close of the business session.

In conclusion, I wish to extend a cordial invitation to everyone in the trade to participate at our meetings, and would especially urge our members to bring a florist friend to our meetings at any time.

BUSINESS CONFINED TO FUNERAL WORK.

Market conditions in this city during the past week were about as serious as could be possible. The thermometer hung around the zero mark most of the week and every day brought more snow, resulting in delays to all shipments of flowers. Even the local growers had difficulty in getting to the market. The supply was naturally short, and the retail business was confined almost entirely to funeral work. If there had been any appreciable demand at all for stock it would have been impossible to get it. Of the roses seen on the market, Russell was the best by far. Violets are good, and sweet peas fine. Carnations are holding up well regardless of the cloudy weather, although the cut is short. Lillies, jonquils and narcissus are equal to the demand. While plumosus is scarce, fancy ferns and smilax are plentiful.

NOTES.

The Florists' club held its January meeting at Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co.'s store, with about 40 members present. The national flower show committee reported that the executive committee of the Society of American Florists and the national flower show committee would hold a joint session at the Planters hotel beginning January 21. The president of the club was also authorized to call a meeting of the officers and trustees to select the various committees to take care of the coming meeting of the S. A. F. in April. Henry Muskopf and Fred Foster were elected to membership. State Vice-President Pilcher of the S. A. F. reported that during the past year approximately 50 new members were added to the local S. A. F. membership from the florists' club.

A few of the regulars on the market every day: Jos. Witek, Art Beyer of F. C. Weber's, Frank X. Gorly, Martin Seeger and Nat Kingsley, Fred Foster, Andy Meyer, Andy Hoffman of Waldbarts, Jos. Windler, Ad. Kohr of Famous & Barr and Ed Loyet of Grand Leader. Even the extreme weather of the past week could not keep them at their places of business. Nothing like being on the job and seeing what is on the market.

Vice-President Bourdet of the S. A. F. is thinking about employing a detective to find out who wished a dachshund on him. We would suggest that he trade him for a French poodle, which would be more in keeping with his nationality.

If anyone would like to know how it feels to push a shovel through snow for three hours ask Frank Windler. He was stuck in a snow drift with his pleasure car a couple of days ago. Did I say pleasure?

Among the county florists who have been snowed in the past week was Oscar May of Sappington. He has not been able to get to town with his stock for over a week account of being snowbound.

Retailers all over town have been having a hard time keeping their delivery service going. In most cases the Ford deliveries have been able to plow through, but it is slow going.

AMPLE SUPPLY AND GOOD SALES.

Trade during the past week has been very good with stock of all kinds about equal to the demand, although prices have dropped to low figures, especially carnations, which are cheaper than ever before this season. Floral work holds up well and brings in a steady stream of business. Several of the growers lost considerable stock in the recent cold spell, the weather being the most severe in 33 years at this point. The coal situation is also the worst in the history of the city and unless relief comes soon many growers in this vicinity will have to close entirely. There has been some talk of refusing to supply coal to growers, and if such action is carried out, it will cripple the florist business in this city to a great extent. The express companies here are refusing to take packages and as the embargo is indefinite, shipping business is crippled.

STORM CUTS OFF SUPPLY.

The heavy blizzard and the temperature of 25 degrees below zero, which visited this city January 12-13, suspended business of all kinds. The florists had more than their share of the worry and trouble, as not only was their supply cut off by a lack of all means of transportation, but business was at a standstill, and greenhouses were greatly endangered and damaged by the windstorm. At this writing conditions are coming back to normal, but the express companies will accept no perishable stock. The coal situation is becoming very grave, some of the florists having only enough supply to last a few more days, with no prospects of a relief. The supply of flowers is considerably better than it has been for several weeks. Business during the forepart of the week showed an improvement over the previous week, with funeral work in the heaviest demand. Cut flowers and blooming plants for the sick met with a big call.

NOTES.

The January meeting of the florists' club was held in this city instead of at New Haven, Ind., as was planned, on account of the severity of the weather, Wednesday, January 9, with President Edgar Wenninghoff in the chair. The coal question, and other important matters, came up for discussion. The election of officers was postponed until the February meeting.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. have had a good amount of funeral work, although their deliveries were held up the latter part of the week by the immense snow drifts and the severe temperatures.

Edgar Wenninghoff is showing some fine Dutch hyacinths, the first of the season, jonquills, and a good variety of other bulbous stock.

The Flick Floral Co. is showing some fine Hoosier Beauties, and other leading varieties of roses, and reports the demand very good.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey report a good demand, but inability to send orders on account of the tie-up of the railroads.

BUSINESS SUFFERS FROM ZERO WEATHER.

In common with the rest of the country, this city is having an unusual period of cold weather with the thermometer hovering close to the zero mark, with more snow for the season than the oldest inhabitant can remember. Funeral work constitutes a large part of the demand and flowers continue to be furnished as complimentary remembrances and there are a few weddings, not as a rule, however, large affairs. The social world, locally speaking, is in a very quiescent state, but on the whole trade has been fairly good. The supply of flowers is much better than would ordinarily be expected and is sufficient to meet all requirements. Roses, while not abundant, are good, the offerings including the Killarneys, Russell and American Beauty. Carnations in all colors are in good supply. Some of the growers

The Joy Floral Co. reports a good supply of flowers for both the local store and their establishment in Chattanooga. Trade has been excellent with quite a few weddings to increase the total.

The McIntyre Floral Co. grows Russell roses to great perfection and they are offering splendid stock. They have a fine supply of sweet peas and orchids.

TRADE GOOD FOR SEASON.

After the experience of an increased holiday trade, business seems quiet, but compares favorably with last year. The severest weather for 50 years past has not helped in the quantity of roses or carnations, which shortage is being taken advantage of by the growers who are keeping the prices up beyond reason. There seems to be a tendency here to grab all that is possible, but when the growers are charging from 50 to 100 per cent more for roses than they are being sold for in the United States markets, it is time that some organized effort be used, and a proper adjustment of the existing conditions here be arranged. In roses, American Beauty is off crop, and in fact all reds are scarce. Richmond, which has always been grown extensively and to good advantage, is this year proving a failure as it has a tendency to come blind and will be discarded by most growers. The dependence has been on Hoosier Beauty, but this variety is now off crop. Ophelia is the standby, seemingly the best all round rose on the market today. Shawyer will also be planted in smaller quantities and Columbia given a thorough trial. Carnations are good and bringing $6 per 100, while all other varieties of stock bring good prices.

NOTES.

A committee of three, S. McFadden, J. A. Neil and H. G. Dilleuth, have been appointed to meet with the growers and wholesalers to try and arrange for a standard and more uniform grade for roses. Dissatisfaction is prevalent amongst the retailers as to the prices charged them for stock. Seemingly, the disparity of prices charged to the legitimate florists and the cut rate operators is too great, for it is a well known fact that stock can often be purchased retail at these stores for a lower figure than the florists can buy them.

Bulbous stock is now coming in large quantities; tulips, daffodils, freesias and hyacinths of different colors can now be had in quantities. White lilac and cyclamen are the best of the flowering plants.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Association will hold a social evening in February. As this is the banner event of the season a large attendance is expected.

W. Wilshire is bringing in pussy willows.

H. G. D.

Bristol, Tenn.

Following the holiday trade which was 15 per cent greater than last year with prices about 25 per cent higher, business has been fair with considerable funeral work and a few weddings. The demand for plants is somewhat limited due to the extreme cold weather, the temperature, December 30, being 20 degrees below zero, the lowest in many years. The snowfall is greater than in the past three years and the fuel supply is a matter of no small concern, but at this writing the temperature has moderated and is up to 28 degrees above zero.

TRADE SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

Market conditions have shown much improvement during the past week and everyone is enthused. A number of small ranges in the vicinity of this city have closed and there has been a good shipping demand to be met by the wholesale houses. Stock while none too plentiful is good and commands a fair price. Roses are shortening up and are offered at prices ranging from 6 cents to 16 cents, the latter price for 24-inch stems. Carnations are in oversupply and sell at from $10 to $20 per 1,000. Sweet peas were never better and move at $2 per 100. Other offerings include double and single violets, Golden Spurs, campanulas, pansies, Freesia Purity, wallflowers and myosotis.

NOTES.

The gardeners' and florists' club, at its meeting December 18, elected the following officers: Andrew K. Rogers, Readville, president; Carl P. Sweetzer, Wakefield, vice-president; S. J. Goddard, Framingham, treasurer; Wm. N. Craig, Brookline, secretary.

Philip Carbone had most attractive windows during the past week, acacias and irises with large plants of white heather predominating in one and euphorbias in large sprays three and four feet long arranged with cyclamens in the other.

Welch Bros. Co. reports very good business with sales better than in previous years. They carry an excellent line of carnations, roses, sweet peas, gardenias, orchids, in addition to florists' supplies.

Samuel Goddard of Framingham is shipping to George Noyes, his salesman, a fine selection of carnations, among the finest of which is Laddie selling at $10 per 100.

BUSINESS SHOWS SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT.

The good word seems to be that "we are thankful that things are not worse." Business the past week was a trifle better than that of the week before, when on cleanup Saturday carnations were sold in quantity, take them as they come and are, at a nickel a bunch. Growers say that carnations will soon shorten up and become, in a measure, scarce. Roses are now considerably below the demand, one having to be a favored buyer to get an order filled. Almost any kind of a flower now brings $5 to $6 per hundred, while special teas range up to $15. Russell, Prima Donna, Mock, Ophelia and Ward are all going off, taking their annual winter vacation which will for the most of them last for a month to six weeks. The salesmen will however have an opportunity to show their ability in selling "something just as good," as sweet peas, mignonette, calendulas, freesias, snapdragons, and quantities of bulbous stock, white and yellow narcissus and daffodils are seen in profusion. Mignonette and Paper Whites look as if they would hardly pay car fare one way. A few short stemmed tulips are seen. There are very good single violets, but the demand is hardly keeping up with the supply. There is still a little lily of the valley which may be stretched out. At $2 per dozen retail it is only used for special occasions. Gardenias are seen on the street stands, which is enough said. Cattleyas are favorites, selling up fairly well. Easter lilies and callas find an outlet in sprays for funerals. Greens of all kinds are in good demand.

January 15.—The city demand is keeping up very well, while with improved express facilities the out-of-town trade, which is such an important factor to this market, is much better. Roses are scarce; in fact, very scarce, and carnations, which have been very hard to move, are also shortening up and growers say shipments will be lighter for some time to come. Paper White narcissus greatly exceeds the demand. Other stocks are about the same as last week. Roses are 10 to 20 per cent. higher, but other lines are stationary.

FROZEN STOCK.

There are many instances of cut-flowers and plants frozen during the recent cold spell, both during transit and in greenhouses. Leo Niessen states that the best way to treat frozen stock is to place it as soon as discovered to be in this condition in a temperature of 40° to 45°. They put all such packages just as received in their cold storage rooms, temperature about 43°, when in nearly all cases they thaw out and appear to be little the worse for the experience. George Burton had a jar of open American Beauties left in a cold storage room where the glass showed the temperature down to 20°. The water in the jar was solid ice, and the foliage and flowers stiff and hard. They were allowed to remain until the weather moderated, when they thawed out and appeared to be none the worse. In all of thirteen greenhouses of Jos. Kift, West Chester, Pa., the temperature on a recent cold night was down to 30°. Everything was given up as lost, but with the exception of two houses where the glass showed 20°, which were a total loss, most of the stock, although nearly all frozen stiff, came through, and except in spots, looked all right the next day. With this experience, it is seen there is considerable salvage in frozen stock if taken in time. In the case of greenhouse stock, the plants should be covered with papers to keep off the rays of the sun before thawing out.

menace. Leonard Dudson of Llanerch closed his large carnation house for lack of coal, losing 15,000 plants. The papers are full of accounts of meetings of the government fuel officials to consider the saving of coal by refusing to sell non-essentials, but as yet nothing definite is known that will affect growers.

The Leo Niessen Co. reports that express shipments are now almost normal. To destinations, however, must be added about half the usual time of carriage, to allow for delays that seem inevitable at this time. Business is reported fair with a scarcity of roses. High grade carnations and sweet peas are features.

Chas. E. Meehan is handling excellent lily of the valley, forced from garden pips, which were taken up in the late fall. The pips were selected and treated the same as imported stock and carry from nine to 10 bells to a spray.

Clarence Liggett of the S. S. Pennock Co.'s plant department reports a good demand for their improved Primula Malacoides, over 1200 four inch pots being sold in three days the past week. They are splendidly flowered.

Arthur Niessen sees business fast approaching a cash basis. All auto repairs are now spot cash, the different dealers in this city being a unit that they will keep no books or accounts for this class of work.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange is strong on roses, having the large Leonard and Stephenson greenhouses to draw on. Manager Miller says there will be no trouble to sell roses from now on.

Manager Earnshaw of the Floral Nurseries reports the rose crop shortening up. Richmond, Double White Killarney, and Maryland are the quantity varieties at present.

H. Bayersdorfer and Co. are featuring flower holders with figures of Red Cross and soldier boy kiddies for St. Valentine's day, which are very unique and appropriate.

Carnations, sweet peas, lily of the valley, and Prima Donna and Ophelia roses are headliners with Edward Reid, who is glad to see an improving express situation.

Charles Pennock, oldest son of S. S. Pennock, has gone to France to help in the reconstruction work under the auspices of the Society of Friends.

Eugene Bernheimer finds things moving better this week, with roses much scarcer. Good sweet peas and Easter lilies are seen in stock.

Chas. E. Meehan would like to see a better market, but is philosophical. Very good stevia and carnations are features.

Charles Pennock, eldest son of S. S. Pennock, is now with the Red Cross, and expects to leave soon for France.

John Burton, who has been laid up with a severe cold, has recovered and is now able to be about again.

BUSINESS FAR FROM GOOD.

While the weather moderated during the past week, the effects of the big freeze are slow in passing. But there are other features as well as the weather that may be affecting business unfavorably. In a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post, Samuel G. Blythe covers two and one-half pages with an elaborate defense of the millionaires of Wall street who are working for the government for one dollar a year. Well, many of us would gladly do the same if we had their millions. We grant them full credit for all that they are doing from patriotic motives, but they should be careful not to injure the business of the many who are not millionaires. Take Frank A. Vanderlip for instance. He wants all "non-essentials" cut out and advises bankers not to loan money to people engaged in business that is, what he thinks, "non-essential." No business can be shut down without an injury to the proprietors and their employees; therefore "non-essentials" are hard to define. It is easy to tell men who are thrown out of business or out of work to do something else; but can you change the natural inclinations and training of years in a day or week? We think not. The advice for conservation and economy is good and should be heeded, but it is quite another matter to throw men and women out of business and employment. With due appreciation for all the good that the millionaires have done and are doing—and possibly at the risk of being called an "American Bolshevik" and a demagogue—I offer these remarks. All stocks, excepting roses, were very slow during the past week, and even roses moved none too freely. In their case, the saving clause was a greatly reduced supply, caused by the blizzard. Paper White narcissus and Roman hyacinths were the worst features in the market, the former going as low as eight and 10 cents per dozen, with thousands unsold. Carnations, for this time of year, were exceptionally cheap, running from $1 to $3 per 100. Our previous reference to roses did not include American Beauties, which were plentiful enough and took a wide range of prices, according to quality and freshness. Orchids, gardenias, lilies, lily of the valley and violets were all slow. There was not a great supply of yellow narcissus on the market and excepting roses it went better than most other stocks. In irises, lilac, snapdragons, wall flowers, pansies and other minor features, there was excellent stock to be had. One day of really good business would have cleaned up the market, but such a day did not come. On the morning of January 12 there was heavy rain with thunder and lightning, but the day was fair, with predictions of much colder weather in the near future.

January 14.—It would be idle to state that business is good, but for January 12 and today there has been a slight improvement. The great blizzard that swept the middle west January 12, seemed to have spent the worst of its force before it reached here. There was a sharp drop in temperature on Saturday night, 6° above zero being the record, but it has risen slowly and was about 20 this morning. As yet, there has been no snow, but it is now predicted. Roses continue to move fairly well, but nearly every other stock is slow and cheap for this season of the year. The fuel situation as yet is up in the air, and there seems to be a disposition on the part of all the men concerned with the movement of coal to blame somebody else. The railroad people claim that at all times they have had more coal on the Jersey shore than the fuel administrator took away. It obviously is not their duty to put coal in cellars.

NOTES.

"With all that France has suffered, she still holds her wonderful rose show each year at La Bagatelle." This was recently said by Miss Frances B. Johnston, the well known photographer, at her studio, 500 Fifth avenue. Miss Johnston does not believe in rooting up a beautiful flower garden to grow poor vegetables and she is as patriotic as the best of them. "Sorry rows of vegetables that almost refused to sprout" were some results she had witnessed. Miss Johnston is right. There is plenty of land on which to grow vegetables without destroying beautiful home gardens that in some instances, it has taken years to create. In connection with the foregoing, we note that on January 11 a state conference on conservation under the auspices of the State Federation of Woman's Clubs was held in Boston, and that "war gardens" and methods of making them of the greatest value were discussed. We have no desire to "butt in," but years of experience enables us to state that a "war garden" should follow the same simple rules as a peace garden. (1) Good soil, well cultivated and fertilized. (2) Good seed, sown or planted by somebody that knows how to do it. (3) Keep the weeds killed or they will kill the garden. The sun and rains will do the rest. We trust, however, that none of the Massachusetts ladies will turn their beautiful flower gardens into "war gardens."

Notes of warning are sounded so often in these days that many people pay no attention to them; but here is one that is important. It has been stated by men who should know, and we have every reason to believe do know, that as soon as this war is over 3,000,000 workers will leave this country to return to their native lands. The following statement is, we believe authentic: "Already there are on deposit for safe keeping with various government officials, consular agents, foreign bank branches and steamship offices enough purchased passages to fill all the second and third class space on board every vessel which will leave America for the other side for months after the war terminates. Hundreds of thousands of others are ready to purchase their tickets the instant peace appears to be a certainty." There are sound reasons for believing that this is no exaggeration. Doubtless many who have saved money, and most of them do, will return as a matter of curiosity and to try and find relatives. But there are many others who will go expecting to find good investments for their savings; for great changes will have taken place in the warring countries of Europe, and these will not come back.

John Henry Meyer, father-in-law of W. H. Kuebler, the well known Brooklyn wholesaler, died January 6, in his seventy-fifth year. He was formerly in the grocery business, but for a number of years had assisted Mr. Kuebler in his store, where he was popular with its patrons. He was born in Germany, but has been a citizen of this country for half a century. Mr. and Mrs. Kuebler and a grandson are his only surviving relatives.

Relating to coal for growers, we have heard of several carloads consigned to florists that were seized en route. Other carloads were found that had been standing on a side track for a week or more. Of course, the bad weather with snow adding to other blockades has made the situation worse. If there are no more storms we believe that this week will improve the situation.

FAIR BUSINESS DESPITE BLIZZARD.

Business continues fair for January up to this writing. While stock is not over plentiful, there is a good supply of carnations and narcissi to help out in such funeral work as there is. A fine lot of sweet peas are arriving and meet with an excellent demand. Orchids are in good supply with a fair demand. Lily of the valley is again short of the call. Calendulas, daffodils, freesias, etc., are part of the daily receipts. Callas and Easter lilies are in good demand, the latter being scarce. Short roses are scarce with the exception of American Beauties. Longer roses in pink and white are equal to the demand. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

Denver, Colo., is closing out his interests in the city and will move his family to Denver. The party who buys the Cleveland Florists' Exchange will not "take a chance," but will in reality be "grasping an opportunity," as the place will be sold at inventory and no charge for good will. See their advertisement on another page of this issue.

Cleveland is in the throes of a blizzard with the thermometer down to 10 below zero and the wind about 50 miles and hour. Some stock arrives frozen.

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-sixth annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 18-20, 1918.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—W. H. Small is improving and sits up three hours daily.

MICHIGAN and Wisconsin farmers are paying $10 per bushel for seed corn.

NEW YORK, January 15.—Freight embargo westward is complete and no relief is expected for 10 days.

J. B. AGNEW, now traveling in the east, is requested to communicate with Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago.

THE severe weather is reported to have recently and seriously caught some carloads of onion sets moving east from Chicago.

GRASS SEEDS.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade January 16 were as follows: Timothy, $6.00 to $8.50 per 100 pounds; clover, at Toledo, $20.00 to $28.00 per 100 pounds.

VISITED CHICAGO: C. C. Massie and G. S. Thompson, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn. Mr. Massie was on his way to attend an important meeting of the seed trade at Washington, but could not proceed on account of the storm.

SECRETARY HOUSTON of the department of agriculture has asked Congress for an appropriation of $6,000,000 to enable the department to buy and sell seed to farmers at a reasonable price. It is believed, however, this sum is desired chiefly to secure field corn which otherwise might be fed.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—At the annual meeting of C. C. Morse & Co., January 8, the following officers were elected: Lester L. Morse, president and manager; Thomas M. Landrum, vice-president and assistant manager; Albert L. Hart, vice-president and treasurer; Frank G. Cuthbertson, secretary. Frank A. Birge of Fresno and Geo. B. Hamilton of Santa Clara were elected to the board of directors.

C. P. HARTLEY, Bureau of Plant Industry, Washington, D. C., addresses the following appeal to the United States corn growers: "Upon you depends the success of next year's corn crop, which is threatened by a scarcity of well matured, locally adapted seed. The seed trade, county, state and national workers, though anxious, can help but little except as you make known your needs and your supplies, and you should act now as you would act if next week were corn planting time."

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Superintendent Ely of the flower seed department at the H. F. Michell Co.'s establishment, reports the demand quite up to that of last season. While they have a good supply of vegetable seeds, it is a question whether there is sufficient to last throughout the buying period. Some items are very scarce and correspondingly high in price. Spinach, which was normal at $6, is now $40 per bushel, and is sold only in pound lots at $2. A new gallery floor is being put in over the main store to give added space.

California Seed Crops.

L. W. Wheeler, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif., writing under date of January 12, states the weather is extremely dry with nothing planted except onion and a few roots. With the season a month late, prospects for radish, which should be growing at this time, are poor, with acreage a little larger than last year. It is difficult to get this crop out, however, farmers preferring, with labor scarce and high, to grow cereals and beans. There is plenty of time for lettuce, endive, etc., and with spring rains all may come out well, but the chances are against even a fair yield.

Garden Seed Survey.

A preliminary survey, taking into consideration quantities on hand and anticipated deliveries do not tend to bear out the supposed general shortage of garden seeds, except on a very few items, among these being beet, cabbage, onion, parsnip, garden peas, radish, tomato and both English and Swede turnips. In a number of these items the shortage is due to the impossibility of obtaining supplies from Europe as in the past. In the development of modern seed production, certain localities have specialized in growing certain crops and dealers generally look to these localities for the bulk of their needs. With a continuation of the war, it is reasonable to predict that patriotic food production will increase and it is desirable therefore as a war measure to increase the supply of many kinds of garden seeds by local production.—Seed Reporter, January 1.

Seed Corn Situation.

The seed corn situation in 12 states as summarized by the Seed Reporter, published by authority of the Secretary of Agriculture, says: "Illinois—Situation is most serious in years. Practically all the corn in the northern portion of the state is immature and soft; in southern and central parts the corn matured better, though unevenly. Indiana—Most counties report they have enough seed corn for their own needs if cared for properly. Kansas—There will probably be sufficient seed for the state's needs and possibly some to spare. Kentucky—Farmers are being urged to save every possible ear of corn for seed. Most corn ripened well, but dried out slowly. Michigan—From present indications only five or six counties will have any surplus seed corn next spring. This leaves an immense territory dependent on outside sources for supplies. There is a general scarcity of seed corn in the state. Minnesota—Situation is grave; special efforts are being made to select and store seed corn. Missouri—The situation is serious, especially in the north half of the state; many farmers who normally sell are compelled to buy this year. Nebraska—State has plenty for her own needs if proper care is exercised in selecting by germination tests.

The Late Howard H. Harries.

Howard H. Harries, formerly well known in the seed trade, died recently at Brownswood, Tex., where he had gone for his health, age 60 years. He is survived by a widow and daughter. Many years ago Mr. Harries was traveling representative of the Northrup, Braslan & Goodwin Co., succeeded later by Northrup, King & Co., at Minneapolis, Minn. With A. H. Goodwin, now of W. W. Barnard & Co., he then organized the Goodwin-Harries Co., which operated at Chicago for a time, specializing in seed peas. On the dissolution of this firm Mr. Harries entered the real estate field at Gary, Ind., then a new town, in which he was highly successful. He was vice-president of the Northern Trust and Savings Bank of Gary. Burial was at Waukegan, Ill.

New York Seed Trade.

The principal business in the seed trade district during the past week (between the times of fighting frost) was preparing and hoping for spring. Stump & Walter Co. had a bad freeze-up and had to close for two days. Peter Henderson & Co. and Wm. Elliott & Sons closed for half a day each. On our last visit to Vaughan's Seed Store, J. M. Thorburn & Co., Peth & Duggan, A. T. Boddington Co., Inc., and Weeber & Don, everybody was as cheerful and active as the weather permitted. That "broth of a boy," F. W. Bruggenhoff, head of J. M. Thorburn & Co., made his daily trips to the store.

Seed Corn Maximum Price.

G. L. Christie, of the Indiana food administration, is reported in newspaper interviews as having fixed a maximum selling price on farmers' seed corn from cribs of $5 per bushel. Indiana dealers who have fancy select seed, carefully tested, ridicule this price, saying that if such conditions are made in Indiana the best seed corn is liable to go out of the state.

Seed Sweet Corn for Canners.

The majority of canners have contracted seed stock and many indicate that they will have enough for the spring planting. As it is doubtful what deliveries will be made on contracts there may be disappointments and further demands may have to be supplied. The total surplus is reported by canners to be 1,700 bushels.

Vaughan's Giant Mixture.

Embraces, besides all the separate shades and colors, five special strains not listed elsewhere, and which can only be had in this and our International Mixture. This mixture includes the richest reds, coppers and bronzes, together with the most delicate rose and pink shadings, all the distinct colors of Trimardeau and the splendid Cassier strain.

Trade pkt., 25c; ½ oz., 75c; oz., $5.00; ¼ lb., $18.00.

Chicago Parks Bedding Mixture.

This is a mixture made by ourselves from 20 different and distinct varieties of this type. While the flowers of this strain do not grow as large as those of the Giant Pansies they excel them by a much greater number of flowers to a plant.

Trade pkt., 15c; ¼ oz., 40c; oz., $1.15; ¼ lb., $4.00.

Vaughan's P. P. (Popular Price) Mixture.

This mixture, like all "Vaughan" mixtures, is made up by ourselves from separate colors and strains of the Giant and Chicago Parks Bedding types and will furnish a large variety of colors with a good proportion of giant flowers.

Trade pkt., 20c; ½ oz., 35c; oz., $2.00; 4 ozs., $7.00.

Home Gardening During 1918.

In getting ready to produce food in the backyard garden, the United States department of agriculture suggests that the location and area to be planted be determined as soon as possible and to select the list of seeds to be planted as soon as the spring catalogues are available. In choosing these sorts have in mind the ones that did best last year and which the family relished best. This is the season in many locations to break up and fertilize, making it easier in spring to make the beds. Many gardens failed last year on account of poor soil or preparation, or both. Farmers' Bulletin 818, entitled "The Small Vegetable Garden," with suggestions for utilizing limited areas, has been issued by the department of agriculture, who will supply it free upon request. The supply of many of the important varieties of vegetable seed is limited. The early placing of seed orders is urged as well as co-operation to make the supply available produce a maximum crop.

Radishes on Sixty Acres.

Everybody who has a garden, grows a few radishes; they mature early, and requiring no special skill to grow, are general favorites. Growing them for market is, however, another matter. One of the largest growers in the country is L. C. Duncan, of Westville, N. J., who has a farm of 60 acres, all of which is devoted almost exclusively to radishes. This is planted early in the spring in blocks of about five acres, which as they are pulled, are planted again. From three to four crops are obtained, depending on the season. They are planted in rows eight inches apart, one inch between plants in row. In the height of the season, he has marketed 35,000 bunches a day. The bunches, after being tied, are placed in trays and given a good hosing to wash off any soil that may be sticking to them. They are then put into a large tank and showered with water, which cleanses the leaves and every part thoroughly. Women and girls do the bunching for which they get 15 cents per hundred bunches, 50 to 60 girls being kept busy all summer at this work. Bunches are made a standard size with from 6 to 8 radishes to a bunch according to size of stock. These are packed in wooden boxes holding from 100 to 150 bunches. They are handled for the most part in the Philadelphia market; prices starting at $4 per hundred bunches, and ranging from this figure down to $1.50 per hundred at times of an overstock. Winter prices range from $3 to $4 per hundred.

Six large sash houses, each 35x190 feet, are used to keep up a supply during winter. A crop was taken during the last of November to the middle of December. The houses were then replanted and will be in about last of January and through February. Early in March another planting of radishes will be combined with lettuce and parsley. The radishes in the houses are grown in ground beds eight feet in width, running the length of the houses. Between each of these is a walk one foot deep, a foot board on either side supporting the soil. Radish rows are three inches apart, plants one inch apart in the rows. In the spring planting, lettuce is grown between every third row, with parsley in the two rows between. The radishes come out first; this gives the salad, by this time of good size, room to spread out. When the salad is cut there is then the parsley, which is soon ready for market and furnishes a good supply during the summer until the time for the fall sowing of radishes arrives. This makes five complete crops from these houses annually. The heating is by four-inch hot water pipes, one in each walk resting on cement foundations. Temperature is 40° night and 60° to 70° days. Watering inside is with the hose, outside by the Skinner system of overhead pipes.

The varieties are White and Scarlet Globe. Mr. Duncan raises all the seed required on his own place. Lettuce and parsley are also field crops, but not to a great extent. Salt hay is used to cover and protect lettuce that is not cut out at the time for the first frosts that would injure the crop. Big Boston is the variety. The soil in the houses is changed once a year.

Vegetables All the Year Round.

W. H. Ash, of South Vineland, N. J., specializes in vegetables. He has a farm of 40 acres and 100,000 feet of glass. His main crops, grown in the houses, are lettuce, radishes, tomatoes and cucumbers. Parsley, carrots, peppers and lettuce and some other market favorites, are field crops. Every month of the year has its crop or crops, which are as far as possible timed to get to market before and after the periods when Florida and Virginia shipments dominate and reduce prices.

The stock in the houses January 1, consisted of tomatoes and radishes. Two old sash houses, 36x175 feet, that had done service for 16 years, and are still in good condition, had been sown with radishes, which were just coming through. The night temperature in these houses was just above freezing in order to conserve the coal. Hot water furnished the heat. The crop was expected here about the middle of February. Lettuce follows the radishes, being well advanced in middle of April. About the 20th the sash are removed. Cutting commences first to fifteenth of May. Another crop of radishes is grown in the early fall in these houses.

Two large up-to-date houses, one 40 x 200 feet, the other 68x206 feet, are kept going the year round, producing three full crops, a rotation of cucumbers, tomatoes and radishes. The 40x200 foot house is just over its height of a successful crop of tomatoes; 600 pounds had been cut December 26. Fruit is gathered twice a week. The house contains 2,000 plants. The variety is Bonnie Best, which has been found to do best here. The seed is own selection from plants in greenhouses, showing vigor, freedom from "wilt," and that are productive.

The disease called "wilt" is very injurious. It comes up from the root, the stem gradually hardening and turning brown next to the bark or skin of the plant. The sap ceases to flow, the soft growth wilts and the plant dies. There seems no remedy but to throw the plants out. Seed for this crop was sown last of July, pricked off, and then potted into four-inch pots and plunged in the ground where they were to grow. After a couple of weeks they were planted in the ground. They were hand watered until about three feet in height. After being tied to jute strings six feet in length, leading to wire supports above, they were watered from Skinner system pipes, three rows of which ran the length of the house about one foot from the ground. These were run in winter for about 20 minutes, but in summer for an hour. First picking commenced the middle of November. The temperature at night is 60°; day, 80° to 85°. The average production is about six pounds to a plant. The best market sizes run three to a pound.

HOUSE OF RADISHES, 68x206 FEET.

Pollenizing is done by gently shaking the vines each day until four series of clusters have set. Fruit setting after that is not cared for, as it does not pay to mature the small and late bunches. When vines reach the length of the string, they are topped. All laterals are removed as the vines grow, all fruit being borne by the main stem. The weight of fruit, sometimes two and one-half pounds to the cluster, bends at an angle the supporting stem, but it does not interfere with their ripening. In winter, the fruit is ripe and well colored when picked, but in summer is gathered at the first tinge of red. They are sent to market in fibre fruit baskets, each holding five pounds. Fruit is not wrapped; just a sheet of paper between the layers.

The large house adjoining, 68x206 feet, had been filled with tomatoes from which a good crop had been taken April, May and June. Prices come within 10 cents a pound of the winter house, but is more profitable, as the vines bear more abundantly and last longer. The summer average is seven pounds to a plant.

Between the summer crops, the soil in the beds, all of which are on the ground, there being no tables, is sterilized. This is done with a series of steam pipes, 35 feet in length, in multiple sections, 16 inches apart with holes on both sides. The soil is all turned over and loosened up; the frame of the steam pipes is sunk about six inches in the ground. The soil is then baked until every particle of fungus or insect life is destroyed. Much importance is attached to this sterilization, as the same soil with the addition of manures, is used continuously.

Cucumbers followed tomatoes in this house. These are planted out of four-inch pots, trained up much as the tomatoes, and over the wires at the top. A hive of bees in the house is necessary to pollenize the flowers. This season's planting was not as prolific as usual, as they take a good deal of heat, and coal was scarce. A crop last season in the other house had produced 3,000 dozen. They were taken out the last of November and the house planted with radishes, Scarlet Globe is the variety. These are sown in rows 1½ inches apart across beds 12 feet wide. They are thinned to about 1½ inches apart. The crop will be ready to pull about second week in January. In spring and fall, radishes are produced in three weeks, but in winter it takes six. The market price is 3½ cents to 4½ cents a bunch. Eight to 10 radishes make up a bunch, according to size.

Fall outdoor lettuce is a specialty. It is sown early in August in beds and transplanted to the field in about three weeks. The variety is White Boston in spring, and for fall the Big Boston. Three acres are grown in spring, and about four in the fall. The late fall crop is for the most part covered with muslin just above the plant. The beds are 14 feet wide by 285 long. The muslin is tacked to 14 foot strips across the beds. This covering is put on before October 10 and protects from frost until the crop can be cut about middle of November. Lettuce is planted 10x12 inches apart, about nine heads to a square yard. When the frost strikes lettuce in the field, it turns it a reddish brown. The muslin covering keeps it a bright fresh green in color when it is much more salable. Last fall's crop was over 6,000 boxes, 24 heads to a box, which brought $1 a dozen wholesale, a very good price for outdoor stock. Parsley is an important crop, all grown outside. The bunching is quite a job, which is best done by women.

Although Mr. Ash's entire establishment is for the production of vegetables, he has had as much trouble getting coal this fall as the florists, being on short allowance all season. Baskets and boxes for shipping are much more expensive. A car load of wooden lettuce boxes cost $250 more this season than last.

Success with vegetables under glass presents many of the same problems as does the forcing of cut flowers. Questions of soil, fertilizing, selection of varieties, testing of seed, time of planting, rotation of crops, watering, ventilation, temperature, insects and diseases, picking, and the best methods of packing products and selection of the best markets, are all vital matters, links in the chain, each of which must be forged to stand the strain to insure satisfactory results.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo., President; J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., Vice-President; Curtis Nye Smith, 19 Congress St., Boston, Mass., Secretary and Counsel. Forty-third annual convention will be held at Chicago, June 26-28, 1918.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—H. J. Neale, formerly of Worcester, Mass., has taken the position of superintendent of Audubon park in this city.

Southwestern Association of Nurserymen.

The Texas Nurserymen's Association passed out of existence automatically January 9, with the formation of the Southwestern Association of Nurserymen at its initial meeting at Denison, Tex., on that day. The new organization will cover the states of Arizona, New Mexico, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Texas. The following officers were elected: W. C. Griffing, Port Arthur, Tex., president; W. A. Wagner, Durant, Tex., vice-president; L. J. Tackett, Fort Worth, Tex., secretary-treasurer. J. R. Mayhew, Waxahachie, Tex., and George Parker, Fayetteville, Ark., together with the above officers, will constitute the executive committee. The next meeting will be held at Denison, September 24, 1918.

New Bill Prohibits Nursery Imports.

The warning sounded by Curtis Nye Smith, secretary and counsel of the American Association of Nurserymen, calling attention to the bill to prohibit the importation of nursery stock into the United States in a bill (S. 3344) introduced January 4 by Senator Weeks of Massachusetts should meet with concerted opposition by the trade in general every member of which should, without delay, communicate with his representative at Washington protesting its passage.

As mentioned in our issue of January 12, page 1390, Section 4 of this bill provides the definition of nursery stock, to include all field grown florists' stock, trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings, grafts, scions, buds, fruit pits, and other seeds of fruit, and ornamental shrubs and other plants and plant products for propagation, except field, vegetable and flower seeds, bedding plants, and other herbaceous bulbs, plants, and roots.

Illinois State Nurserymen's Association.

The Illinois State Nurserymen's Association will hold a called meeting at the Sherman hotel, Chicago, February 14-15, at which time officers will be elected for the ensuing year, succeeding those temporarily in charge of the association's affairs since its organization at the preliminary meeting held at Champaign, December 19, 1917, at which time J. A. Young of Aurora was elected chairman of the meeting and Guy A. Bryant, Princeton, secretary. Others in attendance were: A. J. Cultra, Onarga; B. J. Vandervort, Bloomington; W. H. Gibbs, Normal; A. M. Augustine, Normal; L. F. Dintelman, Belleville; J. A. Gage, Texico, and Miles W. Bryant, Princeton.

As matters of organization and general interest to the trade will come up for discussion at the Chicago meeting, Secretary Bryant requests a large attendance.

Rhododendrons.

A large number of the species and hybrids of rhododendrons are now cultivated in California and in some parts of Europe, but only a few of them can be grown in the open ground in the eastern United States, and the region here where any of these plants thrive is not large, for it is too cold for rhododendrons north of Massachusetts and too hot for them south of Pennsylvania except on the slopes of the Appalachian mountains. Only the species of eastern North America, R. maximum, R. catawbiense, R. carolinianum and R. minus, and R. Smirnowii of the Caucasus, R. brachycarpum of the high mountains of Japan, and R. micranthum from western and north central China are perfectly hardy here. This last is a small plant with small leaves and small compact clusters of white flowers and looks more like a ledum than a rhododendron. Of the 60 odd species of Chinese rhododendrons raised at the arboretum from seed collected by Wilson this is the only one that is perfectly hardy here, although R. discolor can be kept alive in sheltered positions at least for a few years. Two little European rhododendrons, R. ferrugineum and R. hirsutum, live here but the plants are generally short-lived and not really satisfactory. Most of the rhododendrons cultivated in this part of the country are hybrids of R. catawbiense, but only a very few of the great number of these hybrids which have been raised in Europe are really hardy here. These are hybrids, too, growing in the arboretum of R. Metternichii, of R. Smirnowii, of R. maximum, of R. minus and of the European species which are hardy. There is still much to be accomplished in the gardens of eastern America by the breeders of hardy rhododendrons.—Arnold Arboretum Bulletin.

New York Fruit Growers' Association.

The New York State Fruit Growers' Association held its annual convention at Exhibition park, Rochester, N. Y., January 10-12 and in view of the proposed amalgamation with the Western New York Horticultural Society, all officers were re-elected as follows: W. P. Rogers, president; E. C. Gillette, secretary-treasurer. The vice-presidents are: N. P. Brocek, S. M. Smith, Walter Clarke and E. F. Goldsmith. Members of the executive board include C. G. Porter, G. E. Ward, Frank Laters and F. H. Bailey.

CHESTER.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—Theodore Smith has opened a flower shop in the Hotel Hillman building.

OWENSBORO, KY.—The Tapscott Floral Co. will conduct all business from its range after January 1, discontinuing the retail store in the Masonic Temple.

Greenhouse Heating.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

What will be the approximate quantity of the best grade of anthracite coal required to heat three houses of about equal dimensions and a total of 6,000 feet of glass exposure? It is desired to maintain temperatures of about 40, 50 and 60 degrees respectively in these houses, with steady firing from the first week in October until the last week in April. The thermometer seldom registers lower than 25 degrees below zero.

Ontario, W. H. E.

Since there may be a variation of 25 to 50 per cent in the amount of coal consumed, depending upon the character of the construction of the houses, the efficiency of the heating system and the skill of the fireman, it will only be possible to furnish an approximate estimate. Under fairly good conditions, we would consider that it would be possible to heat the houses described to 40°, 50° and 60° with 9, 11½ and 15 tons of coal, respectively, if hot water is used. These figures are based upon experimental tests covering four winter months. Using steam, the amount of coal required will be 15 to 25 per cent more.

Nashville Pottery Co.'s Plant Burns.

A disastrous fire on the morning of January 11 nearly destroyed the plant of the Nashville Pottery Co., formerly the Harley Pottery Co., manufacturers of a general line of pottery at Nashville, Tenn., the loss being estimated at between $60,000 and $70,000, practically covered by insurance. The factory was a two story building occupying nearly an entire block and was built about 12 years ago. A warehouse containing finished pots to the value of about $5,000 was saved as were several smaller buildings. In the main building valuable machinery, three large filter presses and glazing and moulding equipment were destroyed. Nearly 100 people were thrown out of employment temporarily. The company enjoyed a large trade throughout the south among florists and other tradesmen. The officers of the company are: D. W. Binns, president; A. C. Smith, vice-president; W. H. Quarles, treasurer; E. B. Bradley, secretary and associate manager.

TAMPA, FLA.—The Tampa Floral Co. reports the holiday trade during the past season about the same as a year previous with prices lower than usual, although the quality was better by far. The supply of cut flowers was ample with no special demand for any variety in particular. The call for pot plants was very little better than the year before.

DALLAS, TEX.—The Lang Floral & Nursery Co. reports a handsome increase in 1917 Christmas sales with prices about 10 to 15 per cent better than in 1916. Dark weather cut the cut flower supply about in half, with the exception of bulbous varieties. There was an especially heavy call for American Beauties. Fancy baskets and boxes were prime favorites and sold better than cyclamens and begonias. Money was plentiful and the demand was for the better grades in everything.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.—Furrow & Co. report 1917 Christmas trade as showing a 50 per cent increase with prices 25 to 50 per cent better than a year ago. The cut flower supply was somewhat limited and roses were not as good as last year, but there was a noticeably greater demand for long stemmed stock. There was also an increase noted in the call for cyclamens in the plant division. Buying commenced early, 25 per cent of the orders being booked before December 18.

WORCESTER, MASS.—Higher prices than in 1916 and a 15 per cent increase in volume of business is the report of M. W. Reid on the 1917 holiday business. In cut flowers, roses and carnations were plentiful but violets were short of the demand. The quality of the roses and carnations was the best in years, with other offerings also above the average. Cyclamens and poinsettias were the leaders in plant sales with the demand about the same as a year ago.

HARTFORD, CONN.—John Coombs reports a decrease of about 10 per cent in 1917 holiday sales as compared with the trade a year ago, prices being about the same. The supply of cut stock was ample with Paper Whites the only offering in the bulbous line. The quality was better than usual. No special demand was noted for any particular variety and the sales of plants was about on a par with other years. Buying started late.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—According to D. E. Law, 1917 Christmas sales were about 15 per cent above those of last year, with prices advanced in about the same proportion. Many more cut flowers could have been sold if they could have been secured, and anything in the way of a blooming plant sold with a rush. As Thanksgiving trade was not up to standard, local dealers did not make extensive preparations for the Christmas demand.

FERERSBURG, VA.—Wm. S. Young reports better prices and a 25 per cent increase in Christmas business during the period just passed. There was a scarcity of carnations and violets, but the supply of roses was ample. The quality, however, was not quite up to the standard of last year. Plants sold about as usual.

GREELEY, COLO.—With prices 50 per cent better than in 1916, the Gardner Floral Co. reports that this year's Christmas trade doubled that of 1916 in volume. The supply of both flowers and plants was not equal to the demand, and at least a third more could have easily been disposed of had they been available.

PEORIA, ILL.—According to B. Juergens, with prices about the same as a year ago, the 1917 holiday trade showed a decrease. The quality of stock was very good, but much of it was left over. Baskets and flowering plants sold fairly well. Many holly wreaths supplied the place of cut flowers as gifts.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW POSTPONED.

Board of Directors of S. A. F. and National Flower Show Committee So-Decide After Expression of Views at St. Louis Meeting, January 21-22.

Conditions Considered Unfavorable.

After a general survey of the conditions in general existing in the United States at the present time, a careful consideration of all sections, and hearing full expression of the views of members of the local committees, the national flower show committee and the board of directors of the Society of American Florists, including representatives from affiliated societies serving as directors of the latter organization it was unanimously decided at a meeting held in St. Louis, Mo., January 21-22, that to hold the national flower show in that city this spring in connection with the thirty-fourth annual convention of the S. A. F., April 6-15, would be unjust to the guarantors and to those who have always by their interest and exhibits assured the unqualified success of national flower shows wherever held. Although much valuable work has been done, and the local committees have one and all lent their best efforts so that everything was progressing favorably, it was reluctantly decided to postpone the show scheduled for the above dates until such time as a change in general conditions existing throughout the country will insure rapid movement of express shipments and relief of freight congestion. Thanks are due to those who have already subscribed for space as well as to the St.
Louis workers. While some financial loss will result from a cessation of the preparations under way, it is believed that the action taken will be wiser, realizing the practical difficulties in the way of holding a successful exhibition at this time, to absorb the present loss, rather than incur further expense.

While the national flower show will, therefore, not be held this spring, there will be no change in the dates for the April convention, and the local members of the S. A. F. will direct their efforts toward a most successful meeting in St. Louis. It is believed that the matter of coal conservation to which the attention of the entire trade must continue to be directed as long as the war lasts will result in an unusually large attendance, as it will draw from not only the east and south but from the great northwest and southwest, together with the territory immediately adjacent to St. Louis, as in holding it in April, the heated period of the year will be avoided.

The watchword of the convention will be: "Co-operation, Conservation and America First." There will be interesting exhibits showing recent developments of American products, and it is believed that by April facilities for railroad travel will have much improved and the commercial trade exhibit will be a fine one. The matter of publicity will also receive proper attention at the convention, and by that time it is believed that work already done in that direction will show its

the trade will realize their duty, if not work that is being done.

Full Support Pledged Fuel Administration

Recognizing the need of informing the government as to conditions in the industry, it is requested that all members of the Society of American Florists at once communicate with John Young, secretary, 53 West 28th street, New York, stating how many feet of glass at your establishment is now shut down on account of coal conservation. It is important that you act at once. This means that you should also get in touch with your fellow florists in order that our industry may be protected. At a meeting of the executive committee at St. Louis, Mo., January 21, the following telegram signed by President Chas. H. Totty, Secretary John Young and Wm. F. Gude,

Washington representative, was by unanimous vote, sent to Fuel Administrator H. A. Garfield:

"The Society of American Florists in session here, unanimously vote to co-operate in coal conservation by reducing consumption one-third pursuant to your recommendation. It was also resolved that the president and secretary of this organization are authorized to execute any papers that may be required by the national fuel administrator in complying with the full conservation by our members and allied organizations.

Lilies For Easter.

Now that preparations for Easter are going forward, a few words from a grower who makes pot-grown Easter lilies a specialty, and who has had great success with them, will be found interesting.

H. Faust, of Merion, near Philadelphia, Pa., forces each season for the Easter trade about 12,000 pots. The bulbs giganteums, were from two to three weeks late in arriving this season. When received the cases were stacked outside, subject to all weather conditions. Seven thousand were potted December 10-15. The bulbs in the outside layers in the boxes were frozen, but this did not seem to affect them as these started as well as any. Every pot of this lot appears to have started. There is at this time, January 11, a good showing of roots; and the shoots are from one to two inches in height. Five and one-half-inch pots are used, being cheaper and just as efficient as the sixes and more can be loaded in a car. They are planted one 7 to 9-inch bulb of standard size or two small ones to a pot. Leaving the final filling of soil for a later operation after the bulb has started is of no advantage and entails much more labor. Some start in four-inch pots and repot into sixes; this takes considerable labor and is not of the slightest advantage.

The bulbs are placed close to the bottom on about one inch and a half of soil and the pot then filled.

The second lot of 5,000 bulbs were potted December 28-30, and are all now showing roots. The custom had formerly been to pot up the lilies as soon as they came, generally the last of October, but he now believes this is too soon as the bulbs seem to ripen and be benefited by a longer rest. Last season four cases were not potted until after Christmas. They had been overlooked and not much was expected of them, at least for Easter. Much to his surprise, they came along better, soon caught up to the others, making when finished, much the best plants. Shoots that came up with leaves together, make strong plants while those that opened out close to the ground as soon as they were two to three inches high seldom amounted to anything.

Two long tables of formosum in pots for winter cutting were planted, one table, October 5, and the other, October 18. The last batch are now bearing buds two inches in length, while in the first lot the buds have just commenced to show. They are side by side, both having the same advantages as to heat and light.

His lilies, as soon as potted are placed close together on tables. As the soil was moist, no water was given this batch when potted, but they are sprayed each day with the hose, and dry pots given a little water. From the first they are kept at a night temperature of not less than 60°.

A number of 9 to 10-inch bulbs are also grown. The 7 to 9-inch average five flowers, the larger size, six and over. The majority of the trade like the five-flowered plants the best. As to temperature, he is never afraid of getting them too warm; the hose is used frequently, as they must never suffer for want of water. Should they get thoroughly dry once in a high temperature, good-bye bulbs. The temperature must be even, sudden changes and draughts being very injurious. He never ventilates his lilies while forcing, unless it becomes necessary to hold them back, after the buds are well advanced. Short, stunted looking plants are caused by changes in temperature. No attempt must be made to hold lilies back while their growth is on. After buds are well developed, the house can then be run cold. The best plant is the one that is brought along lively from the start. Putting plants in a week too soon, in a cool house, will hold them back, but it does not, as many appear to think, improve the flowers.

Ninety per cent of all lily troubles are blamed on the bulbs, while in reality it is the fault of the growers.

When in seeds, bulbs, plants, etc., there is failure of any kind, the grower seldom takes the blame, although in nearly all cases it is his wrong cultural methods that caused the trouble.

Light bamboo canes, dyed green, are used for stakes with raffia for tying. In packing, or for delivery, each head of flowers and buds are gathered together with the hand and wrapped several times with a strip of soft manilla paper about twice as thick as manilla tissue. The two ends are given one tie and hold without slipping. These strips are two inches wide by 36 in length. This operation is quickly done with a little practice, and is very efficient, as Mr. Faust seldom has complaints of flowers bruised in shipment or delivery.

Spring Bedding Stock Preparations.

The month of January opens up another season. Starting at this time, there are several different kinds of seeds that have to be sown in preparation for spring bedding plants. The seed of the plants needed to be sown now are the varieties of begonias used for planting outdoors in the spring, such as gracilis, luminosa and the semperflorens types, like Prima Donna and the different shades of Vernons. Begonia seeds are slow to germinate and slow to make headway after they have started. They require a warm, light place, and if possible, a little bottom heat. The gardeners at the leading parks and cemeteries, who plant out large numbers of these plants, have worked out to a considerable extent their own methods of starting the seeds. One method is to fix up a part of a propagating bench that has bottom heat, each root being divided off by lath. All the seeds do not come up at the same time, so that when some get large enough to handle they are taken up and transplanted or potted in very small pots and the beds left for another lot to come up.

The seed beds are made up with a layer of coarse material at the bottom of the bench for drainage, then a layer of soil not so coarse, and on top of this, for the surface, a fresh, finely sifted soil with a liberal amount of clean sand. Begonia seed should not have a deep covering, consequently it is necessary to make the surface of the seed bed firm and as level as possible, to prevent the seeds from being washed into heaps when watering. After the bed is made up, give it a watering through the finest rose sprinkler and allow it to settle for a little while before sowing the seed. Sow thinly and cover with very fine soil in the same proportion.

After the seed is covered, press the bed down firmly with a flat piece of board and give a good watering. The after treatment, before the young seedlings are ready to take from the bed, is mainly in watching that the soil does not become too dry. It will dry out in spots and needs daily attention to keep it in the same degree of moisture so that the seed will germinate evenly. Shallow flats and pans are also generally used as receptacles for sowing these very fine seeds and the same directions can be followed in preparing them as that advised for the larger bed. The best place to set the seed boxes or pans is on a shelf in a warm, light house where they are handy to get at for the necessary attention.

All seeds of plants needed to be in flower for sale during the month of May, should be sown now. Among these we can mention the double and single-flowered petunias, celosias, crissatas (coxcombs), lobelias, salvias, verbenas and the different varieties of Ten Weeks stocks.

The Centaurea candidissima (dusty miller) will have to be sown now to be able to obtain salable plants by May. They are slow growers, but if the seed is sown in January, and the plants given careful attention after they have come up, they will make good size by May 1.

The best method, we find, to handle the lobelia from seed, is to sow now, and when the young plants come up and are large enough to handle, take small clumps of them and transplant in flats, then when these are again large enough, pot into 2½-inch pots and about the middle of April plunge in the hotbeds outside. If more stock is needed, the clumps can be again divided at time of potting.

Dwarf ageratum and sweet alysums can also be sown now to give them time to make nice plants in bloom for May sales. It is also now time to sow the pansy seed for late spring and Memorial day sales. The plants from seed sown in the fall and carried over winter in frames, make the best plants for early spring, but the plants from seed sown now are far better for Memorial day and early summer. Pansy seed will germinate best in a temperature of the carnation house and are far better for being allowed to come along as naturally as possible without any forcing.

To obtain a good stand of any kind of seed the two extremes of dryness and moisture must be guarded against. Another thing that has ruined many a batch of seedlings is extreme close conditions. To neglect to remove at night the papers having been used for shading during the day has caused more failures than one. Mice are also among the worst enemies the seed raiser has. Who has not had boxes of seed fitted up in good shape one day and found them rooted up by mice the next? These may seem trifling items to touch upon, but unless they are taken into consideration and watched out for a lot of trouble is very likely to occur.

January also starts a period of extensive propagation. From now on every effort should be put forth to fill up the propagating space with all the available cuttings until the required stock of all classes of plants is complete. The geranium, the leader among bedding plants, should receive first attention, and every cutting needed taken and put into the sand. The young stock of geraniums propagated last fall should now be in condition to yield a cutting without giving the plants a severe setback. They have plenty of time to become better and dwarfer plants, for the reason of their having been topped back for the cutting, but to do much taking of cuttings from geraniums after another month or six weeks, is like courting difficulty in having the plants round into shape again and flower very freely for early spring sales. The cuttings taken during the next six weeks also need every day between now and May to make strong plants in good flower.

While we have the geraniums under consideration, it is well to bear in mind that the young plants now in 2½-inch pots will soon need shifting into threes and make plans accordingly. The latter part of this month or early in February should see this work attended to. Another feature concerning the geranium, that will pay to consider, and that is, to select a batch of the best plants and work them along into six and eight-inch pots for sales as fancy pot plants. The lack of importations of azaleas and other stock will create a demand for good plants of geraniums and other plants that we have at our command. The Mme. Saleroi, the companion of the geranium in much of the bedding, should also be propagated now. It is astonishing the large numbers of this plant that are used for cemetery planting and it is one of the items we never seem to get enough of, but the customer wants a good plant. Provide a good show of Salleroi where the customers can go and pick them out by the dozen and there will not be any danger of having them left on your hands. Our method of growing these plants is to propagate now, and as soon as rooted, put into 2 or 2½-inch pots and about March 15, repot into 3-inch pots for sale.

To mention the whole list of plants that should be propagated now, would be to go into the whole category of the plants grown for the general spring business of the florists of the country. There are the alternantheras, heliotropes, ageratums, fuchsias, begonias, achyranthes, marguerites, piceas, salvias, vincas, etc., that should receive attention as fast as the stock plants furnish the cuttings. The greatest success is achieved in growing these plants when every effort is put into working up the stock early and allowing them to come along naturally without having to resort to any methods of forcing. A plant grown naturally under moderate treatment, is strong and sturdy, but a forced plant is a weakling at its best.

C. W. JOHNSON.

Bulbs Outside During Winter.

Florists who force Dutch and other bulbs for winter cut flowers, and who store them outside in frames or in beds of soil, in sheltered situations covered with manure, frequently find it almost impossible, following heavy frosts, to get them out. The Floracraft Gardens Moorestown, N. J., have solved this problem in a very simple way by the use of fallen leaves, which as a cover about one foot in depth, afford a complete protection from frost, even in the most severe weather. Bulbs in boxes and pots were taken out January 11, with the greatest ease. When the bulbs arrived they had been boxed or potted, then set on the surface of the ground, given a good watering, and covered with about six inches of earth. Then followed the blanket of leaves, one foot thick. The stock uncovered January 11, to be taken inside, showed no indication of having been frozen; the soil was as pliable as when placed in the pots. There was an abundance of roots showing through the cracks in the bottoms of the flats and also from holes in bottom of the pots. The shoots were about two inches above the level of the soil in pots and boxes. All the unprotected ground in the immediate neighborhood of these bulb beds was frozen to a depth of 24 inches.

Edward Ross, the foreman, said they had never had any trouble to keep the frost out for the past three years since the leaves had been used. Manure had been the covering before, but had always failed in severe weather, the frost going through and causing a lot of damage to pots and making it difficult to get them out. The conditions as to temperature and moisture appeared ideal under the leaves, the stock showing when uncovered, a satisfactory condition of growth and which was so well rooted that it came on very fast in the warm greenhouse.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

First impressions are apt to be lasting; the bright, neat appearance of the store cannot but be pleasing to the visitor, who, attracted by the well-dressed window, comes inside to ask something about plants or flowers that is suggested or brought to mind by the display.

In order that these favorable impressions shall be always in the making, the well-arranged interior is a matter of such importance that, despite the busy days, it should be never overlooked. A few good pieces of furniture, cheval mirror, writing desk and chair, several decorative pedestals and jardinières, two or three good-looking hardwood display tables of odd shapes, together with a rug or two, which can be gotten together gradually, will add to the appearance of any store. The display tables should be rearranged frequently, one with the newest vases and flower holders, some decoratively filled to show their possibilities. New baskets, trellis boxes and fern dishes, some filled, if nicely arranged, will be sure to attract attention. Another, filled with flowering plants, some of them in pot covers or decorated with crepe paper, and a ribbon to match or blend with the flowers, will enhance their beauty and help sales considerably. This condition of the store, that it should be up to the mark, is not only for next week, but for all the weeks of the busy winter. It is emphasized here because so many do not seem to realize the importance of the first impression.

Primula Malacoides is now at its best. This is one of the prettiest small blooming plants that has ever been introduced. Its profusion of bloom on a small plant makes it valuable to use in basket combinations. Several together in a low pan make a showy table centerpiece. Plants in four-inch pots can be placed in small handle baskets which, with a ribbon on the handle, make a good week end special.

It is now daffodil time, and as these can be purchased in quantity at special prices, they are also good stock to handle. Put up in dozens, with a sprig or two of short pussy willow, and priced to move quickly, they add considerably to the number of the day's sales. Every sale made, however small, is of importance.

The window displays, the newspaper advertising, the leaflets or other circulars, sent to customers or selected lists, should always include some special priced feature that will appeal to some, and induce them to visit the store. The particular thing described should always be of good value.

Hyacinths in glasses are very attractive. Plants with buds just out of the bulbs, that have been grown in pots, can be washed out carefully, and the roots will fit nicely in the glasses. Always have a corsage or two made up ready to wear or to show as samples. Many more sales are made, induced by the artistic arrangement of the flowers.

Keep the fact that St. Valentine's day is coming, and that the beautiful custom of sending flowers on this occasion is rapidly growing, constantly before the people. Have your stock of novelties ready and display some of them filled. The harder you work to create the demand, the greater will be your success.

Spring Flowers.

As the days grow longer, and hasten the passing of the cheerless winter season, it is time to feature the flowers of spring. It never pays to do things by halves. If it is right and good business to push the so-called spring flowers, let it be done with all energy. A well planned campaign with all the flowers in the market at this time, each arranged or featured to bring out their best decorative effects, cannot fail to attract attention. Every additional effort above the commonplace gets its reward. Take sweet peas, for example; fill the window with them, arrange color effects in a few of many of the dainty baskets. Tie with appropriate ribbons. Show what attractive table center pieces can be made in rose or shallow flower bowls, with the various colored orchid sweet peas.

A certain percentage of the stock that is carried will be sold to meet the everyday ordinary demand, but when featured and displayed in a way to compel attention, such as is possible with scarcely an additional penny of expense, very gratifying results in new business can be obtained.

Daffodils are now in to be had in quantity and these always have a spring look to them. Flower bowls filled with them and pussy willows and some of the bird or other dish ornaments, are sure to attract attention. If nicely arranged, the artistic effect will add to the price, while both bowls and flowers will sell better together than if standing around separately. The pansy is everybody's favorite; on account of their short stems they require special treatment, but when bound with wet moss their life out of the water is greatly prolonged. Low handled baskets filled with pansies and ferns and some of the smaller roses, have an artistic beauty all their own.

The freesia is another favorite; its graceful sprays and delightful fragrance give it a welcome everywhere.

It arranges beautifully with daffodils or sweet peas and many other flowers. One dozen sprays in a vase with a few ferns, will make as much show as auddled together stock bunch of 25, and sell much more readily. Calendulas are also wonderfully improved over stock of a few years ago. Their shades of yellow and orange are striking in many of the color combinations possible with other flowers.

Yellow and white daisies are essentially spring flowers, dainty in themselves, and give just the right touch to many combinations. Forget-me-nots are flowers of sentiment which have an especial value in all combinations of light pink. Snapdragon, in its several colors of white, yellow and shades of pink and orange, is a host in itself. No stock is now complete without these colors. Mignonette must not be forgotten, as its neutral color is effective with almost anything.

There are many ways of displaying all of these flowers to advantage. From a few sprays to a bunch loosely tied separately, and arranged harmoniously, each a spot of color, in various sized baskets with tins of water from which they can also be sold individually, they are sure to attract favorable attention and comment.

Flowers, beautiful as they are of themselves, are made more attractive and given an added charm with artistic arrangement. Color effects in combination, together with the use of many of the new creations in baskets and vases of the supply houses, all of which are worth a trial, should be used to arouse interest in the spring campaign. Every week should have its feature, something different to attract attention.

The special notices or invitations, calling attention to what is in season, must not be forgotten. Printers' ink is the foundation of many a successful business. Well worded cards or leaflets, sent at frequent intervals, will arouse interest, and finally a compelling desire to see the many beautiful plants and flowers so artfully described. Newspaper advertising is expensive, but with many of the most successful men in the trade, it is considered indispensable. Map out a spring campaign. Do not spread over too much ground. Make a feature of one thing at a time and do it well. It will pay.

Making It Easier for the Other Fellow.

Henry Penn, Boston, Mass., chairman of the publicity committee of the national publicity campaign for flowers of the Society of American Florists, calls attention to the following by an anonymous writer, which illustrates one of the best evidences of the energy which is necessary and which describes the treatment members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery are giving to one another in general for still further success in the F. T. D. movement, so that the recipient when she opens her box of flowers will give vent to the same expression of satisfaction as did the umbrella mender in the narrative:

"One day an old umbrella mender brought his skeleton frames and tinkering tools into the alley of my office. As he sat on a box in the sun, mending the broken and torn umbrella, I noticed that he seemed to take unusual pains, testing the cloth, carefully measuring and strongly sewing the covers.

"You seem extra careful," I remarked.

"Yes," he said, working without looking up; "I try to do good work."

"Your customers would not know the difference until you were gone," I persisted.

"No; I suppose not."

"Do you ever expect to come back?"

"No."

"Then why are you so particular?"

"So that it will be easier for the other fellow—the next one who comes along," he answered, simply.

New York Florists' Club.

Due to delay in mail service occasioned by the recent storms we regret that our account of the unusually interesting meeting of the above organization at which officers were installed was limited to such meager details as were sent by telegraph and which appeared in last week's issue, page 19. The following report of this meeting, together with the address of President Schenck, will doubtless be of interest:

After President Schenck was installed, P. W. Popp, vice-president; C. W. Rickards, treasurer; John Young, secretary, and Peter Duff and Alexander H. Donaldson, trustees, were in turn escorted to the platform and all spoke briefly, thanking the club for the honors conferred and pledged their devotion to the organization.

A committee on the annual banquet was instructed to make a report at the next meeting as to price and hotel selected. As there was a considerable deficit after the dinner last year, it was generally agreed that such dinners should be self-supporting. It was recommended that a publicity committee of the club be appointed with E. C. Vick, of the New York Sun, as chairman.

The following were nominated for membership: Ferdinand Fleischman, 500 Fifth avenue; Ralph Armstrong, Madison avenue and 47th street; Joseph A. Millang, 55 West 26th street; Irving Goldstein, 102 West 28th street; Harry Dierks, 1193 Broadway; Gustav M. Koppel, 2139 Broadway; Arthur Hauschild, 248 West 112th street; Aubrey S. Nash, 55 West 26th street; B. Warendorff, 321 West 94th street; Frank K. Frank, 1561 Third avenue; Eli Futterman, 102 West 28th street; Arthur I. Vesceius and Arthur G. Vesceius, Paterson, N. J.; Henry M. Robinson, Boston, Mass.; Chas. R. Jaeger, Rowayton, Conn.; Bert H. McIlvern, Passaic, N. J.; A. V. D. Snyder, Ridge-wood, N. J.; Ernest Stein and Harry Stein, Warren Point, N. J.; Wm. A. Thurston, Glen Rock, N. J.; Conrad Fetcher, James Smith, Jacob Sprich and Alex. M. Rymer, Paterson, N. J.; Felix Tamagein, Passaic, N. J.; J. Kreutaliger, Elmsford, N. Y.; E. Bonnot, Jersey City, N. J.; William Vert, Greenwich, Conn.

The following were elected to membership: John C. Polykranas, 104 West 28th street; Edward Boylan, with Vaughan's Seed Store; Frank L. Deery, Flushing, N. Y.

Joseph A. Manda, in behalf of his son, Edward A. Manda, a soldier at Camp McClellan, Ala., thanked the club for the Christmas kit sent him. He was recently promoted from private to sergeant and transferred to headquarters. He is a member of the club.

John F. Marsden, Far Rockaway, N. Y., exhibited a pink seedling carnation, named Mrs. John F. Marsden, which was very highly commended and the committee asked that it be shown again.

A complaint was received from the gardeners in the public parks of Brooklyn because the civil service commission has placed them in the class of laborers. Alexander Hogg and other gardeners and florists were present and stated their grievance. The secretary was instructed to take the matter up with the parties concerned.

The following were appointed as the committee on awards for 1918: Jos. Manda, chairman; J. H. Fiesser, Arthur Herrington, Peter Duff, A. Kottmiller, S. G. Milosy and Henry Weston.

Exhibition committee: Chas. W. Knight, Henry C. Riedel, L. T. Rodman, E. W. Rodman and W. A. Rodman.

House Committee: Phil Kessler, Victor Alzen, Alex. H. Donaldson, Henry Hoffman and Hamilton Henry.

Chairman Kessler of the house committee, and President Schenck, were the hosts for the evening and treated the members to a very nice spread.

PRESIDENT SCHENCK'S ADDRESS.

For over 20 years I have enjoyed the pleasure of having been a member of the New York Florists' Club, and when, at the last meeting, you so graciously elected me to be your president for the coming year, I felt that all I had ever done for the club was amply repaid. It shall be my earnest desire to devote all my energy in furthering the interest of the club, to make it bigger, better and more famed than ever before. In this work, I hope to have the co-operation and support of every member, and especially those members who will accept positions on the committees, for on them devolves a great deal of the technical work of the club. In conjunction with them, it should be the work of every member to denounce any attempt they may hear coming from those who decry our business and refer to it as a non-essential. This club should take its stand with other trade bodies and demand the recognition which it is entitled to: First, by virtue of its many millions of dollars invested; second, by the large army of help it employs; and third, by the many by-products and accessories that accrue to make it a vast institution. And, I may add, that had not these astute businessmen, whose money is invested in this business, seen that it was a necessary business, they surely would not have gone into it to the extent they have. We need flowers and all other products that greenhouses produce just the same as the air we breathe.

It is needless for me to recapitulate the many propositions which have been previously brought before the club, but I have some suggestions to make, and if they meet with your approval, I trust favorable action will be taken on them, and if any member present has anything to suggest, or bring before the club, I will deem it a favor if he will do so at this or any other meeting. My object in offering these suggestions is, that every member should give his views and that every item can be thoroughly discussed.

First, that to honor our past president, Charles H. Totty, who is now president of the S. A. F., to bend every energy to increase the membership of the S. A. F. out of our own members, that we will have the proper representation in the S. A. F. that our club, which is the largest of its kind, is entitled to.

Second, that the club pass a resolution giving the president the necessary credentials for representation on the executive board of the S. A. F.

Third, in addition to any members that may be on the national show committee to elect or appoint a member to properly represent this club in an official capacity.

Fourth, to institute a registered headquarters to be either at the secretary's or president's office, or, to have a committee appointed and chairman of that committee's office as headquarters, that all enlisted soldiers connected with members of florists' families can present themselves when in the city or nearby camps, that they can be properly cared for, if necessary; or entertainment given.

Fifth, that a transportation committee be appointed for the coming convention and flower show, which occur simultaneously this year.

Sixth, the publicity campaign, which is now one of the S. A. F.'s most earnest undertakings, and one which we must do our best to further, as we are helping ourselves in this undertaking even more than we realize, and while we may not see any immediate results, a steady pressure will soon show the wisdom of this vast undertaking, and eventually, we will see the advancement and the increase in flower demand appear. In connection with this movement, I recommend that a committee be appointed representing the New York Florists' Club for the purpose of securing subscriptions for this most necessary movement.

Seventh, that all bonds and valuable papers now held by officers of the club shall be placed in a safe deposit vault, that access to them be had only by the proper officer selected by the club, and such officer to be sufficiently bonded, and bonding expenses to be paid by the club.

Eighth, I also recommend that our annual dinner be held as usual. For, of the many features which may be credited to our continued success, I believe the annual dinner toward which a good many of our members and their ladies are always anxiously waiting, and I believe with a judicious committee in charge, it can be held, and held within the proper limit of expense.

Ninth, I want to say that the refreshments as they have been dispensed by our worthy chairman, Mr. Kessler, are a credit to the club, for at that time every reserve is thrown off, everybody gets sociable with everybody and many good and kindly friendships are stimulated, and the inner man always satisfied. By all means, keep up your friendship with the house committee.

Finally, gentlemen, look to your dues. Our secretary, Mr. Young, has mountains of work before him, and he, above all, is best fitted for all this work, and if you keep up to the handle with all your financial obligations, the secretary will be thankful and the club appreciative. I also would suggest that a budget for the year's expenses be created, and trust this will be considered.

Society of American Florists.

EXECUTIVE SESSION AT ST. LOUIS.

The executive committee of the Society of American Florists met at the Hotel Jefferson, St. Louis, Mo., January 21, those in attendance being President Chas. H. Totty, Vice President Jules Bourdet, Secretary John Young, Treasurer J. J. Hess, Washington Representative Wm. F. Gude, R. C. Kerr, ex-officio; George Asmus, chairman national flower show committee; Joseph A. Manda, C. E. Critchell, Charles Schenck, Fred Lautenschlager, Benjamin Hammond, Frank X. Stuppy, Herman Knoble, Henry Penn and A. F. J. Baur.

The morning session was devoted to committee reports, principal among these that of the publicity committee, Henry Penn, of Boston, Mass., the chairman, calling attention to the fact that the 1918 campaign would open with a full page display advertisement in the Saturday Evening Post of February 9, to be followed by others in other magazines of national circulation. The publicity committee was authorized to spend $20,000 between now and the first of June. The afternoon was taken up with other committee reports and adjourned at 6:30 p. m. to meet again at 9:30 the following morning.

At 8:30 p. m. the national flower show committee convened and, as mentioned elsewhere in this issue, it was decided to postpone the 1918 spring show scheduled to be held in St. Louis, April 6-15, on account of unfavorable and uncertain conditions due to the war.

In reconvening at 9:30 Tuesday morning the executive committee took up the recommendation of the national flower show committee to the effect that St. Louis should have the preference in the next flower show in view of the work and special endeavors put into the plans up to this time. It was also decided to hold a large trade display in connection with the convention, April 9-11, at Moolah Temple, St. Louis. The executive committee made a visit to the building and grounds and completed arrangements for the convention and trade display. It was also voted to increase the secretary's salary to $3,600.00 per annum, he to devote his entire time to S. A. F. matters with the exception that he may hold his position as secretary of the New York Florists' Club. The increase in salary is to be met partially with funds from the S. A. F. publicity committee.

Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock the members of the committee were the guests of St. Louis florists at a dinner at the Annex hotel. Messrs. Totty, Young, Gude and Penn were called on and responded in elegant style. Owing to the state fuel administrator's orders, the programme of speakers was curtailed somewhat to permit closing at 10 p. m.

POOR MARKET CONDITIONS CONTINUE.

The market has been in bad shape for so long that it has now become chronic. In a few of the staples such as carnations and narcissi we are well supplied, but roses have been scarce for a long time, the only ones of quality being in the longer grades of Russell and these command holiday prices, certainly a bad condition for the retailer and one that does not tend to improve business. Weather conditions have of course been against the growers but it has also shown the local growers that they are unable to produce enough good stock to supply a reasonable demand under these adverse conditions. Carnations are still equal to all requirements but hold up in price. Paper Whites while plentiful hold up to good figures and move well. Roman hyacinths have shortened up considerably. Orchids are fine but the movement of them is slow. Sweet peas are arriving in good shape and clean up daily. The supply, however, is far short of last year's record. Violets are passed up due to the lack of corsage demand. The quality is excellent and good cleanups are obtainable for funeral work. Fancy ferns are plentiful, as is smilax.

NOTES.

The following were in attendance at the meeting of the executive committee of the S. A. F., held in this city, January 21-22: President C. H. Totty; Secretary John Young; Treasurer J. J. Hess; W. F. Gude, Washington representative; R. C. Kerr, ex-officio; Vice-Pres. J. Bourdet, Joseph A. Manda, C. E. Critchell, Chas. Schenck, Benjamin Hammond, Fred Lautenschlager, Frank X. Stuppy, George Asmus, Herman Knoble, Henry Penn, A. F. J. Baur.

It seems strange that whenever the flower trade comes up for discussion, it is always about the increased cost of production. It seems the retailer is up against a pretty hard proposition himself, what with the increasing cost of doing business and natural decrease in sales. It seems that the most serious factor in the flower business is the retailer, because if he cannot market the product, the grower will have to go out of business whether he has coal or not.

W. A. Rowe says he has reduced the consumption of coal at his greenhouses by letting the temperature drop to 40 degrees at night, and in this way is doing his bit to help the conservation of coal. This means quite a few tons saved in a month's time, besides cutting down his production. The market, of course, does not suffer much from this because he grows stock which is not so scarce.

When the 7:00 p. m. closing order was issued by the state fuel administrator for all classes of merchants, nearly all of the St. Louis retailers immediately complied. A few hardheaded retailers were a bit tardy about complying, and it certainly is not a credit to their business sense or patriotism.

The retail florists' association will hold a special meeting some time this month to elect new officers for the ensuing year and to effect a closer working relationship. All St. Louis retailers should affiliate themselves with this organization and at least find out about the organization.

GOOD TRADE CONDITIONS CONTINUE.

Usually, the first few weeks after the holiday trade is over the market finds itself in a very dull condition. Such is happily not the case in this city. There has been no recession of business since New Years. Business may safely be said to be in a very healthy condition. The very heavy outside call for stock makes this market somewhat bare of roses. There is no poor stock at all to speak of. Short roses are not to be had and there are no prospects of any coming along later. First grade stock is all that is arriving and it is eagerly sought by the retailers every morning. Good American Beauties are bringing $4 to $5 per dozen with not nearly enough to supply the demand. Russell, however, is the great favorite, and at present writing it happens to be in very short supply. Ophelia is very scarce. Red Radiance is the leading red at present. There are no Cecile Brunners to be had. A few Irish Fire Flame and Baby Doll are seen occasionally, but are quickly disposed of. Carnations are scarce and meet with ready sale. Good stock brings $3 per 100 and there is no surplus to be seen anywhere. Just now pink and white are the best sellers, the day of the heavy demand for reds being over. Quite a large lot of poinsettias are still to be seen here and seem to move slowly, their day, like the red carnation, being over. Lily of the valley can be seen everywhere and of very excellent quality. The demand is very strong and it is one of the best sellers at the present time. Orchids, especially cattleyas, are not in oversupply, there being just about enough to go around. Some very good cypripediums are still coming in and are always useful. Freesias are becoming more plentiful and have dropped somewhat in price. The quality was never better and they meet with a strong demand. Violets are arriving in great quantities. The quality is very fine and the outside demand continues to be very heavy. In pot plants, azaleas and cinerarias are the leaders in flowering stock. Very few begonias or cyclamens were left after the holiday trade. Some very fine ericae are to be had also. The first daffodills of the season have appeared, but not enough to supply the demand.

NOTES.

The improvements that have been undertaken by the Art Floral Co. on Powell street are fast nearing completion. The greatly enlarged floor space is proving of great benefit to the firm. The offices, work rooms and basket rooms, etc., are models of modern equipment. When completed, the facilities of this firm for executing orders will not be excelled by any store in the west. Manager V. Matraia has spared no expense to arrange and install every labor-saving device.

Luke Uzick, formerly of the Art Floral Co., has resigned his position with that firm to take that of lieutenant of the guards at the state penitentiary at Folsom. Luke has the best wishes of the trade for success in his new vocation. He was appointed by Governor Stevens. G. N.

Cincinnati.

COLD WEATHER TRYING FACTOR.

During the recent cold period there have been the usual series of delays and in some cases frozen shipments. These conditions, with several embargoes, made the lot of the florists a hard one in numerous instances. However, the supply is fair and sufficient to take care of all needs. Toward the end of last week business became rather slow during the days affected by the coal order. Roses are seen in good supply and the receipts include many choice blooms. Carnations are more plentiful than they have been and can satisfy all demands for them. Sweet peas are fairly numerous and generally prove good property. Easter lilies are also making a good showing and some excellent long and short rubrums are to be had. Narcissi are too plentiful, if anything, as the market is somewhat crowded with them. Embargoes from the south have put a serious crimp in the shipments of Asparagus plumosus and Sprengerii.

NOTES.

C. E. Critchell is in St. Louis attending a meeting of the executive committee of the S. A. F. A large shipment of leucothoe has been received at his establishment.

The trade here in general observed the Monday closing order. Some closed entirely, while others simply filled rush orders which were necessary.

The Cincinnati Cut Flower Exchange has been receiving some excellent double violets from the east.

Visitors: V. H. Thomas, Augusta, Ky.; Robert Groves, Adams, Mass.; Paul Berkowitz, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and M. Reynolds, of M. Rice Co., of the same city. H.

Pittsburgh.

ROSES ONLY SHORT ITEM.

Seasonable stock of all kinds is in good supply with the exception of roses, which are very scarce. This, however, is not unusual at this season. There are plenty of carnations, sweet peas, lilies, Paper Whites, primroses, daffodils, tulips, violets and yellow daisies. Most growers have a full crop of carnations and the quality is unusually fine with prices holding firm at $3 and $4 per 100. With a few bright days the market may become overstocked and prices will then suffer. Sweet peas are arriving in large numbers and the best in quality we have seen at this time of the year. Lilies and Paper Whites are in ample supply to meet all requirements. Daffodils and tulips are now welcome offerings.

Business has been quite good, especially in funeral work, there being little doing in the social world with the exception of a few small weddings. The cold weather is responsible for a very limited call for corsage flowers.

NOTES.

W. H. Rosenbauer, of Sewickley, had a house of primroses and Roman hyacinths freeze up during the cold weather.

The several committees appointed for the coming flower show are working hard and will soon report good progress.

The Ludwig Floral Co. had three trucks out of commission, which hampered their delivery service.

The McCallum Co. is handling fine plants of Primula Malacoides which find ready sale. M.

Buffalo.

RECEIPTS OF STOCK LIMITED.

Buffalo observed its first heatless day and the florists with true patriotism were closed for business except for receiving stock and no sales were made. Telephone orders came in briskly and it kept those in charge busy making explanations, and with one or two instances there was little dissatisfaction. The florists in saving light and heat in the store will help greatly to get coal for the greenhouses and convince the authorities that flowers are in reality a necessity in cheering the sick as nothing else can do. The weather here as in other parts of the country has been exceptionally severe and caused great delay in getting stock. Roses, when they arrive, are good. Carnations, jonquills, freesias, calendulas and sweet peas are among the other arrivals.

NOTES.

One florist visiting another last week, remarked that he had seen 10,000 cars of coal in a railroad yard near this city. In walking through the store, he dropped a few thousand cars and had the store been 50 feet longer, by the time he reached the rear he would not have had enough of the coal left to heat a private home. Even to florists, coal looks big at the present time and imaginations are liable to stretch.

The employees of W. J. Palmer & Son gave a banquet to Mr. Palmer and Professor Lumsden at the Hotel Niagara last week which was a most enjoyable affair, and a pleasant way of extending good wishes to Professor Lumsden, who returns to Cornell University.

W. H. Grever, of Allen street, has a new delivery car and Jerry Brookins of Orchard Park has a new "Cole 8" to carry his stock to this city.

The next regular meeting of the florists' club will be the occasion for the nomination of officers.

BISON.

ROCKFORD, ILL.—H. W. Buckbee reports that he had 20 cars of coal confiscated.

WORCESTER, MASS.—The local fuel commission has ordered all stores to close at 5:30 P. M.; Saturdays at 9:00 P. M., the opening hour being 9:00 A. M.

HOUSTON, TEX.—Charles E. Hogan has been elected treasurer of the florists' club to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Walter Westgate, resigned.

COLUMBIA, TENN.—The Joy Flower Shop, conducted as a branch of the Joy Floral Co.'s establishment of Nashville, has been completely redecorated and is now one of the brightest spots in the business section of this city.

OBITUARY.

Charles Dietz.

Charles Dietz, for many years a prominent grower and leading citizen of North Bergen, N. J., died at his home in that city, after a long and painful illness, January 14, aged 65 years. He was born in North Bergen, his father, the late William Dietz, having been one of the pioneer florists of that section of New Jersey. From boyhood, Charles worked in the greenhouses with his father and acquired wide knowledge of plant growing in its various features which served him well when he became a proprietor. From early manhood he had taken a great interest in public affairs. In 1900 he was elected mayor of North Bergen and was re-elected for 12 years in succession. Previous to his election as mayor, he had served as councilman. In social life he was genial and popular. He had been president of the Central Hill Stearbeckes; was a member of Council 1185 Royal Arcanum, of West Hoboken; the New York and New Jersey Plant Market Association, and the Exempt Firemen's Association of North Bergen. He retired from active business several years ago, turning over his greenhouses to his son-in-law, William Otte. He is survived by a widow, four daughters, two sons, five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. Funeral services were held at the family home on the evening of January 16. His popularity was attested by a great number of beautiful floral tributes from societies, former business associates and personal friends. A. F. F.

James Taylor.

James Taylor, for 25 years a grower and retailer at Mt. Clemens, Mich., died January 4, aged 62 years. The deceased was born in Oxfordshire, England, and came to this country in 1883. He is survived by a widow and one daughter.

Evansville, Ind.

This city has certainly been greatly inconvenienced by the recent snowstorms, with poor prospects of relief from present indications. Coal has been very scarce; for while there is plenty of it near at hand, hauling is the great problem, as we are not prepared for such severe snows. Business was at a standstill during the past week, with no street cars operating for two days and then very poor service till Friday. The Saturday demand was, however, better than usual and the supply was more plentiful in all seasonable stocks.

It is reported that the weight of snow caused one of the houses of Otto Kuebler at Newburg to collapse and the boiler at the Nellie Goodge range gave out as the result of a crack which made it necessary to use stoves and other available means to save the contents.

Walter Blackman, son of Geo. H. Blackman, of the Wm. Blackman Floral Co., has entered the officers' training school at Camp Taylor, near Louisville, Ky. He reports plenty of hard work, but thoroughly enjoys it.

George H. Blackman, who injured his leg in a fall recently, is recovering rapidly, and is now able to put in a full day after he gets to the store.

While it is not believed that anyone is getting more than enough coal to last more than two days, there does not seem to be any suffering.

Colonel J. D. Carmody has been compelled to forego his usual winter visit to Florida this year, his health not being of the best.

THE daily newspapers are giving much prominence to the closing of private greenhouses, in the interest of fuel conservation, by a few wealthy amateurs. These gentlemen, we believe, could do the country more good by using their greenhouses in the production of food crops. The wages thus earned would enable employees to keep their Liberty bonds.

Flower Growing in China.

Professor L. H. Bailey, who has recently returned from a trip through China, writes as follows regarding flower growing in that country:

"I think I have nothing that would interest your readers regarding flower growing in China. I did not give special attention to the subject, instantly. I was much impressed with the Moutan peonies and a few other things, but for the most part flower growing in China did not seem to be though I had my eyes open for it convey highly developed."

New York Flower Show Committee.

A meeting of the above-named committee was held in the Grand Central Palace, New York, January 14. A poster was selected from the many submitted to advertise the show. The committee thought it possible that on account of war conditions, there might be some curtailment of exhibits, but was encouraged by reports of exhibits that will come from places not formerly represented. Secretary Young reported that up to the present, $11,000 worth of space has been sold. It was reported that the ladies of the Red Cross, who, as formerly, will conduct a tea garden, were working hard to make it more attractive this year. The manager of the Grand Central Palace reported that various exhibitions held there this year had done as much business as in previous years. While many of the growers are uneasy about the coal and labor situation, they have pledged themselves to use their best efforts in making the coming show, to be held in the Grand Central Palace, March 14-21, a grand success. A. F. F.

Chicago to Boston.

The Chicago Florists' Club has chosen the New York Central (Lake Shore) Railroad for conveying members and friends to the convention of the American Carnation Society at Boston, Mass., January 30-31, leaving La Salle street station, Chicago, Monday, January 28, at 5:30 p. m., due in Boston the evening preceding the convention at 8:35, affording reasonable margin for possible delays. Friends from the north, west and southwest are invited to join the party at Chicago and others enroute. This train is due at way stations as follows:

Toledo, Monday	11:08 p. m.
Cleveland, Tuesday	2:00 a. m.
Rochester, Tuesday	8:47 a. m.
Syracuse, Tuesday	10:30 a. m.
Albany, Tuesday	1:55 p. m.

The fare each way is $23.10, plus $1.85 war tax. Pullman fares are: Lower berth $5.50, war tax 55 cents; upper berth $4.40, war tax 44 cents. It is urgently necessary, that on account of congested traffic, reservations be made at once by addressing W. C. Hazard, City Passenger Agent, 100 South Clark street, Chicago; telephone Randolph 5300.

Florists' Day at Ames.

Tuesday, January 29, is to be a red letter day for the florists of Iowa. This day is to be known as "Florists' Day" and is scheduled as one of the features of the annual winter short course and convention week, which is to be held at the Iowa State College, Ames, January 28-February 2. The conference will convene promptly at 10:00 in the plant laboratory building, which is adjacent to the greenhouses.

The purpose of this conference is to consider how florists can meet war conditions, and with this in mind speakers have been secured and a programme arranged which will be of real service. It is not the intention to have a formal programme, but rather to afford an opportunity for florists to get together and discuss their problems under the leadership of men of prominence who will present their views upon such timely subjects as:

10:00 A. M.—"The Relation of the War to the Florists' Business and How an Adjustment to Present Conditions May be Made," J. C. Vaughan, Chicago.

1:30 P. M.—"Problems of Garden Club Leaders," Miss Bardwell, State Club Leader. "How the Florist Can Help the Garden Movement," Arthur Smith, Boone, Ia.

2:00 P. M.—"The Florists' Part in Increasing Food Production," J. S. Wilson, Des Moines.

3:00 P. M.—"Selling Problems," Geo. Asmus, Chicago.

4:30 P. M.—"Systematizing for the Grower," Joseph Hill, Richmond, Ind.

After a presentation of the subject by the leader, a general discussion will be in order. In the course of the conference, such vital problems as the coal question, the express situation, how to combat the tendency to regard flowers as non-essentials, how much glass to devote to food crops and other matters of moment will come up. It will be a closed conference, except, from 1:30 to 2:00, when those attending the club leaders' conference, will be invited in for the purpose of discussing some of their problems with the florists, consequently there will be an opportunity for a free and open discussion of all matters of vital interest to the craft.

Professor A. S. Thurston, of the college, wishes to extend a most cordial invitation to every florist to attend this war time conference. This invitation is not limited to the florists of Iowa alone, but it is also extended to the florists in neighboring states. It is sincerely hoped that there may be a goodly representation of florists from the adjoining states so that the welfare of the florists' business in the middle west may receive due consideration. Now, as never before, are the florists realizing that "In union there is strength," and with the situation becoming more foreboding every day, the florists will need all the strength they can gather to keep their heads above water and maintain the industry by protecting it from serious and what-might-be vital injury. The Iowa florists would be glad to have delegates from the various florists' societies in this section convene with their society at this conference for a joint consideration of the situation.

Everyone who can possibly do so should attend. Make an effort to be present at what we hope will be one of the most important florists' meetings ever held in this section of the United States. Bring your wife along. She will be interested in the programme for women put on by the home economics division of the college.

Tennessee State Florists' Association.

The thirteenth annual meeting of the Tennessee State Florists' Association in conjunction with the state nurserymen's, horticultural and beekeepers' organizations, announcement of which was made in our issue of January 19, page 19, will be held at Nashville, January 29-February 1, with headquarters at the Hermitage hotel. The following interesting programme has been prepared in addition to a splendid display of cut flowers and plants which will be open to the public: "The Floral Outlook," by Thos. H. Joy, Nashville; "New Roses," by Sam Crowell, Rose-acres, Tenn.; "The Grower and the Buyer," by Miss Mary B. McGowan, Nashville.

Consequently Our Quality and Quantity Are The Same As Usual.

We are now cutting a very choice lot of stock. The shipping difficulties are gradually being improved. However, all shipments have to be delivered by us to the express freight houses an hour before train time. As there are no pick up wagons running; we are doing everything possible to get orders off on time and customers should allow for some delay. Get your order in early. We spare no expense to give you the best service possible and this coupled with our choice grade of stock will surely prove satisfactorily.

All Flowers will be charged at regular market prices and stock not grown by us will be bought on the market for you.

Coal Situation at Chicago.

At a meeting of the growers of Chicago and vicinity, held at the office of George Reinberg in this city, January 19, a committee was appointed consisting of Peter Reinberg, chairman, August F. Poehlmann and C. L. Washburn, to call upon the fuel administrator regarding the coal situation. Louis Wittbold and George Reinberg were responsible for calling the meeting, while to Allie Zech belongs the credit for bringing the growers together. Guy French acting as chairman. The following resolution was drawn up:

"We, the undersigned growers of Chicago, are in a critical position if coal consigned to us is diverted to other channels. We ask the protection of your office and hope you will allow cars in transit to be delivered to their destination. As most of us are in a position where the diversion of one car might mean ruination of our business, we trust this appeal will be given immediate consideration. We are keeping our temperature down to the lowest point possible without freezing and many of us have for some time shut down houses that could be spared without serious loss."

The committee called on the fuel administrator and was advised that no shipments would be confiscated that are consigned to florists. The committee also recommended that E. A. PETER REINBERG, Chairman.
AUGUST F. POEHLMANN.
C. L. WASHBURN.

Any grower requiring coal immediately to save his crops from freezing should make application for same at once. All requests should be accompanied with a letter from each applicant's bank to the state fuel administrator stating that there is on deposit $200 on each car of coal, together with complete shipping directions. Checks are not acceptable, even though certified, for each buyer will be billed direct and all the fuel administration requires to know is that the account is guaranteed. Growers are requested to help out their neighbors in every way possible and not depend entirely upon the fuel administrator for their supply, but to make every effort to secure his needs from his dealer as before. If any coal is in transit and should arrive before the fuel administration makes delivery, the committee should be notified immediately so as to be able to explain the situation if called upon to do so. All should remember that the fuel administration is doing everything possible under very trying conditions to assist the grower, and that application for coal should not be made unless it is absolutely necessary. All communications should be sent direct to E. A. Ollinger, care of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, 440 South Dearborn street, Chicago, who was appointed by the committee consisting of Peter Reinberg, chairman, C. L. Washburn and August F. Poehlmann, to represent all the growers before the fuel administrator.

rect to remain open all day but department stores were closed, their request to remain open and run shorter hours on other days having been refused. All traction systems were operated upon a strictly holiday basis, including surface and elevated street car lines and steam road's suburban passenger service. The great majority of the loop office buildings had some offices heated but their elevator service was of the holiday variety. Special exemptions were made for offices occupied by physicians, transportation and coal concerns, war munition companies as well as bank and trust companies. A further interpretation of the order affecting manufacturers who have closed for the five-day period was received from Washington. It had to do with the makers of surgical instruments and dressings, serums, vaccines and medicines. Only those plants filling army and navy orders were exempt. It is estimated that the wage loss resulting from the holiday Mondays will approximate $3,500,000. Practically all the local retail stores closed for the day and the same holds true for the wholesale houses, who all agreed not to make any shipments to out-of-town points so as to conform to the order. The principal object of the grower at present is to secure enough coal to keep his plants from freezing and it is surprising to learn how low many of them are. Some relief has already been received from the Cook county fuel administrator as a result of the meeting of the growers held Saturday, December 19. The present condition is very serious and while the outlook is more encouraging every grower should help out his neighbor wherever possible, for the situation is gradually readjusting itself and another week or 10 days will probably find a great change for the better. It is rather difficult to say much in regard to the market situation as far as stock is concerned, under the unsettled conditions, for all the growers are holding down their temperature as much as possible to save fuel to pull them through, consequently, while there appears to be a good supply on hand at present, it would not be at all surprising to find a shortage in a few days.

NOTES.

H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, Can., with Mrs. Philpott and her sister, Miss Pilcher, also of Winnipeg, were in the city last week. The ladies left shortly after their arrival here for California, where Mrs. Philpott will remain for some time for the benefit of her health.

Vaughan's Seed Store brought in a carload of southern grown bulbs through the Cincinnati blizzard, after a week's trip with a man and an oil stove.

C. L. Washburn says that Bassett & Washburn received several cars of coal this week, which will help carry them through considerably during the present shortage.

A. Miller of the American Bulb Co. is back from an eastern business trip.

Allie J. Zech reports trade as good at Zech & Mann's store under the present existing conditions with a strong demand from out-of-town points. He is to be congratulated in rounding up such a large number of growers in so short a time as were present at the meeting held at George Reinberg's store Saturday, January 19.

Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s supply department is making a strong bid for St. Valentine day trade, especially as far as supplies are concerned. Their line is larger than ever this season and includes the popular Valentine boxes as well as many other varieties for this occasion.

Felix Reichling reports that January 22 was a big shipping day at Peter Reinberg's store, which he attributes to the fact that no stock was shipped out the previous Monday, when practically all the wholesale houses were closed for the day.

Percy Jones, Inc., has no complaint to make in regard to business. Manager Van Gelder is optimistic in regard to the future, notwithstanding the unsettled condition at present, particularly in regard to the coal situation.

J. A. Budlong has been helping out several growers with coal the past week, which kept them from losing their entire crops, notwithstanding the fact that they have not got any too much in hand for their own place.

J. L. Raske, the West Jackson boulevard florist, was relieved of a diamond ring, currency and several checks one day the past week by a bandit at the point of a pistol.

GOOD SUPPLY MOVES OUT DAILY.

Local trade still holds up well and a large amount of stock is disposed of daily, funeral work being heavy, due to an unusually high death rate. Decorations have also been good factors in the past week's demand as a result of the implement and auto show. There were also a number of parties and weddings. The demand for corsages is also especially brisk. Good stock in roses and carnations continues scarce but prospects for the latter look better, although they are still high in price. Stevia, narcissi, sweet peas, lilies and violets are plentiful and are moving well.

NOTES.

T. J. Noll & Co. handled good supplies of roses, carnations, lilies, sweet peas and other stocks during the past week. A few arriving shipments came in freezing but the majority of outgoing orders went through all right.

W. L. Rock Flower Co. reports cut stock coming in fairly well but not as good as usual, owing to the cloudy weather. Blooming plants are moving well and funeral orders are numerous.

W. J. Barnes had several good decorations for show week, funeral and hospital work has also been heavy at this establishment. He is commencing to cut carnations at present.

Arthur Newell is well satisfied with business conditions. He anticipates another good year. The force here is busy with funeral and hospital orders.

H. Kusik & Co. report stock scarce but very good in quality and easily disposed of, especially fine home-grown Russell and Ophelia roses.

Bob McGrail reports blooming plants moving well with a big increase in funeral orders and hospital flowers.

SEVERE WEATHER; TRADE AT STANDSTILL.

Following the second severe blizzard, January 12, which again demoralized traffic of all kinds, we have had severe cold weather, the thermometer hovering around the zero point during mid-day to again drop way down before sunrise next morning. Naturally, the shipping business was at a standstill and the local demand not much better; all business was extremely dull, due to the deep snow—everybody was shoveling. The daily cut of roses is still light. The supply of carnations is adequate for all demands; the number of splits is on the increase, and those of the brighter shades hung fire. Paper Whites are abundant. While violets are not coming in any too heavily, the demand for these has slackened up considerably. Every grower who has sweet peas is cutting now, and they move well.

NOTES.

The new fuel law is being observed by the wholesale houses in closing shop at noon on Mondays. The retailers, we understand, open long enough to get out the orders for the day. The writer has been informed that the wholesale houses are only allowed to sell perishable stock on Monday, so the retailers must put in their orders in advance in case their supply runs low.

Some of the growers in this vicinity are running low on coal but as they have contracts no immediate danger is looked for. Hugo Locker & Sons at Wauwatosa had only enough fuel on hand to last twenty-four hours at the time of the second blizzard, but with extra efforts their coal man came to the rescue.

Some frozen stock reached this market during last week.

EXTREME WEATHER AND LIGHT DEMAND.

Trade conditions fall short of being satisfactory. There is a sag in the social demand. Shipped-in stock is high and receipts uncertain. The extreme weather brings added care and expense to both growers and dealers to prevent loss. Roses and sweet peas are two staples which show a scarcity. Carnations are in good volume and quality. Jonquils and Roman hyacinths are in favor with consumers. Local growers for the trade are finding a ready market with florists at advancing prices.

NOTES.

Scarcity and high price of stock caused local florists to pass up what would have ordinarily been regarded as a fine advertising opportunity. They were solicited to take part in a builders' exposition under the auspices of the Columbus Builders' Exchange, at the Ohio state fair grounds, January 23-February 3. The exhibition, which will have displays from all over the country, will show model homes with outdoor shrubbery. The local florists' organization, after meeting with the management, decided that the expense and risk at this time would be too great.

Winters & Kramer, one of the largest firms among local wholesaler growers, have suffered the loss by freezing of their sweet peas and carnations, to which a six-acre plant near Delaware was devoted. The damage will run between $3,000 and $4,000. The misfortune followed that of the burning of a residence at this place a few weeks ago. Another range conducted by this firm is located at North Broadway.

A report of President Hottes, of the florists' association, who was sent to Washington at the expense of that body to make an appeal to Fuel Administrator Garfield on behalf of the florists' interests, states that no definite promises were secured. The extent of the satisfaction given him was the administration board would do the best it could. J.

BUSINESS IS SATISFACTORY.

Trade during the past week has been good and all seasonable stock continues plentiful. Prices seem to hold steady, with no fluctuation. There have been several good sized decorations calling for good supplies of flowers. Easter lilies are of good quality and sell well. Daffodils are coming in heavy but there is not a great demand for them. Carnations are good and move at from $3 to $4 per 100 with roses going at from $6 to $15 for like quantities. The demand for violets is not up to that of former years.

The order of the fuel administrator has not hit the local florists as yet, but many of them are burning oil and wood in place of coal.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

ROSES SCARCE AND HIGH IN PRICE.

To open, or not to open, was the question uppermost in the minds of the various branches of the trade, when on Thursday last the sound of the big gun fired in Washington reverberated through the land. There were many conferences, in which the whole subject was rolled over and over and discussed from every point of view. Finally, it appeared to be decided that from the nature of the business, it was necessary to burn coal. Some of the trade even consulted counsel, and were advised that under the ruling they could use the coal necessary to protect their stock, and transact whatever business was possible under these conditions. Business was conducted as usual on Friday and Saturday with a fair demand for all kinds of stock. Roses are very scarce, particularly those of shorter or medium length of stem. All grades are higher in price, long American Beauties reaching $7.50 per dozen. Carnations are of good quality, but the supply exceeds the demand, with the inevitable result. Easter lilies are a great staple—the public never seem to tire of them. Callas are in good demand, actually bringing $2 per dozen. Sweet peas sell as well as anything and bring normal prices for the season. The quality is fine. Snapdragons are in good supply and move fairly well. Excellent mignonette is seen, but for some reason, moves slowly. Cattleyas and cypripediums are very draggy, with gardenias even less in demand. All kinds of greens sell up close, hardy dagger ferns moving especially well. The condition of market values as a whole is, however, far from satisfactory; prices are on an average from 20 to 25 percent lower than last year. This is not due to lack of demand, as many of the local stores are doing quite as well, or even better, than last season, but the inadequate express facilities have so interfered with the large outside trade built up by the commission houses, that prices cannot be maintained, and the entire loss falls on the grower, which, in addition to his greatly added expenses of coal and labor, must indeed be hard to bear.

WHAT THE WHOLESALE SAYS.

Leo Niessen, in speaking of business conditions, said that with adequate shipping facilities in which deliveries on time to more or less distant points were reasonably certain, there would be a demand for all classes of stock at greatly increased prices. Edward Reid, who has a large southern trade, speaks in much the same vein, serving the old customers satisfactorily and developing new business being almost impossible under present conditions. High grade carnations, Maryland roses, cattleyas and lily of the valley are features here.

The Jos. Heacock Co. finds express conditions to New York much improved. Parcel post for all 20 to 30-pound packages has been found very satisfactory. Killarneys are an important item of their rose stock at this time of scarcity.

"We have seen business a whole lot worse," is the report of the Berger Garden" was a fine treatise given in language that all home gardeners could understand. He deprecated the idea of planting flowerbeds with vegetables, saying that flowers were food for the soul and as necessary as material for the support of the body. There was a good attendance and the speaker was heartily applauded.

The Robert Craig Co. at 49th and Market streets have closed a range of eight houses which are heated by the same boiler. Part of the stock has been transferred to other houses here, and the balance to Norwood. This is done to save coal which was getting low at the old plant. The Norwood branch is fairly well supplied and expects to hold out until spring.

A traveling salesman for one of the wholesale supply houses had his sample grip stolen one day last week while on the train to Washington. Later the thief left it in a boarding house in that city. Its contents revealed the ownership and it was returned intact to the firm.

Primula malacoides are being handled in large quantities by the S. S. Pennock Co. Manager Liggett, of the plant department, declares this to be the easiest of all blooming plants to transport.

A visit to the large flower shops found them observing Monday as a holiday; open in the forenoon long enough to get out orders, and then closing for the balance of the day. This appeared to be the method adopted by almost all the retailers, who, although at first thought light of it, later believed that all were to close and did so as a matter of patriotism. K.

All retail florists of this city will adopt the nine-hour day as suggested by the state council of defense. The stores will open at 9 a. m. and close at 7 p. m.. Saturdays included, and at 1 p. m. on Sundays, with the exception of holidays and at Easter, when their hours for the week preceding will be arranged to suit the store's requirements by the owners.

Local florists have joined the Seattle Retail Florists' Association, the officers being as follows: W. D. Desmond, president; Palmer Rosaia, vice-president; F. H. Rowe, secretary-treasurer. The trustees are Allen Beal, John Holze and E. R. Peterson. Several committees have been named with the hope of putting the florists of this city on the map.

ROSE SUPPLY NOTICEABLY LIMITED.

The demand in the wholesale district during the past week was but little if any heavier than during the preceding week, but there was quite a flurry in roses, with advancing prices. A retail florist cannot do business without roses, and the supply, due doubtless to the recent cold spell, has greatly fallen off. This was as noticeable in American Beauties as in the other varieties. Special American Beauties are now selling at the rate of $50 per 100. In tea roses, No. 1's are running at from $5 to $6 per 100; other grades are up in proportion with a strong probability of higher prices. There is an abundance of carnations, moving slowly at $2 and $3 per 100, with $4 for a few fancies. Paper White narcissus continues in a glut. Lilies are plentiful at from four to six cents per flower. Cattleyas are slow at 40 cents per flower for specials. Gardenias are also slow, and it is hard to fix prices, for there are too many, and a great variation in quality. Two to three dollars per dozen for the best are about the correct figures. Sweet peas are plentiful and fine stock is going at $2 per 100. There is a movement in yellow narcissi at fair prices. All the violet stocks move slowly, they being 40 cents per 100 for the best. It is understood that the closing order of the fuel administrator exempts flower stores, but some of the florists are wondering what effect five days of idleness for hundreds of thousands of men and women will have on the business. In this city, at least, it is pretty sure to make plenty of business for the doctors, as anxiety and insufficient heat and food are sure to cause more sickness, and for a month the city has been ravaged by pneumonia. The weather for the past week has been milder, with one heavy rain-storm. In one respect, we are fortunate. No snow has fallen to obstruct traffic, and the old snow has been partly washed away by the rain. It is hoped that under the more favorable weather conditions, enough coal will be brought into the city to prepare the people for another freeze, which is likely to come at any time.

January 21.—This being "heatless Monday," there is not much business. There have been so many confusing statements relating to the order of the fuel administrator that some florists, as well as other business men, have been at a loss to know just what they should do. The final understanding is that wholesale and retail florists are not exempt and they are obeying the order. The florists who are located in buildings, used exclusively for business purposes, may have some of their stock frozen, as heat is entirely cut off in such buildings and the temperature dropped to near zero last night, with more cold weather expected. A few stores are located where there are living apartments overhead, and as the pipes go through their stores they cannot be cut off from heat. It is understood that the use of oil stoves has been forbidden. All classes, as a rule, are loyally obeying the order.

NOTES.

Chris. Zervakos, a prominent and well-established retail florist of this city, just escaped getting on the old bachelor list by getting married, January 10. The bride was Miss Margaret Stratopoula, and the ceremony was performed at the Greek church in Brooklyn. Nicholas J. Lales, another popular retailer, was best man and Miss Ida Vreeland, of Athenia, N. J., and Miss Cucunara, of Brooklyn, were bridesmaids. After the ceremony, the family and guests were taken to New York, in automobiles, to the Athens hotel, where the reception was held and dinner served to 150 guests. The happy couple are now enjoying their honeymoon at the popular winter resort of Lakewood, N. J.

The Horticultural Society of New York held an exhibition at the American Museum of Natural History January 19-20. Doubtless, on account of the recent severe weather, there were but few exhibitors. Mrs. J. C. Brady, Gladstone, N. J., (J. G. Walker, Gr.) made good exhibits in carnations and buddleias and took all the first prizes. D. E. Oppenheim, Yonkers, N. Y., (A. McDonald, Gr.) took second prizes in carnations.

President Totty, of the Society of American Florists; President Schenck, of the Florists' Club; Secretary Young, and Joseph A. Manda, director, left for St. Louis on the afternoon of January 19 to attend the meeting of the board of directors of the S. A. F., January 21. After the meeting, Joseph A. Manda will go to Camp McClellan, Ala., to visit his son, Edward A. Manda, who is a sergeant, stationed at camp headquarters.

In his annual report to the florists' club, January 14, Secretary Young showed the profits to the club from the New York flower shows. In 1915, the club's share are $2,297; in 1916, $4,041; in 1917, $3,821. Regardless of the fact that during the past year the club disbursed over $5,000, it has on hand a comfortable balance of $17,000.

Myer, of Madison avenue and 58th street, has recently had several fine dinner decorations at the Plaza hotel, where he conducts the flower department. One of these was for a dinner given by a Japanese society, in which the Japanese flag, worked in point-settias, was the feature of the decoration.

S. J. Kracke, of the retail firm of Kracke & Emmanuel, 3613 Broadway, who is with the colors at Camp Upton, was home on a short leave at New Years. He has been transferred to the medical corps and is now on duty at the base hospital.

The sympathy of the trade goes out to John Schneider, of Astoria, president of the Cut Flower Exchange, whose wife died January 20, after an illness of one week of pneumonia. Besides her husband, she is survived by several children.

F. J. Freund, who is a fine musician as well as a retail florist, has recently removed to a nice new store at 976 Second avenue. Maurice Schoenholz, formerly of the Hotel McAlpin flower department, is his store manager.

The upward movement in roses has made business quite lively at the store of H. E. Froment, 148 West 28th street, who handles the entire product from the two ranges of L. B. Coddington of Murray Hill, N. J.

The New York Florists' Club will remove from its present quarters in the Grand Opera House building, if a suitable place of meeting can be found. A committee was appointed at the last meeting to look up a hall.

Since A. M. Henshaw joined the colors as a lieutenant in the naval reserve, the business of the Henshaw Floral Co. has been ably conducted by Paul A.

Rigo, as manager, and F. R. Martin as bookkeeper and cashier.

A. Hanig, the well known Brooklyn buyer, who was for a time with Joseph Trepel, has returned to his old love and is now buying for C. C. Trepel and Herman Bershad, who do business as Trepel & Bershad.

Malandre Brothers, Broadway and 72d street, are showing neat features in pans of yellow and pink tulips in baskets, handsomely decorated. Other good features are baskets of heather and hyacinths.

The proprietors of the Rowayton, Conn., greenhouses have been good samaritans to their neighbors during the cold weather. They had plenty of coal and helped those in want.

With having a lot of oratorical bouquets thrown at him, and a proposed raise in salary at the last club meeting, Secretary Young should be feeling reasonably cheerful.

George Vock, in the rooms of the New York Cut Flower Co., is handling good carnations from the ranges of Frank Abrams and Julius Chevally, of Blue Point, L. I.

At the store of David Clarke's Sons, Broadway and 75th streets, we have recently noticed fine window displays of buddleias, snapdragons and other choice flowers.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-sixth annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 18-20, 1918.

VISITED Chicago: John T. Buckbee, Rockford.

THE Seed Reporter says the canning interests are short 26,000 bushels of sweet corn seed.

VENTURA, CALIF., growers have not yet made contract prices for growing pole and lima beans of 1918 crop.

THE acreage of Sacramento valley seed growing districts is being rapidly taken up with plantings for 1918 crops.

WITH present express delays and near embargo many non-perishable items are being forwarded by parcel post by seedsmen and others.

THE New Amsterdam, according to latest reports, is still at Rotterdam. Her freight includes 3,000 cases of bulbs and 4,000 cases of plants.

EVANSVILLE, IND.—William H. Small is reported making rapid recovery, and weather permitting, expects to be able to leave the hospital at an early date.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—James Vick's Sons, on account of the addition being made to the Alliance bank, will be forced to move from their location on Stone street.

ROCKFORD, ILL.—R. H. Shumway reports business somewhat behind last year's, due to late mailing of catalogues. Orders are now coming in at the rate of 500 per day and they are larger than normal.

NEW YORK permits to ship east bound freight will not be granted by the freight traffic committee until the 28,000 cars now en route to New York are received and discharged. It may take until February 1 to do this.

CINCINNATI, O., January 20.—J. Chas. McCullough returned today with three brace of wild geese in his game bag, from the North Sacramento rice fields. He will leave with Mrs. McCullough for his Palm Beach home, Thursday.

GRASS SEEDS.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade January 23 were as follows: Timothy, $6.00 to $8.50 per 100 pounds; clover, at Toledo, $20.00 to $31.00 per 100 pounds, clover advancing $3.00 since last week.

WHILE Chicago seed stores with counter trade are following the Monday closing rules, all employees, as far as possible, are kept at package and bulk seed work to be ready for filling southern orders now arriving. The Seed Trade War Service Committee advise no delay in preparedness for spring planting.

ONION SETS in the Chicago district have been moving in carloads despite the severe weather and snow blockade. A man and stove should go with each carload to points where the temperature is safe. One car took five days to reach Kansas City. Some dealers are sending large samples for approval before moving cars. Whites are scarce and inferior.

Seed Corn Resolution.

At the meeting of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association, held in Chicago at the Hotel Sherman, January 4-5, the following resolution was adopted:

Whereas, an alarming shortage exists in seed corn throughout the principal corn belt; this state of shortage having been brought about by failure of last year's crop to mature, and

Whereas, large quantities of seed which had been saved have been ruined by recent severe freezing, and

Whereas, this state of shortage may severely affect our next year's corn crop unless extraordinary precautions are used; be it

Resolved, That the secretary of agriculture be requested to demand that every seller of seed corn shall attach to the container of such corn a tag showing the state in which such corn was grown; also the percentage of germination and the date on which germination test was made; excepting, however, that if corn is to be used for fodder purposes, then the tag shall give germination and date and state for fodder purposes.

Transportation, Prices and Licenses.

Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass., counsel for the American Seed Trade Association, sends the following under date of January 19, referring to the latest developments regarding transportation, price fixing and export licenses:

"The transportation of seed supplies is exempted in official classification territory by order of A. H. Smith, assistant director-general of railroads, January 10. Both field and garden seeds are included as in orders in previous years. Director McAdoo divided the remainder of the country into southern and western departments, January 19, appointing his assistant in each. Assurance has been given that similar exemption orders issued in these territories stop as the result of a conference at Washington, January 14.

"The federal grain corporation has withdrawn the regulations fixing the prices of seed wheat and rye sold by seedsmen, but retains that relating to grain elevators if wheat is for seeding purposes. The matter of price fixing for clover has been held in abeyance. It is doubtful if there will be any government regulation affecting prices of vegetable seeds.

"Export licenses for seeds to northern neutral countries will doubtless be denied by the war board on the recommendation of the department of agriculture and seedsmen's committee, except in rare cases where licenses for normal quantities to such countries may be approved."

Sugar Beet Seed Shortage.

In a recent issue of the bulletin published by the American Sugar Refining Co., an estimate based upon government reports puts the amount of sugar beet seed produced in this country last year as barely sufficient to plant half the acreage of the normal crop in this country.

From another source comes the information that manufacturers of beet sugar have been compelled, because of competition of government-made wheat prices to agree on a price of $9.75 per ton for beets to farmers. Some growers are planning to put in wheat at $2 per bushel in preference to beets at the above price. It is also reported in one section acreage has been so reduced that refining plants will operate to only 75 per cent capacity next season.

Cuban planters are beginning to fear that their 1917 production, which was greatly increased over normal planting at the request of the international sugar committee, may not be taken off their hands and they may turn to the cultivation of garden truck. The Cuban government estimates the present crop at 3,500,000 bags.

Supreme Court Favors Shippers.

Washington, D. C., January 21.—A ruling of lower federal courts that shippers awarded reparation by the interstate commerce commission for freight overcharges may recover the excess without proving actual damages or that they had not shifted the extra burden to consumers was today sustained and put into operation by the Supreme court.

Corn and Clover Seed Price Fixing.

A meeting of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association will be held at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, January 25. It has been called in compliance with the request of the government for the association to give its advice as to the desirability of fixing the price of corn and clover seed.

Colorado Notes.

The grand champion ear of corn at the recent corn show held in Longmont brought $7.44, the highest price ever paid for a single ear in the Centennial state. Shelby Holton, aged 14 years, of Lyons, was declared the prize winner. Six half-bushel crates belonging to the boy, similar in variety, brought a total of $18.75.

The seed laboratory of the Colorado Agricultural College will have an exhibit at the live stock show to be held in Denver the week of January 21. An invitation is extended those who wish to do so to bring seeds to those in charge of the Denver exhibit and have them tested for purity and germination.

Experiments in growing sugar beet seed have been so successful that last year's seed production is believed sufficient to meet all demands.

The Jerome B. Rice Seed Company of Cambridge, N. Y., is trying to contract for 600 acres of squash seed in the Rocky Ford district.

The Emplie Packing Company, of Longmont, is offering increased prices to growers for pea and bean acreage for the coming season.

W. E. M.

New York Seed Trade.

The seed trade district is fairly well thawed out and is as cheerful as can be expected, considering the great shortage of seed corn, peas, beans and other seeds.

At Weeber & Don's we have noticed fine ears of yellow corn and it was stated that they will be fairly well supplied. W. R. Smith, for many years with Peter Henderson & Co., is now an active man with Weeber & Don.

F. Rynveld & Sons are now finely located on the ground floor of the new Underwood building on Vesey street, just opposite the MacNiff Horticultural Co. They are strictly wholesalers in seeds and bulbs.

William M. Hunt & Co., at 37 Warren street, are up stairs, but are easily reached. They have an entire floor, well fitted up with seed cases, their office being in the front.

Vegetable Plant Sales.

There is little doubt that the demand for plants this spring will be as keen as ever. While some home gardeners may have become discouraged, others have learned by last year's experience and will do better this year. There is a class of gardeners who would discourage the sale of plants to amateurs, claiming such a practice being a direct damage to the market gardener. This view is not well founded, as in practice we find that a demand will generally be met somehow; that is, if we do not supply these plants some one else will. Then there is the enormous advertising value the vegetable business has obtained through this home-garden movement. Thousands of people have gardened and eventually consumed vegetables who were once indifferent. We believe that eventually this garden movement will be a benefit rather than a damage to us.

One factor will be the seed supply this year. All kinds of seeds will be scarce and high in price, hence an early effort must be made to get supplies. We have often repeated in these columns that no greater mistake can be made by the grower of plants than to offer novelties and too many varieties; it is much better to offer a few staple varieties, have them in quantity and of good size. We herewith offer a list such as we use ourselves and have found this to cover the needs:

Cabbage—Early Jersey Wakefield, Copenhagen Market, Glory of Enkhuiszen.

Cauliflower—Early Erfurt, Snowball, Dry Weather.

Lettuce—Grand Rapids, Black Seeded Simpson (for leaf-lettuce), May King and Big Boston for head Lettuce. Note: There is a growing demand for lettuce plants early in the spring.

Tomato—Bonny Best, John Baer, Stone, for scarlet; Beauty, Detroit, Ponderosa, for pink. Note: We do not produce Earliana for home use, as it is too short lived. We find almost 50 per cent of our trade demands Ponderosa.

Pepper—Ruby King, Chinese Giant, for sweet.

Egg Plant—Black Beauty. Note: Demand for egg plant is very slow.

Celery—White Plume, Golden Self Blanching, Giant Paschal. Note: Home gardeners are little interested in celery, hence not much demand.

Sweet Potatoes—In some sections of this country there is a large demand for sweet potato plants, which can be turned to good profit, as they are easily grown.

As a rule, home gardeners are much more impatient than market growers. They are more willing to take a risk, hence should be supplied early, and it is best to keep up a succession, as space and labor can be used to better advantage. For instance, our active demand for tomato plants covers fully six weeks.

MARKETMAN.

Vegetable Plants For Home Gardens.

Joseph Kift, West Chester, Pa., has long grown vegetable plants to supply the demand of home gardens. Last year, owing to the newspaper publicity, he woke up to the possibilities and raised all of the popular vegetable plants in quantity. The stock met with a ready sale, augmented considerably by liberal advertising in the county papers, which brought people for miles around. Tomato, egg plant and pepper were grown in pots and flats in the houses and also in frames outside. Additional varieties were beet, lettuce, early and late cabbage and celery.

The report of the entire loss of plants in 15 greenhouses from frost on January 4 was much exaggerated.

ated. Palms and other plants in two houses are almost a total loss, but the stock in most of the others was saved although the thermometer got as low as 30 degrees. The heating was by steam from a central station, which in extreme cold weather failed to keep up sufficient pressure. The company is looked to to make good the loss.

Vegetable Plants for Spring Sales.

For a number of years past the Floracraft Gardens at Moorestown, N. J., have made a specialty of vegetable plants as a catch crop to fill in after Easter. Their success in this line has compelled an ever-increasing stock until the business has assumed large proportions. Their output for spring of 1917 was 60,000 tomatoes, 20,000 egg plant in 3-inch pots, and 15,000 peppers in 2½-inch pots. They commence to sow seed about March 20, following with additional batches every week until the middle of April.

Ten truly marvelous acquisitions, introducing new tones of color and showing the highest development in form and habit.

Carmine Beauty. Deep bright carmine flowers, freely produced high above the heavy dark-green foliage which has a narrow red margin. The flowers, while not as large as those of Olympic, are of a much brighter and more pleasing tone. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 75 cts. each; \$7.50 per doz.

Cheerfulness. No more appropriate name could be given to this brilliant novelty. Its beautiful bright fire-red or deep orange flowers appear early and continue without interruption until frost. Add to the prevailing color a golden border and center with each petal flaked carmine-crimson and you may form some conception of this fascinating variety with its erect stems always topped with clusters of cheerful color held high above the foliage. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 35 cts. each; \$3.50 per doz.

Cloth of Gold. A very attractive dwarf, compact, growing, free-flowering golden yellow. 3 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Dazzler. Time and again the past season the dark green foliage of this variety has been hidden beneath the mass of clusters of deep fire-red flowers. The intensity of coloring and freedom of blooming coupled with compact habit, make this variety the peer of the best for bedding purposes. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 35 cts. each; \$3.50 per doz.

Golden Eagle. A wonderfully intense golden-yellow. Very free upright grower. The large flowers are produced in great clusters well above the foliage. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 50 cts. each; \$5.00 per doz.

Harmony. Great clusters of good-sized, well-formed Geranium-red flowers are arranged on good stems in such a manner as to give the trusses an almost globular appearance. Altogether a dignified harmonious combination. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 50 cts. each; \$5.00 per doz.

Poppy. Intense poppy-red. Large perfect florets in good trusses over greenish-bronzy foliage. Rich and effective. 5 ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Salmon Queen. An entirely new color in Cannas. Rosy salmon-scarlet, blending to a rosy-carmine toward the center. The large substantial flowers are freely produced in great clusters high above heavy green foliage. Very effective in bedding. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Sensation. To get a sensational color-tone in a pink Canna is particularly noteworthy. Our first impulse was to call it "La France" because the color called to mind the La France Rose but the tone is even cleaner and purer; it being a lovely pale-rose. The foliage is a beautiful glaucous-green; the plant dwarf and compact. One of the most noteworthy additions to Cannas in recent years. 3 ft., 75 cts. each.

One each of the above Ten Novelties for $4.00.

New Cannas From Other Sources

We offer here eight new varieties, which after several years' trial have proven themselves worthy of our commendation.

Cleopatra. A striking beauty. Wonderful deep carmine-crimson flowers surmounting the dark glaucous-bronze foliage. This variety stands out strongly in effectiveness. 4 ft., 50 cts. each; $5 per doz.

Dragon. An incessant bloomer, continuing to produce new stalks of flowers until cut down by frost. Dark ox-blood red. 3 ft., 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Flag of Truce. A large flowered creamy-white, with faint pink dots on each petal. The general effect is white. Not as white nor as tall as Eureka but quite distinct and valuable. 4 ft., 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Gaiety. Reddish-orange mottled with carmine and edged with yellow. The tongue is yellow and densely spotted with carmine. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 15 cts. each; \$1.50 per doz.

Lafayette. In some respects resembles the variety "Meteor" but the flowers are not quite as tall, stand more erect and the plant grows taller. 5 ft. 30 cts. each; $3.00 per doz.

One each of the Eight Varieties for $2.00.

TYPE OF NEWER CANNAS.

Superb. This variety is unique in color and truly superb; having large, clean bright orange-scarlet blossoms of good substance, produced on strong stalks with glaucous-bronzy foliage giving a most pleasing effect. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Pocahontas. (Bronze-leaved Olympic.) Large oriental-red flowers borne on firm upright stems, just high enough above the foliage to show the entire head. The foliage is a dark bronze-green with emerald shadings; the ribs a darker bronze; one of the best recent introductions. 4 ft., 30 cts. each; $3 per doz.

San Diego. Chinese-orange or Persian-yellow. The crimped petals are remarkable for substance which enables them to withstand the hot summer sun without wilting. Another charm lies in the dark bronze color of the buds which harmonize with the rich bronze foliage. 4 ft., 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Varouna. We have tried this variety for several years and at all times the bright orange-scarlet flowers, combined with the good bronze foliage, has won our admiration. A free luxuriant grower, producing its flowers well above the plant. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 25 cts. each; \$2.50 per doz.

The seed is sown in flats and from there transplanted to the pots. A large quantity of young vegetable plants are raised in flats for farmers, who, getting them at planting-out time, find this stock quite suitable and good enough for their needs. From eight hundred to a thousand are grown to a flat. They have to maneuver considerably, on late Easters, for room to spread out the vegetable plants, which must not be allowed to grow spindly. The stock begins to go out the first of May and the demand continues often as late as first of July. They have no trouble to sell all they raise.

Nursery Stock Planting and Transportation

Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass., counsel for the American Association of Nurserymen, in a communication dated January 19, in regard to what the government has done to encourage the production of more fruit and ornamental trees, and as to what plans have been taken to facilitate the shipment of nursery stock during the coming season, writes as follows:

"I beg to advise that both the secretary of agriculture and Mr. Hoover, the food administrator, have issued sympathetic statements to encourage the continued planting—and indeed, increase—of fruit-bearing trees, shrubs, and plants. This, by the way, is the policy adopted in the countries of our allies.

"Counsel for the American Association of Nurserymen has presented the necessity of prompt shipments of nursery stock and there is justification for stating that when the spring shipping season approaches, the director-general of railroads or his assistants in the departments of the east, south, and west will issue orders exempting nursery stock from all present and future embargoes. At the present time, it was felt that the terrible congestion of the railroads made it quite unnecessary and objectionable to include nursery stock in the orders of exemptions which have been secured in the case of seeds and fertilizers, which are requiring immediate shipments, if there is to be any planting of seeds this spring."

Ornamental Growers' Association.

At a meeting of the above association held at the Hotel Biltmore, New York, January 4-5, 1918, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, The successful prosecution of the war in which our country is engaged will overtax our normal food production if we are to supply our people at home and our allies abroad, and,

Whereas, Throughout every state and section of the nation there are scores of millions of fruit trees of mature and bearing size and age that would bring within the reach and purchasing power of the most humble of our citizens, hundreds of millions of bushels of fruit in excess of the normal production during the season of 1918, without the entailment of great expense or the encumbrance of our already crowded transportation facilities,

Therefore, Be it resolved, that we nurserymen in conference assembled tender our service gratuitously to the owners of fruit trees everywhere in the matter of instruction for the immediate rejuvenation of barren and under-productive trees to make them fully productive. We urge the agricultural colleges and nurserymen everywhere to render this patriotic service whenever and wherever possible to increase the production of fruit as food from present orchards for the winning of America's war.

We respectfully suggest that the national and state food administrators include in all their propaganda for increased food production the agitation and admonition to spray, prune, cultivate, fertilize and otherwise so handle as to bring into full and immediate production all orchards and fruit trees of whatever kind or wherever located.

We respectfully suggest that this resolution be given wide and general dissemination by all food administrators, publications and other interests working for the winning of the war.

The following message of greeting was ordered sent to Wm. Flemer, Jr., and Sergeant Vernon T. Robinson, members of the association, serving with the colors in France:

The Ornamental Growers' Association in annual session assembled at the Biltmore hotel, New York, January 4-5, send greetings and hearty good wishes.

THOMAS B. MEEHAN, Pres.
C. J. MALOY, Secy.

Rochester, N. Y.

ROSE RECEIPTS SHORT.

Due largely to shipping difficulties, there has been a shortage of roses in the local market during the past week, and receipts cleaned up as soon as they came in. Good carnations are plentiful but continue high in price. La Reine tulips, freesias, Paper Whites and Roman hyacinths are among the offerings.
Business has been quiet, but there has been a generous amount of funeral work. Flowering plants are still to be had and sell well.

NOTES.

Geo. T. Boucher will devote both of his windows to a Thrift stamp display.
He has been authorized to have the stamps on sale. His windows last week were attractive with birch bark baskets filled with spring flowers.

The friends of Felix Alberts here are sorry to learn of his bankruptcy at Buffalo, to which city he went a few years ago to make his home. He had a store on Delaware avenue.

The Rochester Floral Co. had a very neat window last week, consisting of daffodils, and pussy willows in a large basket. The same combination was carried out in small vases.

Frank E. Bohnke, 84 Miller street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. His liabilities are $2,516.11; assets, stock in trade, $700, and one auto, $250.

All flower shops closed all day Monday to conform to the fuel conservation order.

PRONOUNCED COLD WEATHER HURTS TRADE.

The prolonged cold weather has been hard on the growers in this vicinity and in consequence the movement of plants and cut flowers has been difficult and business has not been as brisk as usual at this period. The call for flowers for hospitals and funerals has been the more important factor in the demand for there is little going on in the social world. All of the prominent stores here seem to be fortunate in having a forehanded supply of fuel and have suffered no inconvenience from that source. Had it been otherwise, it would have probably meant disaster as the coal situation in this vicinity in general is acute, and even were there a supply in the coal yards it would be difficult to get it out on account of the heavy fall of snow, the greatest and most continued in the memory of the oldest inhabitant.

NOTES.

Some of the more adventurous growers rushed plants to the general market for the Saturday sale, among them Louis Haury, Jr., who has a nice collection of blooming geraniums available. The wonder was how they were transported from his range without injury—another wonder was how the purchaser got them home without freezing, for the temperature was not above twenty degrees over the zero mark.

Chas. Tritchler, who has a fine place fast growing into prominence and prosperity, says he does little in the winter as he caters largely to the pot and bedding plant trade. He has the finest showing of pot primroses in this market. He expects to participate in the convention of the state florists and nurserymen's convention to be held in this city January 29.

Thomas H. Joy, of the Joy Floral Co., presided at a recent meeting of the Retail Associated Merchants, when it was decided that the retail florists would close on Mondays, opening only long enough to get out funeral work and make shipments of stock going to distant points. All employees will be paid as usual.

Geny Brothers, while not having a superabundance of stock, have sufficient for all requirements. The carnations here are especially fine and they are bringing in hyacinths and narcissi in good supply. They have had large orders, the greater part of which were for funeral work.

The McIntyre Floral Co. has plenty of roses. Russell is grown here in large quantities and there is a good supply of sweet peas and fine cyclamen plants. This firm is alone in the field here with azaleas, prices ranging from $2 to $15.

The Joy Floral Co. have a supply of fine flowers sufficient for all demands, including roses, carnations and pot plants. They are well supplied with fuel and have had no trouble in getting through the extremely cold weather.

M. C. D.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The regular meeting of the above society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, N. Y., January 9, with President Robert Jones in the chair. The judges appointed made the following awards: Roses, 12 mixed, Robert Jones; 12 carnations, mixed, Robert Jones; three poinsettias, Robert Jones; three heads lettuce, Joe Mastroiani. An essay was read by Harry Goodband, entitled "Organization and Co-operation," written by M. L. Davey of Ohio, and James Holloway gave an interesting account of his recent visit to western points. Both were thoroughly enjoyed by all present. John F. Johnstone, on behalf of the society presented James McCarthy, the retiring president, with a set of gold cuff links as a token of appreciation of his able administration during the past year. It was decided to omit the annual dinner, owing to prevailing conditions. The next meeting will be held February 13, the competitive displays being one pot each of cyclamen and Primula Malacoides and 24 freesias.

HARRY GOODBAND, Cor. Sec'y.

Paterson, N. J.

Edward Scery, the well-known florist, was unanimously elected president of the park commission for his eighth consecutive term, at a meeting of the city commissioners held January 9. James McCallom is superintendent of parks. In his annual message, President Scery made a number of important recommendations. Among these was one that skillful tree surgeons should be employed in order to save many of the fine old trees. He also suggested great improvements in the park drives and walks, and the purchase and use of more fertilizers to keep the parks from deteriorating. He made a satisfactory financial report on the expenses of conducting the park business during the past year. President Scery gave his annual dinner to the members of the Hamilton club on the evening of January 23.

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

January 17, one of the finest days overhead that we have had for 40 days, was intended for a visiting trip to Strasburg but on account of the extremely bad walking that had preceded it this trip was postponed until the February meeting. Albert M. Herr, the postpioneer, came in for some hard knocks, but being accustomed to them for the past 10 months, they made little impression on him. The meeting in the Chamber of Commerce rooms was almost 100 per cent in attendance, with our friends T. J. Nolan and Dennis Connor as visitors.

The following officers were elected for 1918: Elmer Weaver, Ronks, president; Lemon S. Landis, Lancaster, vice-president; Albert M. Herr, Lancaster, secretary; Harry K. Rohrer, Lancaster, treasurer. President Schroyer, in a few appropriate remarks, called President-Elect Weaver to the chair, and he, after thanking the members for his election, asked that the attendance at the present meeting be typical of every meeting for the year. He said that misery loves company, and that we could at least come together once a month and commiserate with each other. The following committees were then appointed: Programme—Harry K. Rohrer, Chas. B. Herr and Rudolph Nagle. Visiting—Chas. M. Weaver, Ira Landis and Rutter B. Hess. Exhibition—Willis B. Girvin, B. F. Barr and A. F. Strickler. Automobile—Abraham Rohrer, C. S. Loeffler and John Schreiner.

We hoped to have either S. S. Pennock or Arthur Neissen, of Philadelphia, with us for an address, but both pleaded priority engagements and the talk devolved upon Willis B. Girvin and Elmer Weaver, who related their experiences in handling cut flowers over the holidays, they having been delegated to accompany them to their destination to see that they were properly delivered. Mr. Girvin stated that he joined the express car at Witmer, and in conjunction with the messenger handled the cut flower shipments, which were so heavy that they were well down the road before they had them straightened out. He said that the messenger would not have been able to handle the business himself. In unloading, he saw that they were kept on separate trucks and that these trucks were delivered to the loading platform in good shape and record time, where the several commission men picked them up and by 10:30 everything was cleared, an impossible feat without this personal supervision. He said that holiday returns were fairly satisfactory, with the exception of Paper Whites, which were sold for less than the price of the bulbs, and that the situation seems to be getting worse every day.

Elmer Weaver said that his experience about tallied with that of Mr. Girvin's, excepting that the shipments for his day were even heavier than the previous day, and that they were one and one-half hours in making the run from West Philadelphia to Broad street station. As soon as he arrived he called up the commission houses, and when the flowers reached the loading platform, they were there with their trucks to take them. He made the point that if the commission houses would co-operate and have a man to meet certain trains and see that the stock is unloaded properly, much loss and delay would be avoided, as their experience was that the express company was only too glad for such experienced assistance. He also stated that shipments made on local trains would be sure of getting into Broad street, while those made on through trains would sometimes be run on a sidetrack and probably not unloaded for 10 days. He said that he saw at least 50 such cars on various sidings in the city. With embargos on express to both Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, they had tried parcel post since the holidays, insuring their packages, but that they found this almost as uncertain and with a number of packages frozen and that the insurance people had cut out insurance on greenhouse products, simply insuring their delivery. He said that they had been making use of a package stamp delivery that was in effect between Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, the limit for weight being 50 pounds and the minimum charge 20 cents. These stamps carried the package in the baggage car, the package as I understood it, to be called for. Fred Ritchy and the writer gave some of their experiences in the shipping of plants.

A fuel conservation proposition received from Wm. F. Gude was signed by the owners of greenhouses present, with one or two exceptions. In discussing the fuel proposition, it was brought out that hard wood is about equal to a ton of coal, per cord of wood, the ordinary run of wood requiring two cords to equal a ton of coal, and that where a night man was employed the firing of wood was not much harder than bituminous coal firing. There is plenty of wood within 18 to 20 miles of the city, but on almost inaccessible hills, so that the expense of getting it out would make it more expensive than ordinary coal.

The next meeting will be February 21 with the trip to Strasburg on the trolley from Lancaster as the afternoon visiting trip. T. J. Nolan and Dennis WEATHER MODERATES; TRADE IMPROVES.

Market conditions have improved somewhat during the past week, as the severe weather has moderated, the thermometer going as high as 10 degrees above zero in the middle of the day, with a slight thaw. A number of greenhouses of local ranges have been closed on account of the shortage of coal, in the hopes that the present supply of these growers would last until relief could be obtained. Deliveries have been very difficult. Local Fuel Administrator Beadell has issued an order whereby florists are allowed to send out, as well as make up funeral work on Mondays, these nine weeks, and also that they may run a high enough temperature in their stores to protect the plants. Stock is good, although not any too plentiful, owing to the present unfavorable conditions, as not only are a number of growers shutting down some of their houses, but they are running the others on low temperatures, in order to conserve the coal. The demand has been very satisfactory, considering unfavorable conditions. There has been a good call for decorations, and flowers for patriotic knitting parties have met with an excellent demand, as these constitute the chief social activities. Funeral work has had a very heavy call, some of the retailers taking on extra help in order to get out all their orders on time. Flowering plants have been selling well, especially for telephone orders.

NOTES.

The wholesale florists are still up against it, as the express companies have great difficulties in getting their stock through without freezing. Shipments of flowers are accepted, but with no guarantee that they will not be frozen.

A moderate supply of roses, orchids, lilies and carnations are being cut at the W. J. & M. S. Vesey greenhouses. This firm has closed four houses of its range, but the supply will not be curtailed to any great extent.

The Flick Floral Co. had a very busy week, with a few weddings and a large amount of funeral work. They have received a large shipment of novelties for St. Valentine's business and the spring trade.

Bulbous plants are making a fine showing at Edgar Wenninghoff's Calhoun street store. Funeral work has been brisk and there have also been calls for wedding work the past week.

Preparations for St. Valentine's day are going forward at the store of A. J. Lanternier. Some very fine bulbous stock and other blooming plants are being shown at their downtown store.

F. J. Knecht & Co. are cutting some fine Russell roses. The coal supply is very critical here, but the supply of flowers does not seem to be curtailed to any very great extent.

The Doswell Floral Co. had very good business the past week, their sales being about equal on flowering plants and cut flowers.

Markey Bros. are showing excellent cyclamens, primroses and bulbous blooming stock. Business has been very active.

Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

The feature of the January meeting of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in Horticultural hall, Boston, Mass., January 12, was the inaugural address of President R. M. Saltonstall, who called attention to the marked progress of the society during the year and commented on the 10 indoor shows, the outdoor exhibition and the children's gardens, the fall fruit show and the lectures which have been enjoyed by a large number of people. bership in the society has increased to 979. The speaker urged that flowers be not forced out by distress of war, and in closing his address said:

"Some people look upon the growing of flowers as a pure luxury which ought to be given up during war times. Now I do not agree with this because we must consider the fact that a very considerable number of men have given up their life work to the study and work of floriculture, a science in itself. Some of these men are of mature years and utterly unfitted for other fields of work, and in many cases dependent on such work for their support. Again, it is important to keep this industry going for those who wish to return to it after the war. A vast amount of plant life in greenhouses would be lost if the business is given up. These plants in many cases have taken years to grow and perhaps could never be replaced. Flowers surely are not so much of a luxury as costly clothing or jewelry worn chiefly to attract the eye, or the many attractive but not necessary fittings of our homes. If all luxuries are to go, flowers must go with them, but when we consider the great amount of happiness and real pleasure that can be given to the sick and the wounded and those confined to their bed, in some cases far away from home, I say that flowers should be the last of all luxuries to be forced out by dire stress or war."

BARKER, N. Y.—W. E. Spafford has been compelled to close his establishment, due to shortage of fuel.

DICKINSON, TEX.—E. E. Stone, well-known fern specialist, has joined the Canadian forces. The business will be continued by Mrs. Stone. A nursery department, conducted as a side line, will be discontinued.

Annual Meeting and Exhibition, Boston, Mass., January 30-31, 1918.

Exhibition Rivals Previous High Standard

Despite the rigors of winter, the uncertainty of the fuel situation and the many other obstacles experienced by the trade this season, the twenty-seventh annual exhibition of the American Carnation Society, held in Horticultural hall, Boston, Mass., January 30-31, was, in point of number and quality of entries, quite equal to that of last year's show at Indianapolis, Ind. There were 75 vases of 50 blooms each and 30 vases containing 100 of a variety. The extreme weather conditions and the harrowing experiences with express companies during the past six months no doubt discouraged the western growers, there being but one exhibit from that section, that of Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind. Excepting this and the entries of the Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., and Charles S. Strout, Biddeford, Me., it might have been called a Boston show, as all other exhibitors were from that vicinity.

The exhibition was staged in the main hall on tables or platforms 6x16 feet, raised 10 inches from the floor, which, with the tall fibre vases in which the flowers were displayed, brought them to exactly the proper height. The platforms were covered with green paper and each was numbered, so that exhibitors could place their various entries without delay.
This plan was so simple that the entire display arranged itself almost au-tomatically, everything being in readiness for the judges at 12 o'clock.

The leading varieties in the different colors were: White—Matchless, Crystal White, White Delight and White Benora. Light Pink—Nancy and Pink Delight. Medium Pink—Mrs. C. W.
Ward and Good Cheer. Striped—Be-nora, and Elizabeth, a dark sport of Benora. Dark Pink—Rosalie and Rosette. Red—Belle Washburn. Crimson—Bernice and Doris. S. J. God-dard's exhibits of the Dorner varieties were exceptionally fine, Laddie making a wonderful showing, if anything even better than last year, the vases of 100 and 50 being superb. A pink seedling, No. 148-09, entered for the Dorner medal, the last of the elder Mr. Dorner's seedlings, is an ideal shade of pink and a perfect flower. A gleaming red, No. 167-12, is remarkable in color. Over 1,500 blooms were staged in the Goddard exhibits.

The Cottage Gardens Co.'s vase of 100 Crystal White was ideal in every respect. This variety was also shown in a vase of 50 and is certainly the best of its color. A. A. Pembroke, Beverly, Mass., showed a vase of 100 flowers of Elizabeth, a dark-striped sport of Benora. This was stunning, being larger and much better in every way than its parent. Baur & Stein-kamp's seedling, No. 414, is a beautiful shade of pink, well formed and clearly an applicant for first division laurels. Pink Perfection was seen in good condition in the section for vases of 100 each and the same was true of Alice. White Benora and White Delight, both worthy of their parent-age, also attracted attention.

Wm. Sim, Cliftondale, Mass., staged 12 varieties of 50 flowers each from his commercial stock, the quality of which was fine. Chas. S. Strout's vases were also splendid White Delight attracting much attention.

President Vesey's Address.

Fellow-Members of the American Carnation Society:

Although I am many hundreds of miles away from you tonight, my heart is with you and I am glad of this opportunity to wish you all a prosperous and happy year, and may your convention and exhibit be a wonderful success.

I am supposed to present a president's address, one that shows a thorough acquaintance with the business,

W. J. Vesey, Jr., Fort Wayne, Ind.
President American Carnation Society.

Chas. S. Strout, Biddeford, Me.
Vice-President American Carnation Society.

a clear knowledge of what is being done at the present time to combat the ever-increasing problems of the trade, one that will suggest improvements in many ways, one that will deal with the heart of our business with a clear insight, and I might say, a foreknowledge of the conditions to come. In the position I now find myself, it is utterly impossible for me to make any worthy suggestions, having been away from my business and the necessary problems for over three months. Events happen rapidly in these days and I feel confident that I am already behind the times.

You know, gentlemen, there is a song in the army that goes something like this: "We are in the army now, and not behind the plow." The song fits my case with exactness, as I have been away from the plow for so many weeks that I have grown rusty and so, please forgive me for not helping you in carrying your burdens.

My position is not an uncommon one, as no doubt many of you present tonight have an empty chair in your home, whereas a boy has gone forward to help in the cause. Your burdens have now become twofold, but I feel that there is not a man present but that will do more than his share and be happy in the knowledge that he, too, is doing all in his power to help our wonderful country toward a victory.

I know that the coal question has been uppermost in your minds for many weeks. The high prices you now pay for coal is a problem indeed, and so far as I can see, there will be no drop this winter, but even the price is not the worst feature, I believe. It is the simple question of delivery. The government, having taken over the control of the railroads, may lighten the car shortage some, but no doubt it will be many weeks before even a slight improvement will be noticed. The only remedy I can suggest for another year would be to buy an eight months' supply of coal in May and June and store it on your place.

I also know that express deliveries have been deplorable for many weeks. Many times, no doubt, you were uncertain when your express would be transported, owing to priority shipments, carriers refusing to take your shipments at one time for two days. The question of prompt express service is serious with us and I think you should take the question up with the S. A. F. and see if some arrangement cannot be reached with the express companies, whereby they will assure us of prompt deliveries.

I want to thank Vice-President Strout at this time for the able work I know he has accomplished and for taking my work upon his shoulders, for I know from experience that the man in charge of a carnation show does not have much time to do anything else but look after his own work. Although I am not present to see, I feel confident that he has accomplished splendid results. I want to thank Secretary Baur for his conscientious work during the past year and I am glad to tell you that a secretary of his calibre would be hard to find. Do not let him get away.

I also want to extend my hearty thanks to the members of the associations in this city for the able work they have accomplished in helping make this show a success and for their hospitality to the visitors.

I am indeed sorry that I am unable to be with you tonight, to see your faces again and enjoy your pleasant and interesting company, but I will live in hopes that before another year rolls away I will again be among you, and helping to the best of my ability.

Secretary Baur's Report.

Mr. President and Members of the American Carnation Society:

Your secretary begs leave to submit the following report:

During the past year we have added 31 new members to our list and re-instated 15 who had become delinquent. There are at this time 344 members in good standing, there being 333 annual members and 11 life members. After deducting a number who are in arrears, we have a net gain of 21 in annual members and a loss of one life member.

On October 4, we lost one of our ex-presidents and a life member, in the death of J. A. Valentine of Denver, Judge American Carnation Society.

Colo. Mr. Valentine served this society as its president during the year 1911, he being elected at the last meeting held in this city. We were surprised of his death too late to send any flowers to the funeral. We also lost two annual members in the death of F. C. Bartels of Cleveland, O., who died September 15, and A. J. Baur of Erie, Pa., who died August 13. All these men were known favorably to most of you.

During the past year we have collected: Dues, $592.00; advertising, $251.09; miscellaneous, $43.50; total, $886.59, which has been turned over to the treasurer.

On account of the unsettled condition of business during the early winter, we were able to secure only 22 pages of advertising for the premium schedule as against 26 pages in the 1917 schedule. We note, however, that practically all of our regular advertisers are represented. Our members should show their appreciation by patronizing these advertisers at every opportunity.

A number of special classes were added to the regular list of awards, the premiums being donated by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and the Boston Gardeners' and Florists' Club. The Massachusetts Horticultural Society's premiums were withdrawn after the premium schedule was distributed. One other special class was made possible by the donation of a $75 solid silver vase, which was donated by The Chicago Feed & Fertilizer Co. of Chicago. This vase should bring out some lively competition. We also call attention to the fact that every carnation disseminated last season is included in our section C.

The unsatisfactory express service has prevented growers residing at a distance from making entries in the competitive classes. This has had the effect of localizing the competition. The growers from the vicinity of Boston are to be commended for the fine list of entries sent in, which should insure a splendid exhibit. We would suggest that for next year's convention a centrally located city be selected, so that shipments may be made from all directions without any transfers, these transfers being responsible for most of the delayed shipments. To our worthy vice-president, C. S. Strout, belongs the credit for the enthusiasm among the New England growers. S. J. Goddard, too, deserves special mention for his good work in the retail display section.

We have 205 members in good standing in the S. A. F., and therefore, are entitled to representation on the executive board of that society. President Vesey, who is with the colors, being unable to attend any of these board meetings, arrangements are being made to have another member represent this society.

Since the last report, we have received four new American varieties for registration. Thirteen were sent over by the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society of England.

On April 5, 1917, this society received an invitation to participate financially in the Fifth National Flower Show, which was to be held in St. Louis, Mo., this spring. By assuming a portion of the liability, this society was to participate in whatever profits, might result in the same proportion. A special meeting was called in New York, August 22, to consider recommendations from the board of directors that this invitation be accepted. After due consideration the meeting voted unanimously to accept the invitation. The secretary was selected to represent this society in the arrangements for this show. On January 22 the National Flower Show Committee conferred with the S. A. F. executive board and decided to postpone the holding of this show until a more favorable time.

The board of directors held its annual post-convention meeting last January; also, the regular mid-summer meeting at the time of the S. A. F. convention. At the latter meeting it was decided to recommend to this society that the junior ex-president be added to the board of directors. Notices were sent out on December 1, stating that final action would be taken at this meeting. The recommendations are that Section 2 of the constitution be changed by inserting the words "Junior Ex-President" after the word "Treasurer" in line two, making it read "The president, vice-president, secretary, treasurer and junior ex-president, and five other active members of the society (to be elected by ballot at annual meetings as herein-after stated) shall together constitute the board of directors and shall hold office until their successors are elected."

The secretary's and the treasurer's books were checked up by a public auditor, who found that all the society's funds are properly accounted for, as will be shown by the report which will be submitted at this meeting.

"Say it with Flowers"

On St. Valentine's Day

FEBRUARY 14th, and every other day, give flowers to your nearest and dearest. In their beauty, life and fragrance, flowers are the perfect, the most charming tokens of your sentiments. On St. Valentine's Day, "Say it with Flowers." One important thing to consider about Flower-Valentines is their arrangement, and in this particular, there is great scope for individual preference.

Corsage Bouquets for personal use Decorative arrangements of flowers in baskets Flower decorations for the table

Hampers of growing plants that last indefinitely Combinations of Spring Flowers
Dainty Plants in full blossom

Florists everywhere can offer you original suggestions, at prices exceedingly moderate, and will give to each order, the most painstaking care and attention. Arrange with your local florist at once for your Flower-Valentines. It is always convenient to buy flowers for there is a florist as near as your nearest phone.

"Say it with Flowers" is the title of a dainty 16-page booklet, beautifully illustrated in colors, on the etiquette and uses of flowers, sent free on request.

Wheeler received the same for yellow daisies, Etoile d' Or. Carl Hagenburger, Mentor, O., was given a first class certificate for Solanum Cleveland; also, silver medal for new yellow solanum.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

St. Valentine's Day.

RECORD BREAKING TRADE ANTICIPATED.

The St. Valentine's day trade of 1918 bids fair to be a record breaker; the interest aroused by the first test in the publicity campaign with its full page in the Saturday Evening Post, well designed window cards, available to, and which should be displayed in every flower shop in the land, must awaken even the most lethargic mind.

The shop which lets things run along in the old groove, taking what trade comes, but doing nothing to push or feature the day, is indeed a back number. To be successful one must have enthusiasm for the work in which one is engaged. Without it there is nothing left but drudgery.

To the live, wide-awake, enthusiastic man, St. Valentine's day is an opportunity, a chance to show off and call attention to his business, of which he is quick to take advantage. Everything pertaining to the day is brought out strongly—the best the supply houses have to offer, each of which is sure to come forward with something novel and unique. Selections from these, together with original ideas of his own, give an atmosphere and appearance to the store that is sure to emphasize and call attention to the day.

SAY IT WITH FLOWERS.

The demand for St. Valentine's day is for gifts; no one buys flowers or other commodities on that day for themselves. They are to be sent as gifts of sentiment, for which purpose nothing could be more appropriate than flowers. The slogan, "Say it with flowers," is especially fitting for this day of sentiment, and the flowers must be there to carry the message.

Sweet peas are now at their best; they seem to be growing more beautiful each year. As a flower for the corsage they are unsurpassed. For the small basket there is nothing more graceful and when tied with ribbons and miniature gilt arrows, hearts, etc., at the bow knots, they are most attractive. Pansies are also favorites with many, and on account of their short stems, arrange nicely in low handled, shallow baskets. When decked with appropriate ribbons and emblems, they make very acceptable gifts.

This is the day for all the miniature roses, which either of themselves or in combination with many other flowers, can be arranged to make very artistic corsages, small baskets, hamper or other floral conceits. Sweetheart roses and for-get-me-nots are an ideal combination. Lily of the valley, myosotis and cattleyas are another. Violets and Elgar roses are striking, and so one might run through the list.

BOXES OF FLOWERS.

Boxes of assorted flowers are always in demand, the spring flowers, tulips, daffodils, daisies, narcissi, snapdragons, etc., working in well with roses. There is considerable art in the arrangement of a box of flowers. When the lid is removed and the paper linings lifted, exposing the contents, they should be so placed as to present a beautiful color contrast with every flower possible exposed to view. The longest should be laid on the bottom, evenly divided with stems toward the center. The others are then placed the same way, filling the box from either end until they met in the center. A piece of tape or narrow ribbon, run through two holes either side of the bottom of the box, or as some have it, glued in the bottom, is then used to tie the stems across the center and hold them in place. Flowers similar to pansies or miniature roses, with maidenhair fern, can be used to top off with. Many deck the outside of the box with flowers, which is well worth while, a spray or two of asparagus, a few daffodils, with some pussy willows, being sufficient.

NOVELTIES OF 1918.

Some of the novelties offered this season are seen in the accompanying illustrations. The miniature soldier and Red Cross kiddies are quite cute. Each conceals a receptacle for water, which, when filled with flowers, is doubly attractive. The elegantly dressed lady, a more elaborate piece, looks charming with flowers that match or contrast well with her costume. The red velvet heart with the gilt arrow receptacle for corsage of flowers is especially appropriate for the day, as is the heart-shaped red chenille frame with the vase in the center.

FLOWERING PLANTS.

There are a number of plants and bulbs now in flower, that when given a valentine touch or decoration are very acceptable. Tulips and daffodils in pots and pans in crepe paper covers, tied on with silk or silk lustre ribbon, with gilt emblems or stickers of miniature hearts, etc., on the ribbon, are sure to be noticed. Cyclamens, azaleas and begonias are showy, as are primulas, both obconica and malacoides, of which the latter, with its freedom of bloom, is one of the most showy small pot plants ever introduced. The illustration shows a malacoides from a four-inch pot in a small handle basket, with ribbon and gilt ornaments. A few pussy willow sprays, tied with the ribbon, are a feature. Choice flowered pots of freesias, with well tufted pussy willow sprays as stakes, will be found good stock. The low pot plant with a crepe pot cover, can be given quite an added value by the addition of a couple of well budded pussy willow sprays stuck into each side of the pot and arched over the top to represent a handle. A bow of ribbon on this and there is at once an imitation plant basket.

PUBLICITY.

Publicity with printer's ink is a great factor in helping the business of this event. Leaflets, circulars; not too wordy; just crisp and to the point, and newspaper ads. will all be helpful. Get all the window cards and literature of the national publicity committee. It is to be furnished at cost. Keep it well to the front, both in store and windows. The advertising for this particular occasion, while it is part of February expenses, has a cumulative value which, in the new customers secured, or the aroused interest of others, may last for years. Bend every effort to make this your most successful of St. Valentine's days, and you will be pleased and more than satisfied with your achievement.

St. Valentine's Day Specialties.

The "1918 Girl" With Receptacle for Flowers.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

This appears to be the most desolate season of the year; everybody is tired of winter, and such a winter as it has been. All are looking for the first glimpses of spring and declare it is a refreshing sight to see the first indications, in the hyacinths, tulips and daffodils of the flower shop.

Now is the time to feature all kinds of bulbous stock in pots and pans. Single plants of hyacinths, in assorted colors, each with a nice spike of bloom, the pots trimmed with crepe paper, arranged a couple of dozen together on a table, will make an attractive display, inviting to the most moderate buyer. Three plants of a color in a pan or azalea pot, together with lycopodium or small ferns, will suit the customer with a larger purse. A crepe paper cover with a narrow lustre or silk ribbon, the color of the flower, makes a nice finish. Pans or tulips which are now nicely in flower, and pots and pans of daffodils are just as effective as the hyacinths. They are all very spring-like and showy, always good value for the price asked.

Tulip and daffodil flats as they come from the grower, containing about 50 bulbs, make very attractive show pieces, with the boxes cleaned and covered with crepe paper. A band of ribbon around the box, the color of the flowers, gives a finish that is worth much more than it costs. Another pretty feature is made with good length pussy willow sprays, a couple stuck in each corner, all arched over to the center and finished with a small bow of ribbon such as is used on the sides of the box. Pussy willow sprays can be used to advantage with all spring flowering plants or their combinations. Forsythias are also coming in, which if used in plant baskets, must stand in tubes or vases of water. They work up beautifully with cut flowers.

An effective trimming to all flowering pot plants is an inside sheet of colored paper the same shade as the flower or that will contrast well with it. This stands in irregular lengths well above the crepe cover, can be arranged to fill in irregularities in the foliage, and adds materially to the size of the plant.

The small tumbler basket, which is now to be had in such a variety of form and color, should be kept well to the front, always a few filled with daffodils, sweet peas, calendulas, or other flowers now in season. Always try for color effects; pinks in a blue basket, reds in brown, yellow in white or lavender. The green-toned basket

St. Valentine's Day Specialties.

will, of course, take all colors equally well. A bow of narrow ribbon the color of the flower is an almost necessary finish, very often the touch that makes the sale.

How about the St. Valentine's day preparations? Everything in the way of accessories should now be on hand, all in good order, ready for use. Be sure to send one dollar to John Young, secretary of the Society of American Florists, 53 West 28th street, New York, and get the window cards, signs and proof sheets of the advertisements of the publicity service. If you have not already contributed to the national publicity fund, do so at once. It is your patriotic duty as a member of the craft. In no possible way can you get greater returns for money invested to increase your business.

LANSING, MICH.—The students of the horticultural department of the Michigan Agricultural college held their tenth annual fruit and flower show January 25-26.

THE CARNATION.

Mulching the Beds.

Many experienced growers of carnations await the turn of the year before putting on a mulch or feeding their carnation plants in any way other than what was put into the soil at planting time. This is reasonable enough when care is taken in the preparation of the compost that goes into the benches for the plants when planted. A layer of manure on the bottom of the bench, and a third or fourth of manure in the soil as a compost, together with bonemeal, lime, or limestone, added, ought to be enough ingredients for the plants to work on until the holiday crop is off and most of the cuttings have been taken, and they are. It is very easy to overfeed carnation plants, especially early in the season before they have assimilated all of the organic matter that the soil contains. Brittle stems, weak stems, split calyx and diseased plants result mainly from overfed plants. This does not signify that the trouble was caused by mulching or applying liquid manure. It could just as easily result from too much or too fresh manure in the soil when the plants were planted, causing them to make an abnormal growth. Before attempting mulching or feeding of any description, every grower should consider the reason for doing the work and whether it is worth while. Strong, healthy plants carrying a good crop of buds and growing shoots, are greatly benefited by mulching or feeding at this time, but plants with a backward growth and a thin crop of buds and shoots, caused by neglect or unnatural conditions, are better off without feeding until they have improved in growth.

Before putting on the mulch, go over the beds and clean them up, removing any weeds and leveling off any places where the soil has become washed to the center of the beds by watering. Also place the shoots in the rings so that the air is working freely around the plants. Loosen up the surface of the soil lightly to break up the crust and give the roots a chance to reach the mulch quickly. Well rotted manure and fine soil in equal proportions makes the best material for mulching at this time. Spread it evenly over the bed, from three-quarters to an inch thick. Aim to have the state of the soil at the time the mulch is put on in such a condition that the bed can be given a good watering directly afterwards.

St. Valentine's Day Specialties.

Red Chenille Heart and Arrow with Vase for Flowers.

GENERAL CARE OF THE PLANTS.

The general routine care of the plants must be attended to closely. One of the main parts of this care is that of keeping up the temperature. This time of uncertainty regarding replenishing the coal pile, causes us to think deeply about this important question, but there is not any use of going about it in a half-hearted way. To obtain flowers the plants must have the right temperature, and while it is possible to run the carnation houses very low and keep the plants alive, they will remain partially dormant until the warmer weather of spring starts them into growth again, and up to that time there will be very few flowers to help pay the bills. Pay strict attention also to the disbudbing to hasten along the buds. The side buds should be removed as soon as they are large enough to handle.

CUTTINGS.

Every effort should be put forth to get all the cuttings needed into the sand by February 15. This means for those who grow only a few thousand plants and propagate their own stock that it will be necessary to follow up closely the taking of the cuttings as soon as they are ready, and as soon as the cuttings are rooted take them from the sand before the roots have a chance to become wiry. Pot them up into 2½-inch pots and place in a light, airy house, where they can be kept close for a few days, and afterwards given full light and air freely.

Carnation blooms are good property just at this time, so it pays to take particular pains in cutting them and getting them to market in good shape.

C. W. JOHNSON.

Hybrid Roses.

Well grown plants of hybrid perpetual roses are always good property at Easter and they are very easily brought into bloom when the date of that festival is in April. Pot grown stock is surer of the best results, but dormant stock of many varieties will produce nice plants if properly handled. The plants should be cut back to two eyes on each growth and started in a cool house, one with a night temperature of 40 to 45 degrees being preferred, from the first to the twentieth of January. Frequent syringings will swell the wood and cause the breaks to open evenly. When the buds form, the plants should be watered with liquid manure at least once a week. They will probably not have to be carried to a warmer house, but if it is found they are not going to be in bloom in time a little warmer temperature will hurry them along. There are a few varieties that make fine pot plants, those most generally known being Magna Charta, Mme. Gabriel Luizet and Frau Karl Druschki.

NORTH BABYLON, N. Y.—An overheated furnace was responsible for a fire that recently destroyed the range of Braecke & Callewert, with a loss estimated at $5,000.

Fuel Economy.

In order that there shall be the greatest economy in the burning of bituminous coals for heating the different federal buildings throughout the country, the bureau of mines, department of the interior, has conducted a series of tests with some of the widely used bituminous coals and has printed recommendations based on these tests. Fortunately, the recommendations will also apply to those having charge of private buildings and apartment houses. The results of the tests are printed in Technical Paper 180, "Firing Bituminous Coals in Large House-Heating Boilers," by S. B. Flagg. The recommendations on how to burn bituminous coals economically in these large house-heating boilers are as follows:

1. In burning bituminous coals in large house-heating boilers, the fuel bed should not be seriously disturbed until the coal has become well coked; that is, until the gassy part of the coal has been largely driven off.

2. Both caking and non-caking types of coal may be used satisfactorily in boilers of this type if properly handled.

3. The presence of a moderate proportion of screenings mixed with the lump coal causes the fresh charge of coal to heat more gradually and the emission of smoke is kept down more easily. Therefore such a proportion of screenings is an advantage.

4. Increasing the proportion of screenings in the coal necessitates the use of a stronger draft in order to carry the same load. Smaller firing charges must also be used and more frequent attention given. The tendency of caking coals to cake is increased and this also means that the fire must have more frequent attention.

5. One large charge of coal fired by the spreading method will result in a longer emission of dense smoke than the total emission of such smoke from two charges of half the size fired some time apart and by the alternate method.

6. With some coals, moderate charges fired by the alternate method necessitates less frequent attention to the heater than larger charges fired by the spreading method. Caking coals having a considerable proportion of fine coal or screenings are usually among these. Conversely, a fire will usually require more frequent attention when a lumpy caking coal free from screenings or a non-caking coal is fired in moderate charges by the alternate method.

7. The number of tests made was not large enough to justify conclusions regarding the relative efficiency with which a coal may be burned by the two methods of firing, but the author believes that in actual service over considerable periods better results will be obtained by the alternate method.

8. Frequency of cleaning the fires will be determined by the character of the coal and the rate at which it is burned, but with most coals the fires should be cleaned only once or twice in 24 hours in ordinary weather.

9. If the alternate method of firing is employed, the cleaning should be done just before firing the fresh charge, and only one-half of the grate cleaned at a time. Then little or no smoke will result from the cleaning, because the side of the fire on which there is uncoked coal is not disturbed.

10. All three of the coals fired by the alternate method in the tests described were burned at rates corresponding to the heating conditions during the most of the winter, with scarcely any manipulation of the fuel bed except the cleaning of the fires and an occasional leveling just before firing.

11. The average fireman is apt to poke and slice the fire much more than is actually necessary. If a caking coal is used and the caked fuel must be broken up before it is well coked, slice the fire by running a straight bar under the fuel bed and raising it slightly so as to crack the caked mass. Do not stir the bed upside down by raising the bar through the fuel bed, nor break the bed with a bar from the top.

12. If the fuel bed is covered with a charge of fresh fuel in a layer more than five inches thick, the new charge, unless it is very free from slack, is apt to have a smothering effect. Then the output of the boiler will be correspondingly decreased and, especially if the spreading method of firing is employed, the mass of fresh coal will usually have to be broken once or twice before the fire will pick up. Consequently, the maximum firing charge should be not much thicker than five inches and for caking coals containing considerable slack it should not be more than four inches thick. Of course, when a fire is to be kept banked heavier charges may be used.

13. Do not fire large lumps of coal. Break all lumps into pieces no larger than fist size.

14. Large house-heating boilers do not require an intense draft to meet any reasonable demands for heat if the fuel bed is kept in proper condition, but the draft must be properly controlled.

15. The damper regulator should work freely with changes in steam pressure and should close the swinging draft opening in the ash-pit door before it starts to open the check draft in the smoke pipe.

16. The doors on the front of the boiler should fit snugly in their seats; special care should be taken to prevent any material wedging between the doors and the front and thus admitting air when or where it ought to be prevented from entering.

17. Do not allow clinkers to accumulate in the fire or too great a quantity of ashes on the grates. Be careful, however, in shaking the grates not to shake through unburned fuel.

18. In ordinary or severe weather keep an active fuel bed averaging 10 to 12 inches deep. In milder weather the depth of active fuel may be decreased by keeping a layer of ashes on the grate under the live coals.

19. Keep ashes removed from the ash pit.

20. Keep flue surfaces clean by brushing at least once a week.

MARQUETTE, MICH.—T. M. Sorenson, who had an accident to his smoke-stack in the recent blizzard, will not start up again before March 1.

Boston.BUSINESS ABOVE COMPLAINT.

Business during the past week has been fairly good, a number of social events helping the demand. Roses are off crop and command good figures. Carnations are plentiful and go as low as $15 per 1,000. Sweet peas are seen in large numbers and are offered at $1.50 per 100. Pansies, daisies, marguerites, coreopsis, calendulas and primroses move slowly. All wholesale houses report extra good sales and the retail stores have had a wonderful pick-up over last week.

NOTES.

Fred Pettitt, salesman at Carbone's, has been appointed corporal in the state home guards. He tried several times to enlist in the national army but his weight disqualified him. Stephen Green, salesman at the Flower Exchange, is a first lieutenant in the guards, his commission dating from the Spanish-American war.

John J. Cassidy has had two busy weeks with a large wedding and plenty of funeral orders. His automobile filled with funeral work was run into by a large touring car on Tremont street recently and thrown upon the sidewalk, injuring a man who happened to be caught between the car and building.

P. L. Carbone's window still continues to be attractive with all the spring flowers and shrubs, among them apple, forsythia, lilac, iris and acacia. Attractive bowls filled with tulips and hyacinths are scattered here and there.

Penn. The Florist, reports business improving. When the writer called at his store the force was very busy with funeral work. The store was attractively arranged with azaleas, hyacinths, tulips and cyclamens.

The Massachusetts fuel commission has settled on the hours for opening and closing. The markets open at 7 o'clock and close at 2 p. m., the wholesale houses open at 7 a. m. and close at 6 p. m.

J. K. Chandler of Tewksbury is cutting French iris and the crop looks unusually well. It is sold at $4 per dozen. He is also shipping wall flowers and violets which find a ready market.

Charles E. Evans of Watertown is cutting extra fine Golden Spurs. This is his first year for bulbous stock and his stock shows that it will be worth while watching his product in the future.

H. B. Ruppert, road salesman for P. L. Carbone, is in Washington, D. C., and from the orders he is sending in, business must be very good in the south and middle west.

Welch Bros. Co. had a busy week with shipping trade larger than ever. They are showing in their salesroom extra fine roses, carnations, sweet peas and Easter lilies.

Dolansky & McDonald, formerly McAlpin & McDonald, report very good business. Their orchids, in which they specialize, are second to none in this city.

B. A. Snyder & Co. report excellent business. The return of their road salesman shows very good orders in Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont.

Paul Richwagen is cutting a good crop of his pink snapdragon, Virginia. He has had wonderful success with this, which is his own seedling.

Henry Comley reports business good, and from the appearance of his stock, he is more than getting his share of the trade.

Edward Winkler is sending in some excellent carnations. Among the best is his new Morning Glow.

Joe Guerrin, formerly head of Filene's flower department, is now a lieutenant at Camp Devens, Ayer, Mass.

William T. Walke, of Salem, is shipping the best in Hadley, Ophelia and White Killarney.

Thomas Galvin's two stores are kept busy every day with funeral work.

S. K. G.

Toronto, Ont.BUSINESS QUIET AND PRICES LOW.

The coal situation fails to improve, and even with conservation at work in most establishments, it is hard to keep things going. There have been several close calls, and the growers have been helping each other out so that the most needy have not had to suffer. The railroads are not bringing the coal in and citizens are begging for it in quarter ton lots for domestic purposes. Weather conditions are more severe than at any time during the past 50 years, the thermometer remaining below the freezing mark for over 30 days and with less than the average amount of sunshine. Consequently stock is not blooming well. Trade is quiet, funeral work and hospital orders comprising the greater part of the sales. Roses continue scarce, with prices much higher than in other years. American Beauty is off crop and Russell and other reds nearly so. Ophelia, Shawyer, Sunburst and Killarney supply the greater part of the cut. Carnations are more plentiful but the slack demand and poor shipping facilities have forced the price down to $15 and $25 per 1,000. Orchids and violets are plentiful and cheap. The supply of lily of the valley is sufficient for present needs. Bulbous stock is hard to move and many bargains are offered in this class, which fails to bring in enough money to pay for the bulbs. This is only a repetition of last season, but growers seem loath to cut down on their fall imports for fear the other fellow may get the best of it.

NOTES.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club will hold a social in place of the regular meeting, February 6, in the ball room of St. George's hall. Ladies and children are invited and there will be a good programme and refreshments will be served.

The publicity committee of the florists' club are again to the front with large valentine hearts with the wording, "Let Your Valentine be Flowers." A good business is looked for.

The Majestic Florist Shop on Yonge street, recently damaged by fire, will not reopen. Some of the fixtures have been purchased by J. J. Higgins.

Harry Wilshire, with the Royal Flying Corps, has been transferred to Texas, where climatic conditions are more favorable to schooling.

Carl Grobba is bringing in good lilac, considering the early season. Well grown cyclamens are also a feature of his stock.

Chas. Grant, well-known storeman from New York, has joined the Canadian forces for overseas service.

H. G. D.

Pittsburgh.GOOD SUPPLY IN GENERAL.

There is a good supply of stock with the possible exception of roses, which condition bids fair to continue for some time, but with the good supply of other flowers the shortage in this particular line is not noticed. Carnations have taken a drop in price and the market is well supplied with them. Daffodils and Paper Whites are very plentiful and have suffered in price, compared to what they generally command at this season. Sweet peas are arriving in large quantities, but sell well. American Beauties are seen in goodly numbers and due to the scarce-ity of other roses, move well. Violets are also plentiful but the call for them is limited. Even the street merchants will not handle them on account of the cold weather. Business in general is very dull with funeral work the only thing to keep the situation from being at a standstill.

NOTES.

The greenhouse and store of the Zieger Co., on Baum boulevard, was damaged by fire, which started in an automobile salesroom opposite, the plate glass windows being broken by the intense heat and the contents of the house froze later. The loss was over $600.

Another star has been added to the service flag of the McCallum Co. William Riley has enlisted in the motor division of the national army and will leave for Augusta, Ga., next week. His brother, James, is now somewhere in France.

E. C. Ludwig has had a large amount of funeral work of late, which keeps the entire force busy. He has been a sufferer with a carbuncle recently, but is much better at this writing.

M.

Cincinnati.SUPPLY MORE THAN AMPLE.

Business, as a whole, is not very brisk. The supply is good and is larger than the actual needs of the market require. Shipping business is fairly good. Roses are not very plentiful. The long and choice ones are in a supply that is sufficient for actual needs, but the shorter grades are rather scarce. Carnations are coming in fairly strong and can take care of all demands for them with ease. Sweet peas are in a good supply and generally meet with good market. Harris are plentiful. Some excellent long and short rubrums may be had. Callas are fairly plentiful. The bulbous list of offerings includes double and single tulips, jonquils, Paper Whites, yellow narcissi, freesias, Roman hyacinths and a few poeticus. Some white chrysanthemums have been coming into the market during the past week. Other offerings are cypripediums, baby primroses, wallflowers, forget-me-nots and calendulas.

NOTES.

Geo. Klotter sent some excellent Narcissus Poeticus to L. H. Kyrk last week. Mr. Klotter grows many in the field each year, but this is the first time he has tried forcing them to bring them in early. They sold well.

The Wm. Murphy Co. has been very busy with shipping business during the past week.

C. E. Critchell has been having excellent lots of freesias and forget-me-nots.

POT manufacturers are advancing their prices, effective February 1.

ONE of this season's St. Valentine's day novelties is a card bearing a packet of vegetable seeds and appropriate verse. Another card with sentiments of the day is designed for enclosing in boxes of flowers. H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., are distributors.

THE co-operation of a greenhouse growers' committee and the fuel administration representatives at Chicago has materially relieved the coal situation in that city and vicinity, some 60 cars being diverted to florists in immediate need within a week. E. A. Olinger, of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, was the active intermediary in these negotiations, assisted by the entire office staff.

Personal.

J. F. Sullivan, Detroit, Mich., who was seriously injured some time ago in a street railway accident, is progressing favorably and expects to be out soon.

Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., who has been calling on the Chicago trade the past few days, complains of great delay in traveling many passenger trains being side-tracked for freight trains.

American Rose Society.

DEPARTMENT OF REGISTRATION.

The following rose has been offered to the executive committee of the American Rose Society for registration and unless objections are made within three weeks from date, it will be accepted:

Name—Florence Chenoweth, or Yellow Harriot. Class, Austrian briar. Parentage, sport of Mme. Edouard Harriot. Description: Habit of plant, character of foliage, freedom of growth, hardiness and vigor, identical with parent. Flower large; color yellow shaded with coral red; bud long and pointed. The rose is similar to Mme. Edouard Harriot, but is different in its color, being a deeper yellow. Registration requested by E. B. Chenoweth, Mt. Vernon, Wash.

Flowers Essential.

With the first breath of spring, the earth everywhere breaks forth and is covered with verdure and blossom—the violet, arbutus, daisies and all the field flowers. The dogwood, laurel and rhododendrons, with their clouds of blossoms, ornament the woods. We gather and place them in the home; they carry cheer and beauty wherever shown. Why should these and other favorites from all over the world not be enjoyed the season round? They are as grown in the greenhouse, even more beautiful in the winter season, when the earth is covered with its mantle of snow. The blossoming pot in the window, the graceful fern or palm, which, with their summer green, give life to the house decorations, are as essential to the beauty of the home as flowers to the landscape. Let every member of the craft combat with his greatest force and earnestness, every effort made to decry the use of flowers.

Express Companies' Liability.

A recent decision of the interstate commerce commission is to the effect that express companies cannot relieve themselves of responsibility by simply stamping across the face of the receipt "goods only taken subject to delay." The express companies are common carriers whose business it is to forward merchandise from point of shipment to destination. In times of stress they can protect themselves by declaring an embargo and refusing to accept business. If, however, they receive and agree to forward goods, giving a receipt for same, which are then in their care, they are responsible for their safe delivery to point of destination, and no rubber stamp statement to the contrary will relieve them of liability.

A settlement of a number of just claims being asked for recently, one of the companies offered cash to the amount of 50 cents on the dollar. When this was refused, the applicant was met with: "Why we just closed with one of your competitors who was glad to settle on this basis." The counter to this was: "As you have offered to pay me half, you acknowledge my claim, and if I am fool enough to give you the other half, of course you will take it. I want my whole claim, however, and will at once take means to enforce the payment."

If all claims of this character in the various business centers were handled by one law firm they would after one or two court decisions in their favor, be able to compel prompt recognition and adjustment of all losses.

National Publicity for Flowers.

A feature of the publicity campaign in the past week was the presentation of a report of progress in detail by Henry Penn, chairman of the publicity committee, to the executive board of the Society of American Florists, in session January 21-22, at Hotel Jefferson, St. Louis, Mo. The report showed that contracts had been placed already for the national magazine advertising decided upon for the opening of the campaign, the cost of same and the incidental expenses connected with the preparation of the copy and much of the auxiliary work contemplated. Mr. Penn was present at the meeting and took part in a lengthy discussion covering publicity matters in general.

The secretary is now receiving a number of orders from the members of the society for newspaper electrotypes, transparencies and glass signs, all designed to direct the demand which is expected to be forthcoming from the public advertising to the stores of individual members throughout the country. Proofs of the electrotypes and transparencies have been mailed over the membership list, and the glass sign is on view at the secretary's office. The electrotypes can be mailed at once, but the transparencies and glass signs will not be available before February 18.

Those who contemplate a subscription to the fund—and who does not?—can serve their fellow workers well by getting it into the hands of the secretary without unnecessary delay. It is not hard to realize that the plans of the publicity committee are entailing large expenditures, and all must be met from these subscriptions—and they are wanted now.

Chairman George Asmus of the publicity finance committee announces the following additional subscriptions annually for four years, except as noted:

ANOTHER SNOWSTORM HITS CITY.

This city no more than gets shoveled out from one snowstorm when another hits it, consequently conditions are not exactly as good as they might be. Snow began to fall shortly after 1 o'clock Monday morning, January 28, as predicted by the forecaster, which proved to be quite heavy. Sunday's lowest temperature was eight degrees above zero and was accompanied by a high northwest wind, which attained a velocity of 30 miles an hour.

Freight traffic on all railroads entering this city has partly recovered from its temporary paralysis and all passenger trains are being operated on a normal schedule, although many continue to run late. The coal situation is still a serious problem to the grower, but the prospects are brighter at this writing than they have been for some time, and many are now receiving coal through their dealers again, which was impossible for some time, owing to confiscation by the railroads and others. Stock is none too plentiful in the market, owing to the fact that all the growers are running their temperature as low as possible, so as to make their supply of coal pull them through until further relief is in sight. Roses are a little on the short side and the supply of carnations does not appear to be any too plentiful. Lilies are quite plentiful, but clean up early, owing to the shortage of other flowers. Paper White narcissus is seen in good supply at many of the stores, and the same holds true for stevias, freesias, tulips and jonquils. The first Rainbow freesias made their appearance this week and are in brisk demand. Orchids, gardenias, calendulas, anemones, pansies, daisies, violets, lily of the valley, mignonette, callas, sweet peas, snapdragons, Romans, bouvardias and campanulas are included in the offerings. Business is as good as can be expected under the present existing conditions and no complaint in regard to dull times is heard.

The wholesale houses were open until noon Monday, January 28, by permission of the fuel administrator, as mentioned in last week's issue, which was of great help to all the dealers.
The retail stores were permitted to fill all orders for the sick, wedding and funerals, but were not allowed to use any heat, light or keep their front doors open.

THE COAL SITUATION.

The growers' committee, consisting of Peter Reinberg, chairman, C. L. Washburn and August F. Poehlmann, succeeded in securing enough coal through the local fuel administration to save at least 60 growers from closing down.
E. A. Ollinger, who represented the florists before the fuel administration, reports that every application made up to Friday evening, January 25, when the relief work was discontinued by the fuel administrator owing to the betterment of conditions, received favorable consideration and that in almost every instance the coal has already reached its destination. The growers will have to rely on their regular dealers hereafter but those who obtained relief through the fuel administration can consider themselves remarkably lucky.
The winter has been a severe one for the growers, owing to the intense cold weather and the general report is that about 30 per cent more coal has already been consumed this season than last. While the situation is still serious, the most dangerous point has been passed and the prospects at this writing are brighter than they have been for the last few weeks.

NOTES.

This item appeared on the front page of the Tribune, Monday, January 28: "Chicago florists may fill orders today only for funerals, weddings, and the sick. Selling flowers for any other purpose will be construed as a violation of the order and the shops will be closed. August Lange, proprietor of the floral shop at 25 East Madison street, obtained the ruling from the Cook county fuel administration for the 300 other retail florists of Chicago."

N. J. Wietor says that Wietor Bros. received a carload of coal through the local fuel administration last Saturday, January 26, which will help pull them through this season along with the supply from his regular dealers. He adds that Pocohontas delivered to their place is costing them $6.75 against $3.60 last season and a good grade of Illinois $4.50 against $2.30.

Apples, oranges, bananas and candy were the tributes laid upon the bier of Joseph Bistin, a Roumanian, January 26. His funeral was at the First Presbyterian Church at Lake Forest. Relatives explained that according to native custom, the fruits and sweets took the place of flowers. Lighted candles were carried by each mourner.

G. W. Matteson with George Souster, Elgin, was in the city January 29. He says that the coal situation at Elgin is fully as serious as it is here and that his firm expects to be able to pull through the season all right if a car that is on the way arrives before the present supply on hand is exhausted.

Small American flags instead of the usual carnations, were worn here January 29, in honor of the seventy-fifth birthday anniversary of President McKinley. This change was decided on by the McKinley Carnation League as being more timely.

Zech & Mann are handling a large quantity of fancy lilies, which are always a leader with them. Jonquils, freesias and tulips are also seen in large supply at this establishment.

Sidney Buchbinder of Buchbinder Bros. will hereafter make his headquarters at Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s supply department, 72 East Randolph street, where he has arranged for office space and has a refrigerator on display. Mr. Buchbinder will concentrate his efforts on the manufacture of refrigerators and store fixtures for the trade.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is supplying its trade with a fine grade of roses and all other stock, particularly orchids, which are always a leader here. The supply department is booking a large number of orders for goods for St. Valentine's day, not to mention a splendid demand for the Hughes' shamrock box for St. Patrick's day.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. have no complaint to make in regard to their shipping trade, which has been as good as could be expected under the existing conditions. Stock of all kinds is in good supply here, notwithstanding the general shortage in most lines.

Henry Rutenschroer, with Matthews, the Florist, Dayton, O., was here January 29 to look over the market, which has been on the short side for some time. He is well-known here through his former connection with Poehlmann Bros. Co.

Ed. Vilter will leave February 4 for Pocatello, Ida., where he will be employed until called to the colors.

The February meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club will be held at the Bismarck hotel, 175 West Randolph street, next Thursday evening, February 7, at 8 p. m. This will be novelty night and all growers having any new varieties of cut flowers or plants are cordially invited to make an exhibit. All shipments should be sent, express prepaid, to Allie J. Zech, secretary of the Chicago Florists' Club, 30 East Randolph street, Chicago. The Good-of-the-club committee, consisting of T. E. Waters, chairman, Paul Klingsporn and E. A. Ollinger, promise an interesting display. The growers' committee will make its report on the coal situation. Everyone in the trade is invited to be present whether they are members or not.

An examination will be held at the general offices of the west park commissioners in Union Park, at 9:00 a. m., February 25, for applicants for the position of Gardner, Class G. Rank 2. Division Z. Original entrance. The position is open to men between the ages of 21 and 50 years, regardless of residence. Pay 30 to 45 cents per hour. The duties include the planting, pruning and general care of trees, shrubs, perennials, lawns and outside gardens, and supervision of laborers in related work. Applications must be filed in the office of the board in Union park before 12 o'clock noon, February 23, 1918.

Joe Weis, well-known retail florist at 3445 Southport avenue, died Saturday, January 26, from throat trouble, following an illness of two weeks. He was well and favorably known to the trade, having been with J. A. Budlong before entering the retail business. He was 33 years of age and is survived by his parents, two sisters and two brothers, Henry now being in the employ of J. A. Budlong. The funeral was held from Our Lady of Lourdes church, January 29, with interment at St. Joseph's cemetery. The floral offerings from the trade were many and beautiful.

Miner J. Mulder, age 33, beloved son of Henrietta and the late John C. Mulder, brother of Mrs. H. C. Chadwick and O. H. Sample, and the late Charles Mulder, died this week. The funeral will be held from the late residence, 7923 Normal avenue, Friday, February 1, at 2:30 p. m., with interment at Mt. Greenwood cemetery.

THE JOHN HENRY COMPANY, Lansing, Mich.

Peter Reinberg is booking quite a number of orders for rooted carnation cuttings, of which his supply will be as large as in other years. This firm unloaded several carloads of Pocahontas coal this week which were in transit for nearly a month.

M. Doetsch, of the George Wittbold Co., joined the ranks of the benedicts January 28. This is the second man in the trade married on fuelless Monday. O'Leary, the florist, being the first, the previous Monday.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is handling a large quantity of spring flowers in addition to the regular line of other seasonable stock, particularly roses and carnations.

Bassett & Washburn are in good crop with carnations, which are moving better this week than they have since the holidays. Spring flowers are quite a factor at this house.

Percy Jones, Inc., reports a splendid shipping trade, as well as local demand. Some particularly fine carnations are seen at this establishment.

Harry Gardiner with A. T. Pyfer & Co. is back on the job after being confined to his home for several days with tonsillitis.

C. W. Johnson, of Mt. Greenwood cemetery, is attending the carnation meeting at Boston, Mass., this week.

J. A. Budlong is showing a fine line of stock, particularly roses, and reports an early cleanup in all lines.

George Asmus was one of the Florists' day speakers this week at Iowa Agricultural College, Ames.

Wm. Duntemann, of Bensonville, is doing jury service in Wheaton.

Bob Kuehne, of Lake Forest, was married January 20.

Visitors: J. McCarthy, representing M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Bruno Juergens, Peoria; Milton Alexander, with Lion & Co., New York; J. A. Karins, with Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.; — Brunning, with H. G. Berning, St. Louis, Mo.

OWENSBORO, KY.—Payment for flowers the Monday after purchase is now being asked by the Nanz Floral Co.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo.—The Stuppy Floral Co. will move to more commodious quarters in the Geiger building about March 1.

BLIZZARDS AND STOCK SHORTAGE.

The above describes conditions in this city for the past two weeks and is responsible for the present state of trade. However, from reports coming from the east, local florists have reasons to congratulate themselves. Although there is a decided shortage of cut flowers due to the cold weather and the uncertainty of express shipments, florists with the help of azaleas, cyclamens, a fair quantity of Paper Whites and some daffodils which are grown in this city have managed to take care of all orders in a fairly satisfactory manner. The demand for funeral work has been quite lively. Carnations are scarce and the quality only medium. Roses have been few and more limited ever since the holidays and prices are too high to be conducive to much business at this time of the year.

NOTES.

Forty thousand flowers were killed by the cold when a 500 foot section of the Woodville street house of Krueger Bros., large East Toledo growers, collapsed under the weight of the snow and ice resulting from the worst blizzard this city has ever experienced. Most of the flowers, many of which were just ready to cut, were carnations. The extreme cold also caused the loss of another carnation house of the same size when the pipes leading from the boiler burst. Two large houses of roses were saved from the general destruction. This new loss, coming right after the disastrous fire of Christmas which destroyed their Nevada street store, was certainly discouraging to this enterprising firm. However, they are making the best of the loss, which was partly covered by insurance, and will start rebuilding as soon as the weather permits.

for a three weeks' rest. The large holiday trade, coincident with the opening of the new flower department at La Salle & Koch's, was too much for him and he feels that he deserves a rest before the big spring drive. Schramm Brothers have purchased another Studebaker delivery car which is a beauty. Funeral work and decorations have been good at this progressive flower shop.

Garfield's closing order, now famous in the history of this country, caused for a time a great deal of perplexity to florists, many of whom did not know whether they were exempted or not. But in the end it was decided that from the very nature of their business, it could not include them and stores remained open. Trade, however, was affected by the general closing down of stores and factories.

The new Waldorf Flower Shop, which inaugurated its floral career so auspiciously in the Waldorf hotel just before Christmas, has sold its attractive furniture and other equipment and has retired from the field. Mr. Bloom, the proprietor, said that he had no fault to find with business, but was not used to the long hours of the flower business.

Max Spanner says the flower shortage is the worst he has experienced in his long business career. And it is rare, indeed, when Max cannot get plenty of stock.

John Barrow & Son have bought a new delivery car which is very attractive. This firm is not complaining much about the present state of business.

A. C. K.

HOUSTON, TEX.—The florists' club, at a meeting January 16, elected the following officers for the ensuing year: S. J. Mitchell, president; C. Kofahl, vice-president; C. E. Hogans, treasurer; S. Richardson, secretary; Paul Carroll and Henry Kuhlmann, Sr., trustees.

CHICAGO, ILL.

St. Louis.

SUPPLY IS LIMITED.

Stock of all kinds continues to be scarce, particularly roses. Of those seen the past week, Russell and Ophelia were very fine, but prices were stiff and the cut not near enough to supply the demand. Lilies have been fairly plentiful but of inferior quality. Sweet peas continue to improve, and with the opening of the weather, they ought to be good and lots of them. Violets are very fine, but they do not have as ready a sale as other flowers this year. St. Valentine's day should see a good supply of violets with a few days of bright weather. Lily of the valley is scarce. Bulbous stock is in good supply but does not overcrowd the market. Carnations are good, but in proportion there seem to be more dark colors than pink and white. Fancy ferns and smilax are plentiful, with Asparagus plumosus still on the scarce list.

NOTES.

Oscar May of Sappington, Mo., has a big crop of freesias coming on from which he expects to cut quite a few for St. Valentine's day. Last year this time he was cutting quite heavily, but on account of the long drawn out dark weather they have not progressed very rapidly.

W. J. Pilcher, vice-president of the S. A. F. for eastern Missouri, is camping on the trails of all eligible men for membership. Believe me, he is some solicitor. His early experience selling locks and keys stand him in good stead now. That was a hard game.

All the growers in this section have adopted the suggestion of the fuel administrator and are running their greenhouses cool. This necessitates close watching, and particularly, the rose growers have to be on the lookout for mildew.

President Bourdet states he has selected the various committees to take care of the coming S. A. F. convention to be held at the Moolah Temple in April. He will announce them at the next florist club meeting.

The past week saw quite a bit of funeral work. It seems everybody got their share from the activity seen around the market. F. C. Weber had large orders Sunday and also on Saturday.

Young Bros., who recently went into bankruptcy, held their auction last week. It is rumored that they intend to reopen a stand near the old location.

St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. has been getting in quite a fine lot of orchids. These ought to have a good call for St. Valentine's day.

Windler Wholesale Floral Co. has been handling large quantities of jonquils and freesias. Their sweet peas also have a big call.

Wm. C. Smith reports that his greenhouses, under Rudy Windt's management, show quite an improvement.

Both of the Tubbesing boys of the Ayers Floral Co. drew Class A in the questionnaire return.

AMPLE SUPPLY OF GOOD STOCK.

Business so far this year has been excellent with plenty of the very best of stock of all kinds with the exception of roses and violets. They have been shipped to our local stores from California and as a rule have arrived in first class condition. The year of 1917 was fairly good and gave the florists a chance to partially get squared up for the three years before, which we may term "three lean years," and now the coming year shows better promise than we have ever had before. This is partially due to the army post that we have so near our city, and which is proving to be a mighty good investment of the two million dollar tract of land that our city and county bought and gave to Uncle Sam for the Great Camp Lewis. Every kind of business has been greatly benefited and florists are surely getting their share. Weather conditions so far this winter have proven very mild, and in consequence the fuel piles have not been hard hit. So far the fuel problem has not caused any of our florists a moment's uneasiness, as there is no shortage here as in the east. There is a good call for stock for decorations that are used all over the city in honor of the officers and soldiers that are with us from all the Pacific Coast states. Bulbous stock so far has not produced any specially nice blooms, except the Paper Whites and a few white Romans. Sweet peas are coming in very slowly but they are fine. Home grown roses are as fine as we see anywhere—not half enough of them however. Carnations are plentiful enough and not so many "splits" as heretofore. The scarcity of good help is greater than our lack of coal or fuel. Propagation is under way for the spring bedding stock. We are naturally making greater effort than ever before. Everyone is expecting an unusual call for that kind of stock and we hope to have our beautiful city more attractive than ever and when our rose show comes off this city will get the greatest advertisement of any place in the west.

The Hayden-Watson Co. has been doing some extra fine design work of late. They have a greater wholesale shipping trade than any former season.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

SHORT ROSES ONLY SCARCITY.

The heatless and the eatless days, particularly the former, are very depressing. One can get other than the restricted articles to eat, but to get heat there must be coal. Elbert Hubbard declared transportation to be the greatest factor in civilization, and recent developments show him to be about right. Oh for a few more locomotives, or greater brains to use the few we have. There appears to be an increase in the supply of marketable flowers, the only really scarce items being short roses, the kind that sell from $4 to $8 per hundred. The longer grades in nearly all varieties is seen in most of the stock, but does not find an active demand. As one of the wholesalers put it: "Although receipts are light, there is about enough for the demand, but prices are too low; somehow, we cannot get the value which the quality of the stock warrants." Prices are much too low for the time of year. Carnations are beginning to back up a little. The quality is fine, but prices are not encouraging. Mignonette, splendid stock, goes a begging. Snapdragons move quite well at fair prices. Easter lilies appear to fit in for many uses and meet with a steady call. Cattleyas of superb quality are hard to move at $4 per dozen. There is still high grade lily of the valley, which bids fair now to hold out until the arrival of the new pips, which are reported at last to be on the way. One grower has received an invoice for a shipment of 100,000, but has no idea on what vessel it is coming, or when to expect it. Sweet peas hold their own in the competition. Nothing better has been seen here and prices are satisfactory. Golden Spur daffodils are offered freely. Paper Whites are too plentiful. Violets are a bit draggy, as are gardenias. Asparagus is a good crop. It is the scarcest thing in the market and brings top prices.

WITH THE WHOLESALEERS.

Jake Duetscher, of the artillery at Camp Meade, made a flying visit to this city Saturday last. A soldier's life is fine. Up at 6:30, a good breakfast and a day of activity in drilling, marching, firing and bayonet practice. The running or forced marching of a couple of hours takes the wind out of most of the boys at first, but they gradually get used to this strenuous service. The "go to sleep" at ten is always welcome.

Not many moons ago, the patriotic cry was buy a bale of cotton for $10 and help the south. Now one must pay 56 cents a pound for the common white wrapping cord that used to sell for 20 cents. Some growers still use this for tying bunches of flowers for market. What is the matter with raffia? Surely much cheaper and just as effective.

Clarence Liggett, chief of the S. S. Pennock Co.'s plant department, is rapidly turning over 25,000 Primula malacoides. He says that storekeepers are finding them ideal as a basket plant.

The Leo Niessen Co. find a lively call for asparagus, the supply being far short of the demand. American

NOTES.

In all the smaller cities and towns there are many florists who grow most of their own supply. In the fall and spring months they have sufficient, but in the winter when stock shortens up, they draw on the markets of the large cities. Edward Reid finds this class of buyers, as a rule, do not seem to realized that when flowers are scarce with them the same condition prevails elsewhere. They telegraph for stock, "must have it," "don't disappoint," and when we do our best at the lowest market price, we are called robbers. There is something wrong with the system. The little greenhouse men protest the loudest; they ought to be satisfied, at these times of scarcity, to work on small margins, as they never buy unless they have an order. They can rest assured that when stock is scarce, the men who produce it, expect and generally do get, the best market price.

The February meeting of the florists' club will have J. C. Saunders, of Harrisburg, Pa., as the essayist, his subject being, "The Importation of Plants from Belgium." Mr. Saunders has made a study of conditions as they now exist, and will present some very interesting information. There will also be an exhibition of the latest in sweet peas, as grown commercially, for this market. This should be very interesting to all growers of cut flowers, who will be cordially welcomed.

GOOD SUPPLY AND DEMAND.

Trade during the past week has been brisk with a plentiful supply of everything except roses. These have been short for some time and prices are very high. Carnations are flooding the market and are much more reasonable. Paper Whites are good and sell well. Daffodils are coming in fairly well but the call for them is not heavy. Murillo and Lorraine tulips are being offered but the stems are short. Violets are scarce but there is no great call for them. Easter lilies show good form and floral work which has been heavy absorbs quantities of them.

Many of the local florists received cards from Olney Williams during the past week. He is wintering at Palm Beach, Fla., his range being conducted by his sons during his absence.

DEMAND IN ALL LINES WEAK.

The wholesale cut flower trade continues sluggish, which is also an index to the retail trade. Roses continue to bring good prices, not on account of an increased volume of business, but on account of a short supply. American Beauties have been particularly scarce during the past week, and at this writing good specials are selling at the rate of $60 to $75 per 100, wholesale. It would seem that the word "special," relating to American Beauties, is much abused. We have recently noticed special American Beauties quoted at from $15 to $50 per 100, which on the face of it is ridiculous. An American Beauty may have a long stem, but if it only brings 15 cents when others bring 50 cents, it is hard to understand where the "special" comes in. All other roses are bringing good prices. Carnations continue slow at $2 to $3 per 100, with $4 for the best Wards and some fancy stock. Orchids, lily of the valley, sweet peas and various other stocks, of which there is an abundant supply, considering the limited demand, are all slow and cheap for this season of the year. It may be said that funeral work is now the principal feature of the trade, and there has been much of it. The city death rate is high and there have been large orders for the funerals of a number of men who have died at the army camps. There is an occasional decoration for a wedding or a dinner, but that branch of the business has greatly fallen off. In addition to the high cost of living and the disposition of many to be economical, the extremely cold weather and the coal shortage have had a bad effect on business. Regardless of all this, the florists are cheerfully trying to make the best of the situation, and most of them seem thankful that conditions are no worse. At this writing, the weather is not severe and it will be a boon to the growers if it continues moderate.

January 28.—With a temperature ranging from 10 degrees above zero at 6 a. m. to 14 above at 10 a. m., "heatless Monday" is not inspiring. All that the florists can do is to try to take care of their stock, and stores are generally closed. In response to a request from this office, Reeve Schley, the New York county fuel administrator, has written as follows: "Florists are entitled to maintain sufficient heat to prevent injury to plants in their stores."

NOTES.

At a meeting of the Associated Retail Florists, Inc., of New York, January 21, the following resolution was adopted: "Resolved, that in compliance with the recent order issued by Dr. Henry A. Garfield, fuel administrator, the business of members of this association will be conducted only during the daylight hours and that no light will be burned during the evening hours on the Mondays specified in said order, and the members of the trade generally are urged to comply with the spirit as well as the letter of Dr. Garfield's order." All members of this association close their places of business as soon as it becomes too dark without the aid of electric lights. You are requested to give this action and resolution publicity in order that other members of the craft may do likewise.

John A. Leach, whom Mayor Hylan caused to be appointed first deputy police commissioner, January 23, was reared a florist and though of late engaged in the practice of law, still takes an interest in the florist business. He is a director and counsel for the Cut Flower Exchange. His father was a grower who had a range in Long Island City, and after his death, John

One is designed for St. Valentine's day, the other can be used at any time and the retailer can write his own advertisement. These cuts are very attractive and should help business.

W. F. La Croix, a specialist in lilac forcing, is now bringing a fine quality of stock to market. Although he is located in New Jersey, he cannot risk shipping it under present conditions, so he brings it in. His stock is sold by William P. Ford, 107 West 28th street.

Riedel & Meyer, Inc., 49 West 28th street, are handling fine stock of acacias. From the Siebrecht range, Astoria, L. I., they receive daily shipments of lily of the valley. Landsmann, of Flatbush, is sending them fine lilies, yellow narcissis and freesias.

Calling recently on Charles L. Bartels, 413-419 East Tremont avenue, Bronx borough, we found him finely located in his new store, which is the finest retail store in that section of the city. He is ably assisted in its management by his brother.

N. J. Miller, 547 Columbus avenue, advises us that he has been quite busy this winter with funeral work. He has been in business in that locality for 27 years and has a good family trade, in the management of which he is ably assisted by Mrs. Miller.

Simon Hefele, 3361 Third avenue, who has been a New York florist for 50 years, says he has never experienced such a long, continued spell of cold weather as we have passed through, and other old florists agree with him.

Leikens, Madison avenue and 55th street, advises us that considering conditions, he has no complaint to make about business. On January 25, he had a large order for the funeral of a soldier who had died at one of the camps.

There have been several light falls of snow within the past few days, but travel has not been greatly obstructed. The storm from the west reached here January 28, but seems to have spent most of its force.

Charles Weber, the well known grower of Lynbrook, L. I., is around again after a period of inactivity, due to two broken ribs, injuries sustained by a fall on the ice during the recent cold weather.

Miss May Bowman, who is a clever assistant to her father, Herman Bowman, in his store at White Plains, N. Y., is recovering from a fractured ankle, which was a cold weather accident.

In addition to the great assortment of roses, carnations and lilies, Joseph S. Fenrich, 51 West 28th street, is receiving a large supply of narcissi, tulips, freesias and hyacinths.

M. C. Ford, 121 West 28th street, is receiving a particularly fine line of Golden Spurs from the range of John F. Madden, Jersey City, N. J., also fine tulips.

John Young & Co., 53 West 28th street, are receiving fine carnations and sweet peas from the range of Henry Weston, Hempstead, L. I.

In addition to a good stock of roses and orchids, Traendly & Schenck, 436 Sixth avenue, are now handling good yellow and pink tulips.

The Cadieux Company, which recently opened a good store at 1003 Madison avenue, report a very fair business.

Alfred Kottmiller, 426 Madison avenue, has orders for several fine decorations, to be arranged in the near future.

Nanse & Oechsli, of Huguenot Park, Staten Island, are bringing to market a fine quality of sweet peas.

Max Schling, 785 Fifth avenue, reports that he has been having large orders for funeral work.

Alexander Kupperman, manager of Fleischman's down town store, is the proud father of a son.

The firm of Guttman & Raynor, Inc., has discontinued their wholesale business.

Joseph Hill, of Richmond, Ind., was a visitor January 26.

Seed Corn Embargo Partially Raised.

Thursday morning, January 24, the Nebraska state council of defense placed an absolute embargo on all seed corn going out of the state. In the afternoon, the seedsmen of the state met with a committee of the council and secured a modification of the embargo to the extent that flint corn, sweet corn and pop corn were absolutely exempted from the embargo. They also secured permission to go on and fill existing sales of extreme early varieties of flint corn, such as Pride of the North, King of the Earlies, Golden Glow, Minnesota King, Minnesota 13, Wisconsin No. 8, and a few like special varieties. This enables business to go on to a certain extent, but the embargo, having been made good until March 15, absolutely prohibits shipping out any of the larger dent corns, such as are ordinarily grown in the state.

The seed corn situation is getting worse and worse. While there is a fair amount of old corn in the state, the total amount would probably be represented by only a few thousand bushels, while it takes about 800,000 bushels to plant the state of Nebraska. Undoubtedly, unless farmers make test of ear to ear, and absolutely know what they are planting, they will be obliged to plant 55 to 65 per cent corn this year, and this simply means disaster in the general crop.

THE J. C. ROBINSON SEED CO.

Seedsmen's View of Price Fixing.

A meeting of the Wholesale Grass Seed Dealers' Association, called in compliance with a request of the government for the association to give its advice as to the desirability of fixing prices of corn and clover seed, announcement of which was made in last week's issue, page 80, was held at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, January 25, and was well attended. The sentiment of the meeting was against fixing prices of the items under discussion, and appropriate resolutions were passed to be presented to the government. Among the firms represented at the meeting were: The Albert Dickinson Co., Chicago; Chas. S. Brent & Bro., Paris, Ky.; D. I. Bushnell & Co., St. Louis, Mo.; Churchill Grain & Seed Co., Toledo, O.; Coughy, Jossman Co., Detroit, Mich.; Crabb, Reynolds, Taylor Co., Crawfordsville, Ind.; H. W. Dougherty, Inc., New York; S. W. Peppard Seed Co., Kansas City, Mo.; Plant Seed Co., St. Louis, Mo.; Chas. E. Prunty, St. Louis, Mo.; Philadelphia Seed Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; Pacific Seed Co., Caldwell, Ida.; Ross Seed Co., Louisville, Ky.; Wm. G. Scarlett & Co., Baltimore, Md.; Schisler, Corneli Seed Co., St. Louis, Mo.; Steele, Briggs Seed Co., Toronto, Ont.; W. A. Simpson Co., Baltimore, Md.; Stanford Seed Co., Buffalo, N. Y.; L. Teweles & Co., Milwaukee, Wis.; T. W. Wood & Son, Richmond, Va., and Curtis Nye Smith, counsel, Boston, Mass.

THE RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, The seed stocks committee of the department of agriculture has requested the seedsmen to assist it in determining the best plan of handling the clover seed and seed corn situation, and,

Whereas, The seedsmen are now in session at the Hotel Sherman in Chicago, for the purpose of arriving at a solution of the problems under consideration; now, be it

Resolved, That we submit to the committee the following suggestions:

Resolved, That the exportation of red clover seed should be promptly restricted by governmental order to sales made prior to issuance of such order, except that exports to Canada for Canadian use, or to our other allies, should be permitted; this restriction to remain in effect until July 1, 1918. We do not favor the taking over by the government of seed sold to neutral countries which has been bought in good faith for use in neutral countries, but we approve the enforcement of the Trading With the Enemy Act in cases where the government has good reason to believe that the seed is likely to reach enemy countries.

KELWAY & SON, Wholesale Seed Growers, LANGPORT, SOMERSET ENGLAND

Our reason for not favoring the taking over of seed now awaiting exportation is that this would be very detrimental to future trade relations between this country and friendly nations, and particularly with our allies in arms. We call the attention of the committee to the fact that the United States is normally quite dependent on foreign countries for many varieties of seeds. As a further reason why we deem it unwise to take over the seed now awaiting export, it is our opinion that the amount so capable of being taken over is comparatively small and would not materially affect the situation.

If, in the judgment of the government, it becomes necessary to take over clover seed, as stated above, it seems to us that such clover seed should be put on the market in suitable parcels and sold to the highest bidder or bidders for distribution in this country.

The question of fixing a price at which clover should sell is one of serious moment. The production of clover seed, as compared with our consumptive demand, has been steadily decreasing for a number of years. We believe that all possible encouragement should be given to stimulate its increased production. We think this can be better accomplished by allowing free, open competition to regulate the price.

As to the present emergency, we find strong evidence that clover seed is now moving toward the points of consumption in a way to indicate that it will all reach the planter.

It seems to us that neither producers nor dealers will take the risk of carrying over clover seed at the present price level.

The idea of price fixing is not popular with the people of our country. This applies to farmers as well as tradesmen.

We believe governmental agencies can do more to help the red clover seed situation by encouraging the use of alsike clover seed, alfalfa seed, field peas, soy beans, cow peas, other legumes, rape seed and other forage crops than by any attempt at price regulation, which must of necessity be difficult and cumbersome and which would tend to restrict the distribution of seed through the usual channels. Further, be it

Resolved, That it is our opinion that a great shortage exists in the seed corn supply and that everything possible should be done to bring out all existing stocks. We recognize the fact that the seed corn situation differs materially from the clover seed situation.

Clover seed is freely interchangeable from one locality to another, and even from one climate to another. Corn must be carefully selected and acclimated in order to produce the best crop.

All clover seed is more or less suitable for planting; large quantities of corn are worthless for seed.

Clover is a secondary crop, failure of which is not directly and immediately disastrous; corn is a principal crop, and its failure would be immediately disastrous.

We believe the seed corn problem is vastly more important now than the clover seed problem.

We come to the same conclusion as to the fixed price on seed corn which we arrived at with regard to clover seed, viz.: that no price should be fixed. The same reasons applying as we have already enumerated on clover seed, with these added reasons:

Practically all of the seed corn is still in the hands of the growers, and they are strongly in favor of the laws of supply and demand controlling the price.

Further, we recognize the fact that the cost per acre of seedling corn is relatively very much lower than that of any other principal crop, therefore a high price per bushel for seed corn is not of serious consequence. The most desirable thing to be accomplished is to get seed corn thoroughly acclimated and of high germinable quality.

For these reasons, and many other reasons that might be enumerated, we believe it would be Highly detrimental to the present acute situation to attempt to fix a price on seed corn.

So far as the exportation of seed corn to Canada or to our other allies is concerned, we believe that, notwithstanding the apparent shortage, such exportation should not be prohibited, for the reason that our interests at the present time are so closely interlinked with those of Canada as to make the closest possible trade relations between the two countries most desirable and necessary.

If, however, the government overrules this recommendation with regard to seed corn intended for the production of mature corn, there is certainly no good reason for restricting the exportation of seed corn intended for the production of fodder or ensilage, because there is no great scarcity of seed corn reasonably suitable for such use.

In all of the conclusions at which we have arrived, we have kept foremost in our minds the extreme desirability of having all of the present available stocks of both clover seed and seed corn reach the planter, to the end that a full crop of both may be assured for the 1918 season. Further, be it

Resolved, That we most heartily endorse the movement now being carried forward for making a very thorough house-to-house survey throughout the entire country to determine the amount of available seeds of all kinds for planting during the coming springtime, and that we recommend to the National Council of Defense that they through their state councils prosecute very vigorously this undertaking and that they encourage by every means in their power the selections, testing and saving of seed corn.

Tomato Plant Stock Doubled.

A few seasons ago the idea struck me that I was going to have only about half as many tomato plants as I would probably need and they promised to be too tall and large, so I tried the plan of cutting the tops out and rooting them and this is the way I handled the proposition. A number of flats were prepared with good, sandy, friable loam soil—they were prepared about the same as we would use to put chrysanthemums or carnations in but just a little more sand was used.

My plants were sure to be too large by the time for planting out arrived. This fact became apparent about the second week in April and our planting out time here is after the middle of May. The time remaining was just a month. My plants were from six inches to a foot in height, so I began on the taller ones, which were cut down about one-half so they gave me a nice size for cutting and at the same time left the parent plant right to make a good, low branched plant.

The cuttings were placed in the flat so they would give 50 plants to the flat and allow half a dozen or more for percentage of loss, which I figured to run about 10 or 15 per cent. That proved to be plenty high enough as they only lost about five or six per cent and it is my opinion that with good careful handling that five or six per cent will be enough to allow for loss. We all know that a tomato is naturally one of the easiest things to strike roots that we have in the plant line. Ever notice how the stems will take roots if they are allowed to lop down on the ground? Well they will all be as free to strike roots if they are well put into a flat of the proper kind of soil and by handling them as above one can save the plants that would become overgrown, for it branches them in fine shape and doubles your stock that will be in the best size and shape—just ready to plant out on time.

Tomatoes Under Glass.

For the early spring crop of tomatoes under glass an early start is necessary. Some growers prefer to sow the seeds as early as December 1. This may work out all right where a warm house is not available, as under such conditions as prevail in lettuce houses these tomato plants develop very slowly. However, where 56° to 60° are available, we prefer a later date, anywhere from January 15 to February 15. We have always believed that a more rapid growth is best for the tomato plant. The ideal conditions are a fairly rich soil, especially as regards humus; a warm house, and only moderate moisture. The best results are not obtained where plants are subject to frequent syringing as in rose houses—better keep the moisture off the foliage.

Recently some old principles have received a severe jolt. There is a large class of gardeners who believe that a plant is benefited by frequent transplanting. They claim earliness, productiveness, stronger constitution, etc., as some of the results of such transplanting. We have, however, held that all such shifts are, at best, an injury, large or small, according to the skill employed and depending upon prevailing conditions. This theory is gaining ground, as tomato growers slowly admit that the sooner the young seedlings are planted into the permanent beds, the better the crop, thus doing away with potting up. So far have some proceeded in this line that they take seedlings direct from seed beds and plant among lettuce in permanent beds.

As regards varieties, Bonny Best leads at present. John Baer is very similar, but a trifle larger. These two are scarlet. For a pink tomato, Globe leads in many sections. Beauty and Detroit are also used. Of the three, Detroit is our favorite. Florists are gradually learning to use part of their space in the spring for tomatoes, which is a good practice. MARKETMAN.

Ten truly marvelous acquisitions, introducing new tones of color and showing the highest development in form and habit.

Carmine Beauty. Deep bright carmine flowers, freely produced high above the heavy dark-green foliage which has a narrow red margin. The flowers, while not as large as those of Olympic, are of a much brighter and more pleasing tone. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 75 cts. each; \$7.50 per doz.

Cheerfulness. No more appropriate name could be given to this brilliant novelty. Its beautiful bright fire-red or deep orange flowers appear early and continue without interruption until frost. Add to the prevailing color a golden border and center with each petal flaked carmine-crimson and you may form some conception of this fascinating variety with its erect stems always topped with clusters of cheerful color held high above the foliage. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 35 cts. each; \$3.50 per doz.

Cloth of Gold. A very attractive dwarf, compact, growing, free-flowering golden yellow. 3 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Dazzler. Time and again the past season the dark green foliage of this variety has been hidden beneath the mass of clusters of deep fire-red flowers. The intensity of coloring and freedom of blooming coupled with compact habit, make this variety the peer of the best for bedding purposes. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 35 cts. each; \$3.50 per doz.

Golden Eagle. A wonderfully intense golden-yellow. Very free upright grower. The large flowers are produced in great clusters well above the foliage. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 50 cts. each; \$5.00 per doz.

Harmony. Great clusters of good-sized, well-formed Geranium-red flowers are arranged on good stems in such a manner as to give the trusses an almost globular appearance. Altogether a dignified harmonious combination. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 50 cts. each; \$5.00 per doz.

Poppy. Intense poppy-red. Large perfect florets in good trusses over greenish-bronzy foliage. Rich and effective. 5 ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Salmon Queen. An entirely new color in Cannas. Rosy salmon-scarlet, blending to a rosy-carmine toward the center. The large substantial flowers are freely produced in great clusters high above heavy green foliage. Very effective in bedding. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Sensation. To get a sensational color-tone in a pink Canna is particularly noteworthy. Our first impulse was to call it "La France" because the color called to mind the La France Rose but the tone is even cleaner and purer; it being a lovely pale-rose. The foliage is a beautiful glaucous-green; the plant dwarf and compact. One of the most noteworthy additions to Cannas in recent years. 3 ft., 75 cts. each.

TYPE OF NEWER CANNAS.

Superb. This variety is unique in color and truly superb; having large, clean bright orange-scarlet blossoms of good substance, produced on strong stalks with glaucous-bronzy foliage giving a most pleasing effect. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

One each of the above Ten Novelties for $4.00.

New Cannas From Other Sources

We offer here eight new varieties, which after several years' trial have proven themselves worthy of our commendation.

Cleopatra. A striking beauty. Wonderful deep carmine-crimson flowers surmounting the dark glaucous-bronze foliage. This variety stands out strongly in effectiveness. 4 ft., 50 cts. each; $5 per doz.

Dragon. An incessant bloomer, continuing to produce new stalks of flowers until cut down by frost. Dark ox-blood red. 3 ft., 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Flag of Truce. A large flowered creamy-white, with faint pink dots on each petal. The general effect is white. Not as white nor as tall as Eureka but quite distinct and valuable. 4 ft., 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Gaiety. Reddish-orange mottled with carmine and edged with yellow. The tongue is yellow and densely spotted with carmine. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 15 cts. each; \$1.50 per doz.

Lafayette. In some respects resembles the variety "Meteor" but the flowers are not quite as dark, stand more erect and the plant grows taller. 5 ft. 30 cts. each; $3.00 per doz.

Pocahontas. (Bronze-leaved Olympic.) Large oriental-red flowers borne on firm upright stems, just high enough above the foliage to show the entire head. The foliage is a dark bronze-green with emerald shadings; the ribs a darker bronze; one of the best recent introductions. 4 ft., 30 cts. each; $3 per doz.

San Diego. Chinese-orange or Persian-yellow. The crimped petals are remarkable for substance which enables them to withstand the hot summer sun without wilting. Another charm lies in the dark bronze color of the buds which harmonize with the rich bronze foliage. 4 ft., 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Varouna. We have tried this variety for several years and at all times the bright orange-scarlet flowers, combined with the good bronze foliage, has won our admiration. A free luxuriant grower, producing its flowers well above the plant. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 25 cts. each; \$2.50 per doz.

One each of the Eight Varieties for $2.00.

War Food Garden Commission.

The former National Emergency Food Garden Commission, which is not, as might be supposed, a United States Government department but an organization operating independently, has changed its title to War Food Garden Commission. Why commission? Ordinarily organizations of this kind are called societies. Commission sounds as if it were retained in the title so the organization may be considered as operated by the government. If the work of the organization were carried on under a title clearly indicating what it is, such as War Food Garden Society, the public could have more confidence in its purpose.—New York Sun.

SHENANDOAH, IA.—E. S. Welch, proprietor of the Mt. Arbor Nursery, has purchased an additional acre of land near Sharpsburg.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Charles M. Robinson of this city, widely known as a city planning authority, died December 30 of pneumonia.

NEW ALBANY, IND.—The Floyd Knobs Fruit Growers' Association has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: F. A. Banet, president; C. E. Clark, vice-president; L. S. Clark, business manager.

Western Association of Nurserymen.

The annual meeting of the Western Association of Nurserymen was held in Kansas City, Mo., January 23, members present representing 13 states. Twelve thousand dollars was subscribed, the beginning of a fund for co-operative advertising. Discussion showed there was a shortage of stock of all lines, especially fruit trees, there being much confusion in express shipments. Inability to get imported stock and the slowness of freight movements were also factors in the limited supply.

Officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: W. C. Reed, Vincennes, Ind., president; Earl D. Needham, Des Moines, Ia., vice-president; George Holsinger, Rosedale, Kan., secretary-treasurer. Executive committee: H. D. Simpson, Vincennes, Ind.; Paul C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; A. E. Willis, Ottawa, Kan.; H. C. Sonderegger, Beatrice, Neb.; Geo. H. Johnson, Kansas City, Mo.

GEO. W. HOLSINGER, Sec'y.

New England Nurserymen's Association.

The seventh annual convention of the New England Nurserymen's Association was held at the Hotel Bellevue, Boston, Mass., January 29-30. The first day's meeting opened with a very good attendance, who listened with interest to the president's address, the report of the secretary and the several speakers. "Fertilizers for the Nursery" was a topic very ably handled by Dr. H. J. Wheeler, Boston, Mass., and V. A. Vanicek, Newport, R. I., in his paper on "Home Propagation" demonstrated that it is possible, but not advantageous, to propagate some kinds of nursery stock in this country. "Trade Development and Sales Extension," bearing on publicity, was a subject introduced by Herbert Kelsey, and after a spirited discussion it was unanimously recommended that the nurserymen's national publicity campaign should be financed, each nurseryman being asked to contribute a minimum sum of not less than one-half of one per cent of his gross annual business. The total business of the members of the association is estimated at about $1,500,000 per annum, while the total business of the trade in the United States is about $20,000,000. "The Labor Problem in Nurseries" was another able article well handled by a representative of the J. I. Case Flow Works, Racine, Wis. The experience meeting, led by Professor W. C. Okane, Durham, N. C., was an interesting feature to all present. The address of Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass., on "An Embargo on Nursery Stock" brought out many pertinent points, while the last number on the programme, "Insect Pests," resulted in a discussion by the entomologists present. Following the session of Tuesday afternoon, the annual banquet was held at the Hotel Bellevue, an event that was fully enjoyed by all present.

Wichita, Kan.

SEVERE WEATHER SHORTENS SALES.

Everything considered, trade has been probably all that could reasonably have been expected for January. The severe winter weather has done much to shorten up transient store trade, thus cutting into cash receipts and many days' total of sales. The weather has been unusually cold and inclement. This, with the prevailing fuel shortage and extremely high prices of same, has given the florists plenty to think about, even to the point of worry. However, except for a few cases of frost-bite in a house or two, no serious freezes have been reported among the local florists. Home-grown stock is generally showing up well and is much appreciated in these days of indefinite train and express service. Prices at retail are quoted about the same as in former seasons, except that there is a little more careful grading up and most of the stores will show a selected stock of roses or carnations at a higher price, in addition to those offered at usual prices. This stock sells to the buyer who wants the best and is willing to pay for it, while the regular run of prices takes care of those who would not pay advanced figures even for superior quality.

NOTES.

W. H. Culp & Co. are using fuel oil for the greenhouses. They find it increases the capacity of a boiler at least 25 per cent. The burners used are made in their own shop and are very efficient and simple.

Frank Cluff is planning to help Hoover by providing a large stock of vegetable garden plants for the spring trade. C. A. Rose will also, as usual, have a heavy stock in this line.

Floyd Arrington, formerly with W. H. Culp & Co., but who tried farming for a year, and was successful, too, is back in the trade and has a position with Chas. P. Mueller.

John Smith, who has been with Chas. P. Mueller for the past several years, has abandoned the florist's profession and taken a clerical position with one of the railroads.

Wm. Hasselman, of Independence, Kan., was in the city last week. His fuel worries are few, having an ample supply of natural gas at 10 cents per thousand.

Chas. P. Mueller has a good cut of roses coming in and also some very good bulb stock.

Visitors: J. W. Van Valkenburg, with L. Baumann & Co., Chicago; Arthur Zirkman, of M. Rice Co., Philadelphia; Paul Kronnell, of Speelman & Son, Holland. C.

LITTLE CHANGE IN TRADE CONDITIONS.

Market conditions remain practically unchanged, with the exception of bulbous stock, which is more plentiful. Carnations are improving daily since the weather has moderated. Roses are also better in quality, especially Francis Scott Key, while Sweetheart are almost a glut. Blooming plants are readily disposed of.

NOTES.

A. B. Lamberton, connected with the park system for the past 24 years, has resigned his position as commissioner, to take effect February 1. His administration of park affairs has been an unqualified success and news of his retirement is received with sincere regret. He is planning to go abroad and scatter good cheer among the boys in the trenches.

Collatos Bros. recently had an attractive window of baskets of spring flowers with pot lilies arranged to advantage.

George Pringle, of Salter Bros., is still on the sick list, his place being filled for the time being by George Cramer.

Visitors: Robert Shock, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; A. M. Ascher, Philadelphia, and S. A. Weller, Zanesville, O.

CHESTER.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—At its January meeting, the Rochester Florists' Association re-elected the following officers: H. B. Stringer, president; Fred Thomann, vice-president; Ambrose H. Secker, secretary; George T. Boucher, treasurer.

Improved Primula Malacoides

Every one knows what a wonderful little house plant the Original Baby Primrose is. But the old one must now take a back seat, for the New Improved Strain, with its beautiful rose pink color, fine graceful form, freedom of bloom, and keeping qualities, makes it far superior to the old type.

A sample shipment will convince you that there is nothing that will make a more elegant St. Valentine gift.

THEY SELL ON SIGHT.

COAL FAMINE OVER.

The second terrific blizzard within two weeks enveloped this city January 27, and forced the mercury down to 12 degrees below zero. The conditions under foot have been extremely bad, railroad transportation seriously interfered with, and shipments have been frozen stiff. It has been particularly hard on the wholesaler, as under these adverse conditions, business has not been up to normal with them, and also their production has been cut off to quite an extent by running the greenhouses on low temperatures to conserve the coal. However, the worst is over, as the local fuel administrators' office has been abandoned and coal may be procured from any local dealer. However, our brother florists in the surrounding towns are not quite so fortunate, and a number have had to close down their houses on account of lack of fuel. Business has been booming in funeral work and hospital orders have been very numerous, including both cut flowers and blooming plants. As to the supply, there is a plentiful stock of almost everything, except where the lack of shipping facilities have interfered. Roses could be more plentiful, especially in the longer stemmed grades. The quality is good, however, in spite of the unfavorable weather.

NOTES.

The first two, of the heatless Mondays found local florists, both retail and wholesale, observing the spirit as well as the letter of the law. The wholesalers send out no shipments on Mondays, and low temperatures are run in the greenhouses, while the retailers are open only long enough to send out their funeral orders, and keep just fire enough to preserve the plants. The retail stores are also observing the 5:30 closing order on other week days. The employees will be paid as usual.

Cypripediums and cattleyas are being cut in large quantities at the W. J. & M. S. Vesey greenhouses. Their cut of roses, lilies, carnations, and other staples, is large, and they believe that were it not for the unsatisfactory transportation facilities, business would be more than satisfactory this month.

The Flick Floral Co. has plenty of roses, carnations, and pot plants, which are sufficient for all demands. They are displaying some very unique St. Valentine novelties, and believe in advertising early for any holiday, thereby diverting the public's mind from coal and the weather.

They are showing some excellent Spencer sweet peas and carnations from their own greenhouses at the Doswell Floral Co.'s store. The demand has continued strong, with funeral work more than plentiful.

Some fine roses and baskets of bulbous stock were noted at the store of Edgar Wenninghoff last week. Business is all that could be desired at this establishment.

The A. J. Lanternier Co. had sufficient stock to meet all demands, with a fine lot of funeral work called for during the week.

H. K.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.—W. G. Roerich has discontinued business temporarily.

King Greenhouses

Keep Summer With You The Whole Year Round.

On account of their sturdy, special construction, which permits of great strength without the need of heavy shadow casting supports, these houses are so warm and sunny that they are filled with a riot of bloom and fruit when Jack Frost has stripped the garden of its beauty. The ventilating and heating systems are the result of years of experience in building for professional growers. Things just have to grow in a King.

STOCK SHOWS IMPROVED CONDITION.

With improved weather conditions last week the volume of stock increased but the blizzard, January 25, resulted in a setback. Roses are better than they have been, but are none too plentiful, Russell taking the lead. Carnations are seen in greater number and of better grade. Sweet peas are also coming fast, showing improvement in flower and stem. Pot plants are proving good property. A heavy supply of miscellaneous cut flowers is absorbed by heavy calls for funeral work and hospital orders. E. J. B.

San Francisco Notes.

The E. W. McLellan Co. reports a very heavy shipping business. Practically the entire cut of their greenhouses is being shipped out of the city. Manager J. A. Axell is at present somewhat anxious as to the arrival of many eastern shipments, owing to the severe storms in the vicinity of Chicago. The supply of freesias that is being received at the Bush street store is of the very finest quality. The cut of gardenias is particularly heavy just now. Business is so rushing that Manager Axell and his force of packers report at 3 o'clock every morning.

The rains of the last few days have been a boon to the violet growers. This has been the driest season in this vicinity since the United States government has established its weather bureau here, and as a consequence the violets have become small and short-stemmed. The shipping of this flower, which is cultivated on an immense scale in this vicinity, has developed into a large industry and the improvement in the quality of the stock will be of material advantage to the growers and shippers.

At the last meeting of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society the new officers for the coming year were installed. David V. Tuttle becomes the new president and John M. Daly the new secretary. The other officers remain the same as last year. A large attendance turned out to the installation, and after the business meeting was over, a tempting repast was served.

Angelo J. Rossi is so improved in health that he may be found at the firm's store on Kearney street daily. He says that the usual after-holiday dullness did not strike his firm this year, an opinion which is voiced by the trade in general. Frank Pelicano is busily engaged at his greenhouses preparing for the distribution of his new dahlias in 1918.

The greenhouses of Ferrari Bros. are now in perfect condition. This firm is just now the chief source of supply of lily of the valley and Ophelia roses. Pete Ferrari says he never knew business to be in a more healthy condition at this time of the year. They are also cutting heavily of cattleyas and cypripediums.

The orchid range of John Carbone, at Berkeley, is now supplying the greater part of the cattleyas and cypripediums that this market is receiving. All his greenhouses are in the very finest shape and he will have a heavy cut for a long time to come. He reports the shipping demand to be strong and steady.

Frank R. Mills, of Palo Alto, tells us he had the best holiday trade in the history of his business at Christmas. He had an extra large stock of flowering plants and disposed of them without effort. His cut of carnations was especially heavy, all of which was used in his shipping trade.

Manager Shellgrain, of the J. B. Boland Co., is busily engaged on plans for the new store of the company into which they hope to move June 1. The present store has proved inadequate for the growing business, so larger quarters are being sought.

Kenneth S. Murray, of Redwood City, is bringing in a heavy cut of freesias just now. He has several houses devoted to this crop, including many of the newer colored varieties. His crop of roses is also heavy and of the finest quality.

Avensino Bros. report a very fine trade since the holidays. They expect to have a very large cut of daffodills shortly from their place in Alameda county. They are the largest growers and handlers of this flower on the coast.

The Golden State Florist, which recently opened for business at 212 O'Farrell street, report themselves pleased with business since their opening. They are showing some especially fine grown sweet peas this week.

Henry Day, of the staff of the American Florist Shop on Polk street, who was sent to Camp Lewis in the first draft, has been discharged by the army for physical disabilities, and has returned to his old position.

Frank R. Mills is cutting some extra fine Belle Washburn carnations and has no difficulty in shipping them at high figures. He says the plant trade is opening up slowly this season, owing to the absence of rain.

Schwerin Bros. are sending into this market the largest cut of flowers since they have been in business. Practically every store in town is dependent on this firm for their fern supply, which is of the finest quality.

Julius Eppstein says he is pleased with the way business has kept going since the new year. He specializes in orchids and gardenias and disposes of large quantities of these favorites daily.

August Filie has fully recovered from his recent injury to his foot. Dame Rumor has it that he is soon to join the ranks of the benedicts.

O. J. Bianchini has disposed of his floral business at Polk and California streets and has joined the forces of the Art Floral Co.

Manuel Russo has left the employ of F. C. Jaeger & Son after long service and at present is undecided as to his future plans. G. N.

Mastica is elastic and tenacious, admits of expansion and contraction. Putty becomes hard and brittle. Broken glass easily removed without breaking of other glass, as occurs with hard putty. Lasts longer than putty. Easy to apply.

Annual Meeting and Exhibition, Boston, Mass., January 30-31, 1918.

Exhibition Features.

If quality counts, then the 1918 show was the "best ever," as it was conceded by all the experts that such uniform excellence had not been equalled at any previous exhibition.
Here are a few expressions:

S. J. Goddard: "The best carnation show ever held in this country; perhaps not quite so large as some, but leading them all in quality."

Carl Hagenburger: "A splendid exhibition. I never saw finer flowers at any show."

Wm. R. Nicholson: "A grand show of splendid flowers. They are getting better all the time."

Wallace R. Pierson: "An excellent display, considering conditions. A record breaker."

S. S. Skidelsky: "Superb flowers, worth coming a long distance to see.
A credit to Boston."

A. A. Pembroke: "Much better than we expected. I have never seen choicer flowers. Sorry not to have had more outside competition."

A. F. J. Baur: "I knew from the entries there would be a good show, but it has exceeded my expectations.
I never saw better quality."

C. W. Johnson: "A fine collection of superb flowers. Equal to the Indianapolis display of last year."

Eugene Dailedouze: "It's a fine show, a mighty fine show. Wonderful flowers."

While the staging could not have been improved upon, the setting might have been better, as there were no palms as a background to relieve the bare walls of the large hall.

There were 105 vases as against 113 at Indianapolis, which, considering the war conditions, is very creditable.

The exhibit by the Wm. F. Kasting Co., Buffalo, N. Y., of two vases of one dozen each of the Hamburg Late White and Hamburg Late Pink chrysanthemums attracted great attention.
They were splendid, large flowers of good form and color for so late in the season.

Carl Hagenburger's exhibit of dwarf solanum, Cleveland, and his new one with orange colored berries, was so popular with the visitors that he had finally to enclose the plants in a glass case to save the berries. Just to think that this happened in Boston. A certificate of merit for Cleveland and a bronze medal for the orange variety from the Massachusetts Horticultural Society were his reward.

Penn, The Florist, made an exhibit of carnations in various shaped baskets, nicely decorated with ribbons, which attracted attention. Henry R.
Comley's exhibit of mantle and arrangements of carnations in vases was also very decorative. Philip L. Carbone decorated a dinner table with Italian ware, the center vase of which was elegantly filled with Laddie carnations.
Antique chairs around the table were a feature. Zinn and the Boston Cut Flower Co. made exhibits of cut flowers.

The Business Sessions.

The opening session was called to order by James Wheeler, who, in behalf of the mayor, unable to be present, welcomed the visitors. He commented favorably on the splendid showing of carnations which greatly eclipsed the last exhibition held by the society in Boston some years ago. C.
W. Johnson, of Chicago, on behalf of the visitors, thanked Mr. Wheeler for his welcome and expressed the pleasure it gave those who had braved the storms and distance to attend. Many more from the west would have liked to have been present, but on account of the troubled times, were unable to do so. Vice-President Chas. S. Strout then took the chair. After eulogizing President W. J. Vesey, Jr., for his gallantry in going to the aid of his country, he read his address, written in the army camp. This contained many excellent suggestions and was listened to with attention and loudly applauded. Mr. Strout then spoke feelingly of the tragic death of J. A. Valentine, an ex-president and always an earnest worker in the society; also, the passing of F. C. Bartels and A. J. Baur, and appointed a committee to draw up fitting resolutions to their memory.

The coal situation was vital to all present, and Mr. Strout expressed the opinion that this should receive earnest consideration; also, the matter of low temperatures and the growing of vegetables in place of flowers to a certain extent, so as to conform to the food producing ideas of the government officials.

The secretary's and the treasurer's reports were then read. The society has now a membership of 344 members. Its funds were also shown to be on the safe side.

For the first time in the history of the society there was no invitation from any city desiring the next convention. On hearing this, Carl Hagenburger, president of the Cleveland Florists' Club, at once extended an invitation to come to that city, assuring a hearty welcome. The matter was finally left to the board of directors, who will decide later.

Nominations of officers to serve for the ensuing year were then made, the following gentlemen being named:

For president, Charles S. Strout, Biddeford, Maine; vice-president, Carl Hagenburger, Mentor, O.; secretary, A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind.; treasurer, F. E. Dorner, Lafayette, Ind. For director, A. A. Pembroke, Beverly, Mass., term five years, to succeed S. J. Goddard, whose term expires. For judges, S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., to succeed R. Witterstaetter, Cincinnati, O., and Joseph Hill, Richmond, Ind., to succeed W. J. Palmer, Buffalo, N. Y., whose terms expire.

The question of responsibility for frozen or damaged shipments was then taken up. A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y., said he believed careful packing one of the first requisites. While there had been greater trouble than ever this year, he had found the express companies reasonable and fair in regard to any just claims that were properly made. Carl Hagenburger's experience was that many customers did not know how to handle frozen shipments. He thought that packages should be accepted in the great majority of cases and handled carefully; not opened up in a warm store, but placed in a cool room or cellar, where thawing out gradually, they would come through all right. Mr. Brown, of the Cottage Gardens Co., said he had known of various shipments of carnation cuttings, which, although frozen solid, had, by careful handling, thawed out and were none the worse. He warned those who insured goods shipped by parcels post, that this only insured safe delivery, and not conditions or contents of package. Joseph Hill stated he had found parcels post special delivery gave excellent results for carnation cuttings for even long distances.

S. S. Skidelsky, Philadelphia, expressed the opinion that the receiver could do a great deal to help and should not turn down every package because of minor delays or other trifling excuses. Transfer points and agents not being given sufficient time to load or unload packages at any stations, when trains were behind time, was the cause of much of the trouble. Peter Fisher, Ellis, Mass., said that he always placed a printed slip in his shipments, telling how to treat cuttings or plants should they arrive in frozen condition, which had been of great service.

The report of the judges was read and approved. C. S. Strout called attention to the high scoring of 92 points for Crystal White, which he believed to be a new record, or the highest number ever scored for a new carnation. The meeting then adjourned.

At the Thursday morning session, the election of officers was first in order. There being but one nomination for each office, the rules were suspended, and Secretary Baur cast a ballot declaring all elected as nominated.

The coal situation and how best to conserve fuel was then taken up. E. Allen Pierce, Waltham, Mass., told of the experience of the committee that appeared before the fuel administration at Washington. The wish of the administrator, he said, was that the florists cut down their consumption of coal 30 per cent.

W. R. Nicholson reported he had found it quite feasible to run carnations down to a temperature of 45°, and even 42° would not harm them. To do this, however, they must be started low early in the season and get used to it. To allow the temperature to vary, high and then low, would be disastrous. Eugene Dailledouze said in growing carnations he used seven tons to each 1,000 feet of glass in a season, while in growing roses, it took 14 tons to the 1,000 to keep the temperature up to 60°. Another grower's experience was that in dropping the temperature of the carnation houses from 50° to 40° and 44°, he had saved 50 per cent of the coal. Screening the coal, using the fine to keep slow fires in day time and the coarser material for an active fire at night, has helped considerably. The plants were very healthy and vigorous, but not quite so productive. Flowers did not split any more than before.

S. J. Goddard said he kept his houses up to January at 52°, which he thought ideal temperature, but had now reduced to 45° night and 62° day. He saw little difference, except flowers took longer to mature and open and the outside petals faded in color. He stated he did not believe they kept so well when cut. Peter Fisher's low limit is 45°, as below that was injurious. The rose temperature had gone down to as low as 38° and 62° during the day and produced flowers of excellent color, Ophelias particularly.

Every florist was urged to make a statement, showing his reduction of glass operated to the fuel administrator of his district. This to show that they were in earnest in supporting the administration and were then on record as having done so. A motion was passed that the society go on record as fully supporting the administration in its policy of fuel conservation, and agreeing to reduce consumption fully 30 per cent. Referring to the advantages in obtaining coal for growing vegetables under glass, it was reported that a delegation of greenhouse vegetable growers had been advised by the fuel administration, that their product was luxury food and they would not be put in the preferred class of users of coal.

It was directed that the junior ex-president was to act with the board of directors for one year. The committee appointed on president's address reported the adoption of his many excellent suggestions. The convention then adjourned, after which the board of directors went into executive session.

Additional Awards.

The following awards, in addition to those reported in last week's issue, were announced:

S. A. F. silver medal for the best vase of 50 blooms, any color; must score not less than 88 points—S. J. Goddard, with Laddie. S. A. F. bronze medal for second best vase in the same class to score not less than 86 points—A. A. Pembroke, with Benora.

The Fred Dorner memorial medal awarded for the best vase of 100 blooms of any undisseeded seedling (sports not eligible) which has been in cultivation not less than three years and must score not less than 85 points—Cottage Gardens Co., with Crystal White, which scored 92 points. The competition for the Dorner preliminary medal for 50 blooms for eligibility to compete for the memorial medal next year, resulted as follows: Seedlings 167-12, red, and 119-12 pink, entered by F. Dorner & Sons Co., Lafayette, Ind.; Bernice, by W. D. Howard; Seedling 701, of the Cottage Gardens Co., was awarded a certificate of merit; red seedling, No. 2, entered by C. Warburton, Fall River, Mass., scored 86 points and he was also given a preliminary certificate for red seedling, No. 1, which scored 86; No. 3 scored 87 and No. 6 was credited with 88 points. Yellow seedling, No. 809, of the Cottage Gardens Co., scored 90 points.

The judges were Peter Fisher, Ellis, Mass., Joseph H. Hill, Richmond, Ind., C. W. Johnson, Chicago, W. E. Lenk, Halifax, N. S., and W. R. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY'S EXHIBITION. BOSTON, MASS., JANUARY 30-31.
General View in Horticultural Hall.

The Banquet.

The banquet tendered to the visitors by the Gardeners and Florists' Club of Boston was held in the lecture room of Horticultural hall, Thursday evening. The platform and tables were elaborately decorated with the vases of carnations from the show, which were still in splendid condition. After a most excellent menu had been partaken of, there followed the feast of soul. A. P. Calder, a retired florist, with over 80 years to his credit, but with the vigor of a man 60 years young, acted as toastmaster. His polished encomiums of the various speakers as he presented them were very effective.

President Saltonstall of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society was the first speaker. His remarks were listened to with great attention. He said that the first exhibitions of carnations in this country were made by the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in 1829. The carnation is a historical flower, being named by Theocrastus the "divine flower" 300 years before Christ. In 1601 Shakespeare mentions the flower, carnation, in one of his plays. It was supposed to take its name, carnation, on account of the carnate or flesh color of some of its varieties.

Flower growing, Professor Saltonstall said, was one of the most important of the world's industries, enhancing its beauty and adornment. The work must be kept up to the end so that the young men of the trade so gallantly going to the front will find their places open for them when they return. He urged the gardeners and florists of Boston to help in the great work of the nation in this war by working and doing their best without compensation or prize money for the coming spring show, which he was sure would exceed that grand success of last year. In this way the entire proceeds of the exhibition would be given to the Red Cross. President-Elect Strout praised the excellence of the many exhibits in the show and the Boston brethren who had done so much to make it a success, all of which showed that growers were not discouraged, but were keeping up the standard and striving for even greater results.

Eugene Dailledouze, as one of the first presidents of the society, told of his father's catalogue of carnations, which in 1862 listed over 50 varieties. R. T. Brown, of the Cottage Gardens Co., was called on to paint word pictures. He praised the work of the New England growers, particularly that of S. J. Goddard, whose collection was the best he had ever seen at any show. This was not the time for new varieties, he said. All he hoped for was coal enough to keep the divine flower alive.

Henry Penn spoke of the importance of publicity in getting our message about flowers to the public. Now, when everybody is depressed, is the time to use our greatest efforts. The growers are doing their part under most discouraging circumstances, but the retail men are lax. They should use greater exertions and help the growers in their time of need, and the publicity movement now being inaugurated should have the hearty support of everyone in the trade. The slogan, "Say it with flowers," should be kept to the front at all times.

There was singing, beginning with "The Star Spangled Banner," in which all joined, and recitations interspersed with the speaking, and the evening's festivities were closed by all singing "Auld Lang Syne," just before the lights were officially turned off at 10:30.

Final Resolutions.

The members of the American Carnation Society at this, the twenty-seventh annual exhibition, have pleasure in expressing their satisfaction at the success of the convention, especially as to the quality of the exhibition, success all the more noteworthy because of the almost overwhelming difficulties under which carnation growers have been, and are still laboring.

While some conventions of a similar character have been recently abandoned until a later or more propitious time, the Boston members of the American Carnation Society held to the plans that had been announced, and to them and the New England growers, the society owes its most sincere thanks for their display of courage and the spirit of self-sacrifice that has made this show possible.

In like manner, we wish to thank the trustees of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society for their courtesy in placing of Horticultural hall at our service for the exhibition and the meetings; also, to James Wheeler, for the admirable arrangements for staging the flowers; to Miss Palmer of Brookline for her clerical assistance in connection with the banquet, and to the local committee of arrangements for their care and kindness. Inspiration and encouragement have been received from the business meetings and guiding factors from the members have resulted from them. Therefore, be it Resolved that these expressions of our thanks be conveyed to the parties herein mentioned and that these also be published in the annual proceedings of the society.

PLANT NOTES.

Sweet Peas.

A bed or bench of sweet peas sown at this time will produce a nice crop of flowers in spring when the winter-blooming plants are nearly through ditions. The seed can be sown six inches apart in rows, with about three feet between rows, and lightly covered. It is just as well to sow two or three seeds together, and when they begin to grow thin out to one plant. The beds must be watered sparingly until the plants are large enough to twine on the supports, for they damp off easily, even when five or six inches high, if over-watered. As soon as the tendrils on the vines appear provide some support for them to twine upon and keep the plants growing erect throughout their culture, or crooked stems and worthless flowers will be the result. A cool house is far better for these plants than one having a warm temperature. Aphis is often troublesome in growing sweet peas, and a spray is far better with these plants than fumigation.

Chrysanthemum Stock.

This is the time to look over the chrysanthemum stock to see how the cuttings are breaking. There may be some varieties that are not throwing as many cuttings as they should, or some that are not in good health and there are yet some growers that have stock plants for sale, so where from either cause it looks as if the supply might not be sufficient new stock should be purchased at once. Where the stock plants are in good health but there are not enough to furnish the requisite number of cuttings, the early cuttings may be taken and rooted and these grown in flats until it is time to propagate the plants for blooming, and cuttings made from these. There are also some varieties of which good cuttings can be procured at this time, but after the first growths are removed do not break satisfactorily. These should surely be taken now and grown on in flats. Notable as one of this class is Miss Virginia Poehlmann, and some varieties, such as President Roosevelt, are short-jointed and slow in their growth, so early cuttings are preferred. It is a good time now to look the stock over and be sure of good plants and enough of them for another season.

Notes.

A visit after the adjournment on Thursday was made by the delegates to the S. J. Goddard establishment at Framingham. Everything was found in the best possible condition, the visitors saying they never saw such vigor and productiveness at this season of the year. Laddie, as seen growing here, is certainly a wonderful variety.

A. F. J. Baur and C. W. Johnson accepted the invitation to accompany President-Elect Chas. S. Strout to his home at Biddeford, Me., and inspect carnations as grown in the "Pine Tree state."

Stocks.

The demand for flowers at Memorial day is in many cases for bunches or sprays to lay upon the graves of the departed relatives and friends, and as much show as can be made is often the object, therefore the grower must have a quantity of what are called the cheaper flowers, and stocks are one of the best at this time, for they are plants more natural conditions and they will finish with shorter-jointed growths, being not nearly so tall, and well furnished with large heavy foliage completely covering the stems. The plants started at this time should be first placed in a greenhouse having a night temperature of 40 to 45 degrees and if the buds and stems look very dry frequent syringings of the Next Week in the Flower Shop.

In these trying times, with the Monday closing, the cutting off of the electric service, the shortage of coal, the extreme cold weather and many other handicaps, one might wonder whether there would be a next week in the flower shop. But then, there is the other side, as a lady patron in a Boston flower shop said last week, "How glad I am to see these lovely flowers; they are just the same as ever—bright, cheery, fragrant—God's gift to the world to make it more beautiful, while men all over the universe are trying to render it so desolate."

What the writer saw in some of the flower shops of Boston, Mass., the past week will probably best give an idea of the activities of this season.

In the elegant, high-class store of Thos. F. Galvin they carry in their large refrigerator case all the varieties of flowers for which this market is noted. Acacias, wallflowers, anemones, irises, wonderful pansies, English primroses, together with the choice of the market in roses, cattleyas, gardenias, violets, spring flowers, etc.; specimen palms, ferns, blooming plants and choice pieces of statuary ornament this beautiful shop, while the windows contain artistically arranged baskets and vases of spring flowers.

Penn's busy shop is crowded in every foot of space with a wonderful array of seasonable plants and flowers. A fringe of tall kentias extends almost to the ceiling. Other foliage and flowering plants fill in between, while along the edges of the groups on the floor are bulb pans, all in splendid salable condition. Two handsome specimen Phoenix Roebelenii were features. The large storage flower cases, either side of the store were filled, one with roses arranged in blocks of color, and the other with carnations and a great variety of the best in the market. A table in the center of the store contained artistically arranged pieces, baskets, vases, etc., all ready to carry away.

large and prominent, make up well in bouquets or sprays, and are quickly and easily grown. The seed should be sown by February 1 to be sure to have them in flower by the end of May. The seed germinates quickly and as soon as large enough should be potted. Many grow them in flats, but to have them early pot culture is better, for they do not receive such a severe shock when transplanted in the benches. The planting in the benches should be done in the month of March and the plants can be grown in two ways, to the single spike which will produce a much larger, handsome bloom, or eight to 10 lateral spikes. The former method allows of planting from three to four inches apart, while in the latter the plants should be set eight to nine inches each way. Growing the latter way, that is, to eight or 10 spikes, is the culture most often practiced, and in order to cause the plant to branch as soon as the terminal flower forms it is rubbed out, and the laterals will grow at once. To have these laterals in bloom for Memorial day the terminal bud should show by the last of April, which will allow about four weeks for the growth of the laterals and the finishing of the bloom. Constant fumigation will be necessary to keep the plants clean of aphids, which very rapidly accumulate on the succulent growth unless kept in check.

Hydrangeas.

The plants of hydrangeas that are to be in bloom for Easter should be started at once, for it is much better to grow them along slowly than to wait and bring them in later and force them much harder. This will give the branches will quickly make the buds fill up. After the first leaves are fully formed the plants can be moved into a warmer house and they should come along nicely for Easter—a house with carnation temperature should bring them in bloom by that time, but if the buds are not well set early in March a still warmer temperature will be required. If grown in a warm temperature keep a sharp lookout for red spiders, which gather on the blooms and quickly ruin them.

The large show windows were very attractive, one with acacias, heather and white cyclamens; baskets and vases of cut flowers, sweet peas, orchids, etc., were also a feature. dark green velvet drapery was used as a background. The large corner window contained a quantity of pink azaleas in handle baskets, all of which were trimmed with pale blue ribbons run as a band across the center with a large bow on one side and a smaller one on the other. There is no doubt but this decoration added very much more to the value and appearance of the baskets than it cost. The silver premium cups of the American Carnation Society were on display in this window. There is no question but there is a great bid for business being made here all the time. The St. Valentine publicity advertisement of the S. A. F. is to appear in an issue of the Boston Post in its full size, with matter especially advertising this store, at a cost of $280 for a single insertion.

The Philip L. Carbone store is most artistic. Italian statuary and pottery, together with the greatest variety of elegant flower vases and original pieces of the most expensive ware, are displayed daintily filled with flowers. All shapes of natural willow baskets are beautifully filled with choice blooms in color contrasts. A high handled vase basket contained irises, heather, acacias and ranunculas. There were just a few sprays and flowers, each perfect in itself, finished with a blue fibre ribbon. It was a very stylish piece. Another larger one, filled with a splendid strain of orange calendulas and large blue irises, together with pussy willows, was stunning. A number of small baskets with pink sweet peas, blue pansies, yellow daffodils and a blue ribbon, were very attractive. Irises are a specialty here. They are planted in tubs and Italian or terra cotta pots. These are trained on frames made of wire and green bamboo stakes. They are flat on one side, curved on the other, much the same in appearance as a half column. Large sizes, six to eight feet in height by 24 to 30 inches in diameter, sell for $50 a pair. They are very fine looking plants. English laurel in pots was a feature, a very useful decorative plant.

At the Houghten & Gorney shop, a feature was made of hamper handle baskets of fruit and flowers. The idea is a good one. The basket, not large, is filled with fruit. The oval lid, which is loose, stuck up at the back, has a knot of flowers on the outside center. The bright colored flowers and appetizing fruit make it an ideal gift for the friend in the hospital or sick-room.

National Association of Gardeners.

The spirit of closer co-operation between the gardeners' national association and their local societies and clubs, which has been a subject of considerable advocacy in professional gardening circles for several years, took some definite shape at the annual convention of the National Association of Gardeners held in Chicago in December last, when it was voted to authorize the national co-operative committee to arrange for a series of conferences throughout the year in different parts of the country, wherever it will be possible to conveniently bring members of the national and local organizations together. The purpose of these conferences is to provide more frequent opportunities than now exist for an interchange of views and ideas, and for a general discussion of subjects pertaining to the profession of gardening among those engaged in it.

In order to inaugurate the plan it has been decided to hold the first of the series of conferences at the Murray Hill hotel, New York, March 15, at two o'clock sharp, with Vice-President P. W. Popp to preside as chairman. This meeting will occur during the time of the annual New York spring flower show.

A conference will be held in St. Louis during the week of April 8, with Director L. P. Jensen presiding as chairman. Exact date and place of meeting to be announced later. This meeting will occur during the time of the convention of the Society of American Florists.

It is proposed to hold a conference in Boston some time during the month of May with Ex-President W. N. Craig presiding as chairman. Plans are afoot for conferences in other sections of the country and these will be announced from time to time as their arrangements are completed. All gardeners interested in the development of their profession, and in the advancement of ornamental horticulture, are invited to attend these conferences.

PHALAENOPSIS AT POEHLMANN BROTHERS', MORTON GROVE, ILL., FEBRUARY 1.

The committee on essays and horticultural instruction is distributing an essay each month, for discussion at the meetings of the local organizations. Any society wishing this service and not now receiving it may obtain it by applying to W. N. Craig, chairman, committee on essays and horticultural instruction, Brookline, Mass.

The committee on meritorious exhibits repeats its offer of last year, to award the association's silver medal for competition at monthly meetings for the largest number of points for the year, or for competition at a flower show of a local society or club, the only stipulation being that the medal must be won by a member of the association. Societies desiring to avail themselves of this offer should address William Kleinheinz, chairman, committee on meritorious exhibits, Ogontz, Pa.

President Robert Weeks will shortly announce his national and local committees for the annual convention to be held in Cleveland the first week in October. The most scientific methods for increasing production and proper conservation of food products will be the dominating feature of this year's programme, for the gardeners realize fully that even an early cessation of the war will not solve the food shortage problem and that this country must be the main source of supply to meet the world's food demand for a long time to come.

L. P. Jensen, chairman of the committee on bird propagation and protection, Busch place, St. Louis, Mo., asks that all interested in our feathery friends, send their observations, experiences and suggestions relating to the subject to him and he will see that they are used to the best advantage. Questions relating to the subject of bird protection will be cheerfully answered by the committee.

Chrysanthemums from Trade Standpoint.

Paper by Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., read at the annual meeting of the Tennessee State Florists' Association, Nashville, January 29-February 1, 1918.

Since this is a florists' convention, we will consider the chrysanthemum as a commercial proposition. I am afraid, in some sections, last fall the flowers did not prove a very profitable venture. On the other hand, in many localities, where the conditions were reasonably normal and the right varieties grown, the chrysanthemum held up its head and returned as much money per square foot as any other crop in a corresponding length of time. It is quite reasonable to expect that chrysanthemums will be grown extensively this year, in view of the fuel conservation to aid the government, which will make many of the florists run a section of their places for the summer and grow chrysanthemums, after which the houses can be closed down for the winter season.

Cultural details to an association of florists are perhaps unnecessary. There may be one or two varieties in the following notes requiring special cultural details, but I will endeavor to mention them whenever necessary as I go along. The first in order of importance are what are known as the greenhouse chrysanthemums. These are the large flowering kinds. Many florists, especially those with a retail business, who grow and sell their own flowers, are wrong in adhering so closely to an ideal such as the Bonnaffon type. We have always found, in our experience, that when one has something the "other fellow" has not there is a considerably better market for it and at a greatly enhanced price. We give herewith a list that we compiled for publication a few days ago:

White—Smith's Advance, Early Frost, Alice Day, Oconto, and Wm. Turner. This list, in common with succeeding lists, covers practically the entire flowering season. The variety Early Frost, in our section at least, if the buds can be secured in July, will give flowers from the middle of August continuously, though sometimes the flowers from the early buds are not so good as Smith's Advance.

Pink—Unaka, Chieftain, Dr. Enguehard, and Siedewitz. Some people dislike Unaka because the flower is too flat. If they will set out nice plants of Unaka in May, if possible, and take a bud the first week in August, they will get flowers amply large enough to cover any criticism as to its flatness.

Yellow—Yellow Advance, Golden Glow, Chrysolora, Ramapo, Bonnaffon, and Golden Chadwick. In the list of yellows is noted a new variety, Yellow Advance. This, we believe, will be found quite an acceptable variety.

Bronze—Bronze Unaka, C. H. Totty, W. H. Waite, Calumet, Tekonsha, and Glenview. In bronze, the Bronze Unaka, when grown the same as suggested for Unaka, will produce satisfactory flowers, and, as it comes in the first week in October, it is considerably the earliest in the bronze section.

SINGLES.

We have found in our trade singles are a very profitable crop. Many growers, instead of planting singles out on a bench and giving them a show, keep them in pots until they get stunted, and then tell you there is no money in singles. Singles planted in the bench in June, and pinched once or twice, carrying from four to 10 sprays each, and then looked after as the large flowered varieties are, will give you singles that will be the envy of your neighbors and the delight of your customers, and will bring you in good money and satisfy people craving for "something different." A small selection of about three each, pink, white, yellow and bronze singles, would be as follows:

Pink—W. Buckingham, Stanley Ven, and Mrs. Godfrey.

White—Millicent Piper, Mensa, and Gladys Duckham.

Yellow—Josephine, Golden Mensa, and Vivian Cook.

Bronze—Excelsior, Yvonne, and Bronze Buckingham.

Where one has a reasonably sheltered position, singles can be planted outside and will return, particularly in this vicinity, money out of all proportion to the time and labor expended in their cultivation.

JAPANESE ANEMONES.

Another type that was quite satisfactory from our point of view was the type we exploited considerably the past year—the Japanese anemones. It is true, in the wholesale market, many of them do not meet with great favor, because the petals interlace and cannot be packed as closely as some of the other kinds; but here again it offers the customer something different, and it was shown in the way they bought up these newer types of anemones. There is a great deal of confusion in the average mind about the different types of chrysanthemums. We have seen the Anemone Garza classified as a single, but it belongs to what is known as the pompon anemones. The varieties listed here are the Japanese anemones, which are similar to the pompon anemones, but three to five times as large. A selection of about eight or 10 of these of the very best would run as follows:

White—Eleanora and Innocencia.

Pink—Graf von Oriola and Old Rose.

Yellow—Yellow Prince and H. J. Heinz.

Bronze—Titian Beauty and Wee-Wah.

POMPONS.

Pompons, as generally grown, are cut from outdoors and put on the market in bunches, showing small, inferior flowers and hard-wooded stems, very frequently so hard that the water cannot go up the stems. If pompons are grown on the benches as suggested for singles, what a marvelous change appears! If only for the pleasure of having something exceptionally good and altogether different from the usual market run, all of you who have not previously done so should try a bench of pompons. They are profitable and popular and will remain in good condition on the plants for a long period if the market happens to be glutted. A selection of pompons would be:

White—White Doty, Queen of Whites, and Baby Margaret.

Pink—Lillian Doty, Little Gem, and Western Beauty.

Yellow—Connie Dick, Golden West, and Golden Climax.

Red—J. Lagreviere, Inez, and Mrs. F. Wilcox.

One of the newest varieties shown in this section is Connie Dick. We have dubbed it the Yellow Doty, since Pink and White Doty are known everywhere, and it will give the possible purchaser a good idea of what to expect from Connie Dick. It is a wonderfully clear yellow, every flower standing erect and stiff, and of the many varieties we have distributed the last 15 years, of all types, we think Connie Dick is perhaps the one we can recommend most.

The type that has not as yet come into its own from the florist's standpoint is the early flowering hardy chrysanthemums. These have been developed by August Nonin, of Paris, France, and have been evolved from the old-time varieties, Gustav Wermig and Madame LaGrange. Our method, which has proven very successful, is to set out these varieties on the side benches, plant them a foot apart and allow from four to eight stems to grow up on each plant. These are all dwarf in habit, the stems not growing more than 18 inches to two feet in length. The flowers are then disbudded, allowing one flower to every stem. We consider this type turned us in more money per square foot than any of the large flowering kinds, and the latter have turned us in as much as $75 per hundred, wholesale price. Grown in the manner described, the varieties come into flower the first week in October and are all cut away and the space ready for another crop before the winter weather gets too severe. A list of a dozen we can specially recommend is as follows:

J. C. Vaughan.

President-Elect Horticultural Society of Chicago.

White—Cranford White, Normandie, and Debutante.

Pink—H. Malgat, Chas. Jolly, and Belle Mauve.

Yellow—Cranfordia, Miss B. Hamilton, and Cranford Yellow.

Bronze—A. Barham, Mrs. H. Craig, and Firelight.

These varieties readily wholesale in the New York market at $2 per dozen, and, consequently, grown as we have them with six or eight flowers to a plant, we have found they are a most profitable proposition, when the right kinds are secured and the proper cultural methods followed. The only thing to observe outside of the ordinary good culture is to secure the buds as soon as possible after the first of August as they show on these varieties.

CAPRICE CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

The final type to which I would like to call attention are what are known as the Caprice varieties, which furnish us with the best kinds for pot plants. Pot plants, when nicely grown and handled, are profitable; but, when poorly grown and the wrong varieties used, are wretched. Therefore, it is important to get the proper varieties. If started in good season and pinched until the end of May, the Caprice varieties will make beautiful plants without any staking whatever, and will carry anywhere from eight to 20 flowers each, according to the way they are pinched. These particular sorts are grown by the million for the London and Paris markets, and are very valuable here. There are eight varieties which will give all colors and which, in the east at least, are now quite well known. These are as follows: Butler's Caprice, Mrs. Greening, White Cap, Caprice du Printemps, Yellow Cap, Lilac Cap, Kathleen Thompson, and Purple Cap.

Midseason varieties of chrysanthemums are almost invariably a glut on the market. It behooves every grower to catch the early varieties, go easy on the midseason kinds and then come in again for Thanksgiving. After Thanksgiving, in New York at least, no one cares anything about chrysanthemums and everyone passes on cheerfully to carnations and roses.

In our endeavors to get something different, we have found bronze, while neglected absolutely by nine out of every 10 growers, to be the most profitable. They may argue that is because there are so few in the market. This may be true, but we have always felt it is because it blends so beautifully with the autumn foliage and seems typical of the season.

Retailers who stock up with nothing but pink, white and yellow chrysanthemums are apt to get left in the race for business by the man who will take a chance and enlarge his viewpoint by embracing colors not usually classed as commercial kinds in the wholesale markets. An excellent example of this character is the old Source d'Or, which we reintroduced two years ago.

In the list of large flowered bronze given you is the variety W. H. Waite, a novelty introduced last year. We predict that this, when it can be bought at a more reasonable rate, will be the most popular bronze we ever put on the market.

As before stated, this should be a very successful year for chrysanthemums, and anyone who grows them should get good returns for their efforts next fall.

San Francisco.SHORT SUPPLY AND HIGH PRICES.

Trade is in a very satisfactory condition in this city. During the past week there has been a decided shortage in nearly all lines of greenhouse grown stock. Roses, in particular, are scarce and very high in price. Good American Beauties are wholesaling at from $4 to $5 per dozen. Russells of select quality are hard to secure and correspondingly high in price. The same is true of Ophelia and other varieties. Red roses appear to be the only varieties that are in ample supply. Cecile Brunner and Mrs. Aaron Ward are in constant demand, with the supply very limited. Some very fine Mock are seen and are bringing fine prices. Carnations have taken quite a jump and brought as high as $4 per 100 during the week. What stock is being received is very fine and much more could be sold if it were to be had. Violets are about the only flower of which enough stock can be had daily. Lily of the valley still is in good demand. The stock coming in is excellent but not enough to go around. Cattleyas are a little more plentiful this week with prices very fair. Tulips have made their appearance but the quality is rather poor as yet and consequently they move slowly. Daffodils are beginning to arrive a little more freely and are in much favor. Some very good Lilium giganteum are being offered and sell readily. The high price of cut flowers has stimulated the sale of pot plants greatly. Stock is being received is very good and fered and are easily disposed of. Cyclamens and ericas in different varieties also sell well. Boston ferns are also in much demand. A sure sign that spring is approaching is the large amount of Acacia Baileyana and flowering fruits that are to be seen at all the stores. Asparagus and other ferns are in rather short supply just at present and the demand for this class of stock is heavy. Shipping trade is reported very good by the wholesalers, the demand for roses being especially brisk.

NOTES.

Frank D. Pelicano's range of glass on Guttenberg street is now producing large quantities of ferns and asparagus. A large stock of Boston ferns is being grown here also. We noted a splendid lot of Erica melanthera being grown outdoors for the cut sprays. They were of excellent quality and are good sellers at his store on Kearny street. Large quantities of dahlia tubers for spring planting are being stored here. They expect to begin shipping dahlia plants about February 15. The soil at this place is particularly adapted to the culture of the dahlia, and it is Mr. Pelicano's great specialty.

A visit to the establishment of G. Rossi & Bro. showed a large importation of aspidistras is being unpacked. The stock arrived from Japan in fine condition. There are 18 greenhouses at this place devoted to the growing of ferns, and asparagus almost exclusively. A house of tulips looked promising. Several houses are given over to Boston ferns in variety. Some very fine azaleas and bay trees were noted in the large lath house. This firm enjoys a large shipping trade.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is cutting some very fine winter flowering sweet peas. These are ready sellers at $2.50 per 100. The cut of roses at this establishment is a little short at present, but a visit to the greenhouses shows that it is only temporary. This firm had many large violet shipments tied up in the middle west, owing to the severe weather.

T. Nespoli, the well-known fern grower, has all his greenhouses in splendid shape and is cutting heavily every day. His stock is always in demand owing to the fine quality of the ferns. The stock is sold almost entirely in this city.

P. Vincent Matraix, manager of the Art Floral Co., visited all the prominent growers along the peninsula during the week. He was accompanied by several leading retailers from the northwest.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. had a very busy week on funeral work. Several palls of orchids were made by the firm besides a large number of handsome set pieces, all of which were very costly.

Mori, The Florist, has opened up a new flower store at 1510 Clay street, Oakland. Most of Mr. Mori's stock is grown at his own nursery at Hayward. Pot plants are a great specialty here.

John Carbone, of Berkeley, is still bringing in large quantities of cattleyas. Some very good Phalaenopsis amabilis are being received from this nursery also.

Visitors: P. F. Rosaia, Seattle, Wash.; Carl Gross, representing S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia; F. W. Tredex, representing A. L. Randall Co., Chicago.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. is featuring pot ericas in variety this week. Some very good hyacinth baskets have also proven good sellers.

Ferrari Bros. are the first growers in this vicinity to bring in tulips and hyacinths. They have large stocks of both coming along.

J. W. Williams, formerly of Clark Bros., Portland, Ore., has joined the forces of the Art Floral Co. on Powell street.

Tennessee State Florists' Association.

The Tennessee State Florists' Association opened its session January 29, in the assembly room of the Hermitage hotel, Nashville. There was a very fine attendance, and a most helpful and interesting programme was carried out. President W. C. Johnson, of Memphis, made a fine address. Many new members were elected, and, from the reports, the affairs of the association are in a flourishing condition and it promises to do even better and greater work in the future than in the past. H. G. Bramm, of Bristol, made a very fine talk on both timely and important subjects. J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, led an open discussion upon "Substitutes for Azaleas" and brought out some fine points along that line, citing the fact that they were being experimented with in California with a prospect of success. Owing to the illness of Thomas H. Joy, the "Floral Outlook" was ably discussed by E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., who made his talk along "Ideals in the Floral Business," saying it was impossible to grow beautiful flowers without high ideals. Miss Mary B. McGowan, city agent, department of extension, made the fine suggestion that growers instruct the buyers as to the best method of treating their house plant, with a view to retaining longer its beauty, and to "follow up" as much as possible.

The exhibits in connection with the convention were very good, while not coming up to the display of last year, owing to the exceedingly cold weather and the difficulty of handling the plants.

Leon Geny, of Nashville, was elected president for the ensuing year; H. G. Bramm, of Bristol, vice-president, and G. M. Bentley, of Knoxville, secretary and treasurer.

M. C. D.

Tennessee State Horticultural Society.

The attendance at the annual meeting of the above society, held at Nashville, January 29-February 1, was large and an excellent programme was carried out, the topics dealing with practical subjects of moment at the present time, with speakers from a number of states. Percy Brown occupied the chair in the absence of President J. C. Pruett. W. P. Stark, of Neosho, Mo., gave an interesting talk on the apple shows and horticultural meetings he had attended this winter. G. C. Stancher, state horticulturist, Auburn, Ala., brought much useful information to the society. "Spraying Peach Orchards," "Orchard Conditions in Tennessee," "The Seed Situation," "Apple Growing in the Mountains," "Irish Potato Growing," and many other useful subjects were discussed.

The officers elected were: Thomas D. Reed, Goodlettsville, president; John Lightfoot, of Chattanooga; J. C. Truitt, of Franklin, and Percy Brown of Spring Hill, vice-presidents; Prof. G. M. Bentley, state entomologist, secretary-treasurer.

DIGHTON, MASS.—Harry Briggs has closed his range on account of coal shortage.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—A final dividend of 29½ per cent has been declared by the estate of John L. Parker.

BAKERSFIELD, CALIF.—Hosp & Terry have closed their branch store at Taft, this state, due to poor express service.

CORFU, N. Y.—Le Roy Adams suffered a loss of about $500 to sweet peas and carnations during the recent blizzard.

WESTBORO, MASS.—Due to the serious illness of the owner, the violet houses of Arthur George have been closed.

MADBURY, N. H.—The large rose-growing establishment of William H. Elliott here is now in charge of Eber Holmes.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—The range of Henry Fuchs, recently destroyed by fire, has been rebuilt, replanted and is now in operation.

WORCESTER, MASS.—Stock to the value of $150 was destroyed recently at the store of the Quarry Floral Co., when a radiator burst.

THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.—Bethun's greenhouses suffered a fire loss of $1,500 January 26, the result, it is believed, of an overheated furnace.

TORONTO, ONT.—The Glass Garden Builders, Ltd., has been granted an order to close-up its business. W. E. Boyd has been named as liquidator.

GRIMSBY, ONT.—A severe windstorm recently wrecked a 45-foot section of the range of Ofield & Son, but no serious damage resulted, due to quick repairs.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—George Schulz, 1117 Goss avenue, has closed his range for the winter and has temporarily taken charge of a large private estate in Florida.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.—Edward Green, well-known florist of this city, believes in publicity and uses well-written copy to exploit the appropriateness of flowers for gifts.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.—As a fuel conservation measure, A. Washburn & Sons have closed one-fourth of their range and lowered the temperature in the remaining houses.

CHARLES EDWARD FAXON, well known botanical artist and assistant director of the Arnold Arboretum, died at Boston, February 6, age 72 years.

Coal Conservation Urged.

The Chamber of Commerce, Washington, D. C., has issued an appeal to coal users to co-operate with the Council of National Defense, which has sent forth the following five suggestions in a special war bulletin:

1. Inquire into the means employed by your fireman and consider his methods in relation to those suggested by the Bureau of Mines.
2. Learn what establishments in your locality secure the best results from coal.
3. Endeavor to have the wasteful users of coal profit by the best experience of the locality.
4. Improve all local methods by consultation with the Bureau of Mines and the study of the stoking methods recommended by the bureau.
5. Buy your coal as near home as possible.

Fuelless Monday Order Closes Florists.

As will be noted in the following communications addressed to Wm. F. Gude, Washington, representative of the S. A. F., under their respective dates, the United States fuel administration has ruled that florists are not exempted from the fuel administration order of January 17:

January 31, 1918.

"The writer has taken up with Mr. Noyes the question of allowing florists to open Mondays and he has ruled that there can be no exception in their case as to being open on the Mondays prescribed in the Fuel Administration order of January 17."

UNITED STATES FUEL ADMINISTRATION,
By C. F. Austin.
February 2, 1918.

"Dr. Garfield believes that it will not cause serious inconvenience and will contribute to the general patriotic observance of the Monday closing, if the florists are not exempted from the order of January 17. Businesses more essential to the life of the community than flowers for funerals have been refused exemption in the present emergency."

UNITED STATES FUEL ADMINISTRATION,
By P. B. Noyes, Director of Conservation.

Trade Acceptances.

A trade acceptance, as defined by the regulation of the Federal Reserve Board under date of July 15, 1915, is a bill of exchange, drawn to order and having a definite maturity and payable in the coin of the United States. This obligation to pay has been accepted by an acknowledgment, written or stamped, and signed across the face by the person, firm, company or corporation upon whom it is drawn, such agreement to be to the effect that the acceptor will pay at maturity according to the tenor of such draft or bill without qualifying conditions.

The instrument described herein is simply a draft, as we understand it. The same has been used in business for years, the only difference I can see being that the trade acceptance extends the time of payment for the buyer for 30, 60 or 90 days, and must be for goods purchased, when the bank draft, in the trade sense, would be drawn at sight.

The commercial florist never took kindly to sight drafts, and very few will honor them when presented by the bank, when in fact it is the simplest means possible of paying a bill. The promissory note seems to be more acceptable and more easily secured from the debtor.

I am of the opinion that if we could establish the practice of giving and receiving trade acceptances it would put into circulation a large amount of money that remains on the books as "accounts receivable." The buyer would have fully as much time extended to him in which to settle his bills and the seller would have the use of the money through the process of discounts at his local bank, which discounts are approved by the Federal Reserve Bank.

The great trouble today in doing business is that bills for flowers, as well as other goods, are not paid promptly. If they were we would have no occasion to resort to the trade acceptance or to any other means—not even the promissory note.

Trade acceptances cannot be issued for any kind of a debt. They must be for goods sold. They cannot be issued for money loaned—they will not be negotiable.

The intention of the Federal Reserve Bank in giving its approval to this form of a draft is that if a seller should dispose of a large bill of goods to a buyer, instead of keeping the account open for 60 or 90 days, by the purchaser accepting a draft at the time of sale, the money can become available for use, not only for the benefit of the seller, but such a transaction will help the government in the winning of the war by making use of or placing in circulation millions of dollars that heretofore have been laying dormant as open book accounts, depending on frozen credit, assignments of receivership and kindred business evils.

Should it prove that by the adoption of this system as explained above, its operation may bring about integrity, and economy consisting of safety and business efficiency among those engaged in commercial horticulture, we certainly ought to give it a trial.

PATRICK WELCH.

Iowa Florists' Fuel Committee.

January 29, a florists' conference was held at the Iowa State College, Ames, in connection with the annual short course. Due to the severe weather and other circumstances, there were a number of florists who were unable to attend.

George Asmus, Leonard H. Vaughan, J. S. Wilson and A. N. Smith introduced various subjects which brought out considerable discussion. It was a war-time conference, and the present day problems in which every florist is vitally interested occupied the entire attention of those present.

The fuel question, in particular, received much attention, and the information which Mr. Asmus gave out on this subject was greatly appreciated. It was decided that the florists ought to have a fuel committee to represent the interests of the florists of Iowa, and the following committee has been named: J. S. Wilson, Des Moines, chairman; I. O. Kemble, Marshalltown; Blaine Wilcox, Council Bluffs.

Gude's Service Flag.

The Washington Times in its issue of February 3, under a portrait of Charles H. De Shields, student army aviator, son-in-law of Adolph Gude, senior member of the well-known florist firm of Gude Bros. Co. of that city, tells of the miraculous escape of the young man in a fall of 500 feet, after a collision with another aeroplane at the training grounds at Lake Charles, La. He was unhurt in spite of the fact that his plane was smashed into more than 500 pieces. Adolph Gude has three sons in the service, two of them not yet 20 years old, while Wm. F. Gude has one son in the regular army. In addition, there are 11 employes of Gude Bros. Co. with the colors, making a total of 16 of the Gude forces who are serving their country.

SHORT ROSES ARE SCARCE.

Stock is none too plentiful at this writing, especially short roses, which are in good demand and in limited supply. Roses in the longer stemmed grades are plentiful, and while they are not moving as quickly as they might at the desired prices, they are cleaning up nicely. Carnations are moving better this week and do not appear to be any too plentiful. Sweet peas are in good supply and are selling well, but the severe cold weather has had a tendency to keep the prices down. Gardenias are seen in large number and the same holds true for orchids, which are not in any too brisk demand. Violets are in fair supply and so is lily of the valley. Lilies are seen in large quantities at several of the stores and are to be had at very reasonable figures. Paper White narcissus, stevias, jonquils, tulips, calendulas, pansies, fressias, anemones, daisies, mignonette, callas, snapdragons, irises, Romans, bouvardias, campanulas, and stocks are included in the daily offerings which give the retailer a large variety to select from. The demand is not as good as it should be, but no one is complaining, considering the present existing conditions. Business during January has shown a falling off in the total number of sales compared with the same month of last year, which is due considerably to the shortage of stock caused by the scarcity of coal and the shutting down of a number of greenhouses in this vicinity. The coal situation is still serious, and while the most dangerous point has been passed, practically all the growers are holding down their temperature as low as possible so as to conserve their supply until conditions are more favorable to warrant them in increasing their firing. From present indications, it does not appear as if stock will be any too plentiful for St. Valentine's day unless the weather moderates sufficiently, for the grower is not likely to force any stock at the present high price of coal and the uncertainty of getting more to carry him safely through the season. All the retail florists will do well to bear this in mind and place their orders as early as possible so as to insure their supply and avoid disappointment. It was from 10 to 20 degrees below zero here February 4-5.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The adjourned annual meeting of the horticultural society was held at the Art Institute, February 5, and officers elected as follows: J. C. Vaughan, president; Augustus Peabody, vice-president; E. A. Kanst, second vice-president; Louis A. Kuppenheimer, third vice-president; N. H. Carpenter, treasurer; L. M. Macauley, secretary; Chas. L. Hutchinson, W. C. Egan, John J. Glessner, Mrs. Francis Nilsson, Benjamin J. Rosenthal, Arch. E. Freer, Mrs. H. M. Wilmarth, Dr. Otto Schmidt, B. M. Winston, John F. Smulski, directors; E. Wienhoeber, M. Barker, Mrs. W. S. Brewster, Mrs. Hermon B. Butler, executive committee, two years; Henry Bartholemey, Philip C. Schupp, Jr., A. C. Simonds, executive committee, one year.

The programme this year includes monthly exhibitions of fruits, flowers and vegetables. Those having novelties or specimens otherwise noteworthy or good examples of cultural skill are requested to display them at these shows. The dates will be announced later.

NOTES.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. will have a large crop of orchids for the St. Valentine's day trade particularly phalenopsis, of which there are several large houses in extra fine condition. Cattleya Trianae will also be in good supply with this firm, not to mention a large cut of lily of the valley. Some particularly fine lilies are seen here in large supply.

The heatless Mondays cannot be abandoned, as had been hoped, because storms and cold have so badly crippled the movements of fuel. It is now practically certain that the whole series of heatless Mondays, which, according to programme, ends March 25, will be gone through with.

Pyfer & Olsem have filed a petition in bankruptcy, with Wharton Plummer of Todd & Plummer as receiver; liabilities, $73,000, estimated assets, $73,000. At a meeting of creditors, February 4, a committee was appointed to co-operate with the receiver in conserving the stock.

Wieter Bros. are cutting a good supply of carnations in all the leading varieties as well as Killarney roses, which they continue to grow on a large scale.

Peter Reinberg has had good success with the new rose, Champ Welland, which is a leader at his establishment. Carnations are arriving in fair supply.

The regular meeting of the florists' club will be held at the Bismarck Hotel, 175 West Randolph street, Thursday evening, February 7 at 8 p. m. The annual novelty show will be an added feature and the growers' committee, consisting of Peter Reinberg, chairman; C. L. Washburn and August F. Poehlmann, will make its report on the coal situation.

H. N. Bruns and son, Herman, are back from a business trip to New York. They visited several of the large greenhouse establishments while in the east, notwithstanding the severe cold weather, including that of the Julius Roehrs Co., at Riverton, N. J.

C. L. Washburn reports that Bassett & Washburn are experiencing trouble in filling all their rose orders, particularly in the shorter stemmed grades, which are exceedingly scarce in this market. Bulbous stock is seen in good supply at this establishment.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is handling a good supply of bulbous stock from the August Jurgens greenhouses, which includes fancy Golden Spur and Flamingo tulips and Paper White narcissus.

Percy Jones, Inc., is showing fine double violets in quantity. The stock from this firm's grower, number 85, is recognized as a leader in the market by many of the large city buyers.

Chas. Johnson, of the Johnson Basket Co., has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his wife whose death occurred last week. The funeral was held at Racine, Wis., February 5.

Peter Pearson is shipping a fine supply of bulbous stock to Zech & Mann, among which are noted particularly fine Golden Spur, tulips and Paper White narcissus.

The A. T. Hey Floral Co. had several cars of coal confiscated recently, which forced the proprietors to close their greenhouses entirely for the remainder of the winter.

At A. T. Pyfer & Co.'s store the receipts of sweet peas have shown a marked improvement the past week in regard to quantity and quality.

Curtis Kindler reports that the Raedlein Basket Co. experienced a very satisfactory demand for St. Valentine's day baskets.

Hoerber Bros. are featuring splendidly grown snapdragons, for which they find a ready market.

C. L. Huffert is serving on the jury for two weeks.

MANY FACTORS TO DULL TRADE.

The pronounced inactivity of social affairs, the fuelless Monday and the severe cold weather are the greatest causes for the lull in business locally. Funeral work, which has kept up well, is the only salvation of most of our retailers and has kept the wolf from the door since New Year's. With the exception of roses, which are very scarce at this time, the supply of all varieties of cut flowers is fully up to requirements. The demand for carnations for McKinley day for shipping orders was good and helped to clean these up for once. Since then, due to the unfavorable weather, they have not been overly plentiful. The local graduation exercises of both public and high schools last week created quite a demand for all kinds of stock, especially roses. These, in the shades of red and pink, were to be had in very limited numbers only, so the other lines had to come to the rescue.

NOTES.

According to official reports of the local weather bureau, January, 1918, will go on record as having had the coldest, warmest, snowiest and driest days of any thus far. The warmest period was January 25, the thermometer registering 34 above for one hour. The amount of snowfall for the month was more than 52½ inches. Some report, which the florists will not forget so soon.

The engagement of Miss Laura Kacuper to Alfred Locker, of Wauwatosa, was made February 3. Mr. Locker is the junior member of the firm of Hugo Locker & Sons, who at the present time are cutting sweet peas of especially fine quality daily.

The local press announced that February 3 was the first day of the mid-winter display of plants and flowers at the Mitchell park conservatories. Among other seasonable stock, the orchid is being well advertised.

The A. T. Kellner Co. had the decoration for the Turner mask ball at the West Side turner hall, February 2. Outside of greens, the national colors were lavishly displayed with good effect. E. O.

St. Louis.

MARKET CONDITIONS IMPROVED.

The market was in better condition the past week in every line. Roses are somewhat improved, although the supply is still limited. Sweet peas are still far short of regular supply for this season of the year. Violets are fine, but have little call. Lilies, rubrum and callas are equal to requirements. Bulbous stock is plentiful, with the first tulips showing on the market. Orchids and lily of the valley are also equal to the demand. Greens are in plentiful supply, with the exception of plumosus. Business in general the past week showed some improvement, due no doubt to the fact that we had a few fair days. With the weather opening up this month, trade conditions should improve. It is also a noticeable fact that funeral work this year during January was not as good as it was last January, when there were almost double the number of deaths over this year. Social work of all kinds is very scarce.

NOTES.

The local wholesale florists' association inaugurated a new credit system beginning February 1. It is announced that, beginning with this month, they would render their statements on the first and fifteenth of each month, bills to be payable within 10 days, or the customer would be placed on the C. O. D. list. This was evidently done within the spirit of the times, and on the face of it looks like a good thing. From the wholesaler's standpoint, it has put him in a better position to take care of his growers weekly and they will not have their money tied up so long. From the retailer's standpoint, it seems to be his best bet, because it will spur him on to get his money in on time and will eliminate the man who buys on long credit and undersells his competitor. In other words, it will help the retailer to maintain better prices and do away with some of the old-time cut-throat business. We feel sure that when things adjust themselves, after about a month's trial, everybody will appreciate the move.

In connection with the national advertising of the S. A. F., the three local trade societies formed a joint publicity committee, with J. J. Beneke as secretary and treasurer, who is to have charge of the funds. A fund of considerable size was raised to jointly advertise St. Valentine's day in the daily papers, and it is hoped that with the proper support from all interested in the trade this publicity will become a big factor in building up the trade here. The national publicity campaign has opened the way, and it is everybody's duty to do his bit toward supporting both the national and the local publicity committee for the betterment of our trade and bigger business. All together, now. Put your shoulder to the wheel.

Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. had a fire a few days ago, and the damage is estimated at $3,500. It has been unable to ascertain the exact cause of the fire, but evidently it was from crossed electric wires. They occupy a three-story building, and the fire started on the third floor, in their wooden easel department, around midnight, and it was discovered by the bookkeeper, who happened to be working late.

The local executive committee of the national flower show wound up their business at a meeting last Wednesday and the various committees were discharged. The office will be kept open, with J. J. Beneke in charge for S. A. F. matters and the coming convention, and later for Secretary Young's use.

The ladies of the florists' club have a meeting scheduled for February 6, at the Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney store, at a tea, when they will be addressed by L. P. Jensen. It is hoped that they will be able to form a permanent organization at this meeting.

J. J. W.

Springfield, O.

The retail business among the florists here is rather quiet in most instances. They blame it generally upon the extreme cold weather, people not getting out and buying only for funerals and weddings.

The coal situation does not ease up and while I have not found any one who is actually without coal, most of the growers can get only what they need from day to day. F.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK IMPROVED.

Market conditions are improving and the outlook is better than ever. Growers are encouraged by receiving more coal, and a number of houses, which were on the verge of closing, are now being continued and the spring plants are being forced. A number of stores have already in stock, lilac, flowering apple, forsythia, and quince. Roses are shortening up and sell at good prices. Killarney Queen is very scarce and Ophelia is off crop. Eighteen-inch stock sells at 12½ cents; 24-inch, 20 cents. Hearst, Milady, Montrose and Shawyer are quite plentiful, selling at 12½, 16 and 20 cents each. Spring bulbs, jonquils, freesias, Paper White narcissus and Roman hyacinths command good prices, but do not move as well as in other years. Lily of the valley and gardenias are scarce and prices stay high. Sweet peas are more plentiful and sell very well at 75 cents and $1.50 a hundred. Easter lilies are a drug on the market and the best price is $8 a hundred.

NOTES.

J. M. Simpson, of Woburn, has been very fortunate in the coal situation and is shipping to market some extra good carnations. Among the best are Benora, Pink Delight and White Wonder; also, marguerites and calendulas.

Rice, of Lexington, is having great success this year with Orange King calendulas. This variety seems to adapt itself to the conditions at his houses. Other growers have tried it and have not been successful.

Thomas Roland, from his Revere houses, is cutting Killarney Queen, Ophelia, Ward and George Elgar roses and from his Nahant house, camellias, acacias, cyclamens and heather plants.

Wm. Nicholson, of Framingham, is shipping to market some of his prize winning carnations, giant mignonette, wallflowers, a very good strain of Purity freesia, myosotis and stevias.

FUEL SITUATION TROUBLESOME.

Trade during the past week has been brisk. Floral orders have been plentiful and there has been an ample supply of stock with the exception of roses, which are still short and sell at high prices. Daffodils are coming in faster than they can find a market. Tulips, both Murillo and Lorraine, are selling well and violets, during the past week, have had a good call, the double variety being most in favor. The coal situation continues acute, and unless relief comes soon a great deal of stock will be lost. Growers are having much trouble in getting any coal at all and many are burning wood.

BUSINESS UNDER TRYING CONDITIONS.

Winter weather, worse and more of it, has been ours all the past week. Monday opened up with a foot of snow on the level, which still lies, as severe cold weather has shown little signs of letting up. Under the trying weather and coal conditions, the supply of flowers keeps up surprisingly well with the demand, except in roses, of which the crop is very light. All short and medium lengths sell at sight at top prices for the season. This scarcity is likely to continue for the next month, as all rose houses are being run on an economy basis with low temperatures, which brings stock along slowly. Carnations are in oversupply; at least, they do not bring satisfactory prices. Sweet peas are a great factor; they are of splendid quality and sell as well as anything in the market. Easter lilies are in stock in all the houses and are bringing top prices for the season. They have grown to be one of the most staple flowers, being available for all funeral work, which latter is at least 50 per cent of the business now being done. Snapdragon is in good variety and finds buyers. There is quite a showing of spring flowers—calendulas, daisies, daffodils, freesias, mignonette and tulips. White tulips sell well, being used in place of scarce white roses in funeral work. Violets are draggy, as are also gardenias and cattleyas, the best price for the latter being $4 per dozen. White lilac meets with a good call. The Monday closing was generally observed in this city. The store that remained open after the early morning work was out was gently reminded by the policeman on the beat that they had better close the door. A look around the flower shops, particularly in the residential portions of the city, finds most of the dealers in fairly good spirits. Some claim to be doing business even better than usual, while others say it is about as good as last year. A few reports are discouraging, but tempered with "It is much better than we expected."

CLUB MEETING.

The feature of the February meeting of the florists' club, which was held in the Grand Fraternity building, was the talk of Professor J. G. Saunders, state entomologist. His outline of the work of his department, especially that relating to greenhouse features, was very interesting. His lecture, originally scheduled for this meeting, was postponed until April. J. Otto Thilow will give his illustrated lecture on "Hawaii" at the March meeting. There was a good display of sweet peas, including excellent flowers from Elmer J. Weaver, Ronks, Pa., and E. C. Marshall and Edwin Reid staged a few vases of extra fine stock grown by K. Thompson, Kennett Square, Pa.

Carl Korts, of the Jos. Heacock Co.'s wholesale department, reports light receipts in roses, and believes that short crops will continue for several weeks. He finds a good demand at good prices, many orders having to be cut down.

The Leo Niessen Co. is featuring spring flowers, as at this time they are receiving quantities of stock of this class. White lilac, Spencer sweet peas and bulbous stock are handled in large quantities.

vania building for the time being. J. M. Brown, the manager, is open for a position, and his services should be in demand.

The Jos. Neidinger Co. is busy with its Easter stock of plant baskets. There is a good demand for their St. Valentine novelties, vases and baskets. The hand-painted vases are ideal flower-holders.

Stuart Miller, of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange, says stock cleans up well every day. A very good supply of roses is received daily, which are bringing satisfactory prices.

The fruit department of the London Flower Shop has been found to add interest for visitors, and has proved a profitable investment. Bulbous and other flowering plants are a feature.

There will not be any of the Primula malacoides left by St. Valentine's day, at the rate they are going, is the word of Manager Liggett of the S. S. Pennock Co. plant department.

Easter lilies, daffodils, sweet peas and high-grade carnations are features of the Berger Brothers stock. A fairly good demand, at prices satisfactory for the conditions, is the report.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. are much pleased with the demand for their St. Valentine's day novelties. They are going like hot cakes.

September Morn and Prima Donna roses are features with Eugene Bernheimer. Sweet peas and carnations are seen in quantity.

BUSINESS DROPS WITH MERCURY.

Probably due to the severe weather, business shows considerable falling off. According to local weather reports, this has been the coldest January in history. The growers have suffered considerably and coal piles have been reduced. A moderation in the weather is expected soon, however. Roses are very scarce, but increased cuts are now expected. Carnations, while still plentiful, hold up to $3 and $4 per 100. Sweet peas sell fine every day and are about the only flower for which there is a real demand. The quality is the best seen here in many years. Violets are not moving at all, with large shipments arriving each day. Lilies are firm in price and the call is good. Paper Whites can be had at the buyer's own price, being in over-supply. Daffodils are very plentiful and are not in favor. Tulips are now seen in all colors. Bedding stock seems scarce and most of the growers are trying to buy cuttings. A number had the misfortune to have their stock frozen, which perhaps accounts for the shortage. The outlook for St. Valentine's day trade is very good.

NOTES.

The McCallum Co. is handling fine plants of Primula malacoides, which are exceptionally popular at this season. They will have an extra large quantity for St. Valentine's day.

John Harris spent several days in New York on important business.

E. J. Malone, of Cannonsburg, is recovering from his recent illness.

LITTLE CHANGE IN MARKET CONDITIONS.

There has been but little change in the condition of the wholesale market since our letter of January 26 was written, but if there is any change, conditions seem just a little better. Roses continue to move freely at good prices. During the past week, there was but an occasional glimmer of sunshine and February 1 was a dark and chilly day. Under such conditions, the supply of all stocks materially diminished, and in carnations as well as roses, there was no surplus. In bulbous stock there was more than enough to supply the demand. Violets seem to be quite extensively used in funeral work, because that is about the only way they can be moved, and there has been much funeral work, which is about all a large number of the retailers are doing. Lilac, which has been a salable stock in past years, being largely used in table decorations, has gone bad this winter on account of many events, that have been unusual, being entirely cut out for this winter. For the same reason, orchids and some other decorative stocks are also slow. As a final word, considering all the unfortunate, and for the present, unavoidable conditions, the florists are not so badly off.

February 4.—This is emphatically a heatless Monday, with near 20 degrees of frost in the morning and a high wind. The sun is out, but the temperature rises very slowly. About all the florists can do is to care for their stock and some have closed their doors. It is not a question of business, but of getting through the day without loss. On the night of February 1 temperatures of 10 to 14 degrees below zero were reported from points on Long Island and in New Jersey. Regardless of the cold weather reducing the supply of stock, there is yet enough, and more than enough in some lines, to supply the demand. Roses continue to move well, but orchids and violets show little life.

NOTES.

So far as we could learn, there was little, if any, observance of "McKinley day" in this city, by the wearing of carnations. On the previous day, several local newspapers published notices to the effect that the "Carnation League"—whatever that is—had decided to dispense with carnations and wear a small flag this year. The flag manufacturers seem to have a clever press agent, but we did not notice many flags worn.

The George W. Crawbuck Co. has removed its wholesale business from 47 West 28th street to 151 Lawrence street, Brooklyn. They run an auto express to bring in the flowers from the extensive ranges of Blue Point, L. I., and vicinity, and find it much more convenient to have both their store and express headquarters in Brooklyn.

The Boulevard Floral Co., 2391 Broadway, advises us, that considering general conditions, they have no complaint to make about business. Dennis Harocopos, a member of this company, was recently discharged from a hospital where he had spent three weeks and underwent a severe operation. He is now greatly improved.

We have never noticed a finer stock than is being carried by the Colonial Florist at his main store, Broadway and 157th street. From orchids and special American Beauty roses, through the best of all the tea roses, to carnations, violets, narcissi and other spring flowers, the display is most complete.

On February 1, we noticed at the store of James Weir, Inc., 342 Fulton street, Brooklyn, a completed funeral pall 5x8 feet, in which 9,000 violets and 700 white roses were used on a groundwork of smilax and Asparagus plumosus. For the same funeral, a number of fine designs were arranged.

Philip F. Kessler, Jr., 14 years old, son of Philip F. Kessler, the wholesaler, had a wrist broken on January 31, while coasting near his Woodside, L. I., home. To avoid running down a small boy, he steered his sled against an iron post. He is in the Post-Graduate hospital, doing well.

Mrs. Charles H. Brown, wife of the well known retailer of 2366 Broadway, is now at Orlando, Florida. Mrs. Brown has been an invalid for nearly a year, suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism. Her many friends will be glad to learn that she is now improving.

Peter Velotas, a well known retailer, who retired from business for a time, has taken it up again and is back in his former store at 3544 Broadway, as the Washington Heights Florist. He thoroughly understands the business, keeps a fine stock and is doing well.

President Charles Schenk of the florists' club requests that every member attend the meeting on the evening of February 11. A large number of new candidates will be introduced and W. C. Freeman will address the club on "Publicity." It will be rose night.

George Vretakis, who had a retail store at the corner of Vanderbilt and Gates avenue, Brooklyn, was called in the selective draft. He gave up his store, and while awaiting orders, is assisting P. Velotas in his Washington Heights store.

The retail firm, formerly known as Siebrecht Brothers, at Madison avenue and 73d street, has gone out of business. Walter Siebrecht, the surviving member of the firm, is now engaged in orchid growing in California.

There has been quite an addition to the Phillips family of florists of 272 Fulton street, Brooklyn. On January 30, Mrs. William A. Phillips gave birth to twin daughters. We are glad to learn that all are doing well.

We have been reminded that the annual entertainment and ball of the Greek-American Florists' Association will be held in the Terrace Garden, Lexington avenue and 58th street, on the night of February 27.

William Mackie, who for over 20 years has been in the wholesale business and has been employed for long periods by several of the leading firms, has gone into business for himself at 105 West 28th street.

Henry L. Bantleman, 1875 Amsterdam avenue, is showing fine primroses and other plants, grown at his Yonkers, N. Y., range. He had plenty of coal and came through the cold spells without mishaps.

We have noticed at the store of the Henshaw Floral Co. a fine vase of the new pink rose Columbia, which were brought on from Richmond, Ind., by Joseph Hill on his recent visit to this city.

The retail firm of Suhrer & Gay, formerly located at 31 East 125th street, has mysteriously disappeared and a number of wholesalers are wondering where its members are.

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-sixth annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 18-20, 1918.

THE daily newspapers are giving publicity to cables of January 29, announcing the sale of 11 pounds of celery seed in Holland for $2,400.00.

NEW CANTON, ILL.—The new warehouse of the Sny Island Seed Growers' Association was destroyed by fire January 26. The loss is estimated at from $5,000 to $7,000, covered by insurance.

THE California growers, according to advices dated February 1, are very much discouraged with the continued dry weather, and all seed crops will be seriously affected unless rain comes soon.

GRASS SEEDS.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade February 6 were as follows: Timothy, $7.50 to $8.75 per 100 pounds; clover, at Toledo, $25.00 to $33.00 per 100 pounds.

STURGEON BAY, WIS.—The Reynolds Preserving Co., is going out of the pea canning business carried on here for the past 23 years, but will probably continue pea growing in other parts of the state.

LAWRENCE S. PAYNE, well known in this country as traveling representative for Simon Louis Freres & Co., Bruyeres-le-Chatel, (Seine-et-Oise.) France, has joined the colors as an artilleryman in the French army.

CLEVELAND, O.—James Fisher and W. E. Cook, formerly of the sales force of Stump & Walter Co., New York, have taken over the seed department of A. C. Fox, 10,504 St. Clair avenue, and have organized as W. E. Cook, Inc.

THE American Seeding Machine Co., of Springfield, O., is quoted as saying, if the coal and transportation situation does not clear soon, the spring trade will be lost with the result of showing poorer than a year ago.

JANUARY, with its terrific storms, was a month of high operating costs, but some agricultural authorities believe these snows will be worth millions to the crop-growing regions of the southwest, where more snow is on the ground than in many years.

FOREIGN TRADE—Dr. Gourvitch shows how Germany progressed through the most painstaking study of methods of accommodating the buyer. For example, she found what goods were needed and made them. Where other countries sold f. o. b., Germany sold c. i. f. Where others granted credits with hesitancy, Germany extended them freely. Where others sold chiefly to large houses, the German exporter searched for the small house of sound standing and made it his customer.

A JOBBER of field seeds and food grains is of the opinion that growers, not dealers, are now hoarding food grains to the disadvantage of the consumer, and that such growers should not be allowed to hoard or store any more than they normally carry in average years.

Lily Bulb Imports.

According to the United States department of commerce detailed information is not available regarding imports of lily bulbs, countries' of origin not being separately stated. One item, however, shows the importation of "Lily bulbs and calla bulbs, which total for the fiscal year 1917 in number 17,954,000 and in value $419,542. Chinese statistics show exports approximately as follows: 351 tons in 1914; in 1915, 775 tons, and 698 tons in 1916. Japanese statistics do not show lily bulbs as a separate item.

Bulb Import Orders.

Some florists have noticed that Dutch bookings of bulbs for next August delivery are made f. o. b. New York docks. If buyers are foolish enough to sign orders reading this way their bulbs may lie around as in previous years for several weeks on the docks. Orders of this kind, to do justice to the buyer, should be made to read f. o. b. cars at New York city at usual delivery season, otherwise the hardships experienced by import buyers and planters in America in past seasons will be repeated the coming autumn.

Henry Field Seed Co.

In a recent issue of the Hamburg Reporter, Hamburg, Ia., one entire page with illustrations was devoted to the story of a visit to the extensive establishment of the Henry Field Seed Co. at Shenandoah, Ia., in which the writer describes in a very interesting way the work of the different departments and the splendid system that has made the concern known wide and far for prompt, efficient service and has been a great contributing factor in the constantly increasing business, which contributes two-thirds of the receipts of the local postoffice.

Seed Shortage in Canada.

A Canadian trade journal says that owing to short crops and failure to secure supplies from European countries farmers will have to look to the United States for their seeds. Red clover in Canada was a failure, and the bulk of the seed supplies must be drawn from the United States. In vegetable seeds the same conditions prevail. A large percentage of both vegetable and garden seeds in years prior to the present war was brought from France, Holland, and Belgium, countries from which importations have almost ceased. The difficulty of transportation and matter of high rates has likewise affected prices and supplies.

Burpee Incorporation.

The W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., was incorporated November 30, 1917, under the laws of the state of Pennsylvania, with a capital of $1,000,000. The new company took over the entire business, including all real estate belonging to the business founded by the late W. Atlee Burpee. The officers of the company are: David Burpee, president; W. Atlee Burpee, secretary-treasurer; H. M. Earl, production manager; W. F. Therkildson, advertising manager; W. S. Carroll, superintendent of operations; G. W. Kerr, superintendent of seed trials; Edward Wadack, superintendent of Fordhook Farms; Harry Frazier, superintendent of Sunnysbrook vegetable seed farm; Harry Buckman, superintendent of Floradale Farm, Calif.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President;
C. W. Waid, Grand Rapids, Mich., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

LE ROY, N. Y.—Preisach Bros. have announced that they will devote their range to vegetables instead of flowers this year.

THE American Peanut Corporation, Norfolk, Va., states the volume of tonnage has been reduced in their line, but has been increased about three times in money.

BULLETIN 194, issued by the Connecticut Experiment Station, New Haven, entitled "Manure from the Sea," contains much interesting information as to the value and use of seaweed as a substitute for commercial fertilizers.

Potato Stocks.

The bureau of crop estimates reports stocks of potatoes for market in 19 northern states at 147,585,000 bushels, against 59,946,000 bushels last year and 106,225,000 bushels two years ago. Of the total, 126,392,000 bushels are in growers' hands, against 45,751,000 bushels last year, and in dealers' hands 21,193,000 bushels, against 14,195,000 bushels last year.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, February 4.—Mushrooms, home-grown, No. 1, 20 to 25 cents per carton; lettuce, box, 22½ to 25 cents; radishes, 50 to 60 cents per dozen bunches; celery, $1.25 to $1.50 per box; tomatoes, per 6 baskets, $2.50 to $3.50; cucumbers, per box, $2 to $3.25.

New York, February 4.—Celery, dozen stalks, 20 to 50 cents; cucumbers, 60 cents to $1.25 per dozen; mushrooms, $1.20 to $2.40 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per pound, 15 to 30 cents; lettuce, 3-dozen strap, 30 to 60 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2 to $4.

Marketing Vegetable Plants.

We noticed last year that enormous quantities of plants were offered for sale and sold, that had no attention whatever in regard to transplanting, thinning or watering. In other words, the parties that produced them, made no effort to furnish value for the money—the plants were produced to sell to ignorant parties and to reap the largest possible profit. The fact that all such goods found a ready market makes us believe that this kind of thing will be done on a yet larger scale this season. Many florists and vegetable growers will no doubt resort to this method to recover losses they have suffered this winter, and it is hard telling if this business will not be demoralized this season. We have on the one hand, a great scarcity of skilled labor, hence transplanting will be an expensive, and sometimes, impossible job. Next, we will have to work with expensive seeds and every other item in the line of distribution will be more expensive; hence, it behooves the grower to consider carefully before he jumps.

To those who wish to produce plants as above, we would say, be sure and test your seeds carefully before you need them; then sow sparingly and allow a fair spacing for the rows. Three-inch rows for cabbage and four-inch rows for tomato plants would do well; and when plants are well up, thin the heavier spots and finally grow all the plants rather dry and cool. Flats can be used for this purpose and these should not be too deep—two and a half inches is about right. These can be made out of cheap store boxes and sold, plants and all, as they are not durable for more than one season.

A large part of our out-put has been in common strawberry quarts, which we buy annually in the thousands. These are set out on the greenhouse benches, empty, screened full of soil, leveled off and planted directly full of seedling plants. We generally plant nine tomato plants or 12 cabbage plants into each quart basket; and for a better trade, six tomato plants is better. By using rich earth, and only moderate moisture, most excellent plants can be produced, and it is certainly an ideal way of handing the product to the customer—plant, root, ground and all—so he can use them at his convenience. This part of our business has grown beyond our producing capacity—as it is limited to skilled operators. MARKETMAN.

Ten truly marvelous acquisitions, introducing new tones of color and showing the highest development in form and habit.

Carmine Beauty. Deep bright carmine flowers, freely produced high above the heavy dark-green foliage which has a narrow red margin. The flowers, while not as large as those of Olympic, are of a much brighter and more pleasing tone. 4½ ft. 75 cts. each; $7.50 per doz.

Cheerfulness. No more appropriate name could be given to this brilliant novelty. Its beautiful bright fire-red or deep orange flowers appear early and continue without interruption until frost. Add to the prevailing color a golden border and center with each petal flaked carmine-crimson and you may form some conception of this fascinating variety with its erect stems always topped with clusters of cheerful color held high above the foliage. 3½ ft. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Cloth of Gold. A very attractive dwarf, compact, growing, free-flowering golden yellow. 3 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Dazzler. Time and again the past season the dark green foliage of this variety has been hidden beneath the mass of clusters of deep fire-red flowers. The intensity of coloring and freedom of blooming coupled with compact habit, make this variety the peer of the best for bedding purposes. 3½ ft. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Golden Eagle. A wonderfully intense golden-yellow. Very free upright grower. The large flowers are produced in great clusters well above the foliage. 4½ ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Harmony. Great clusters of good-sized, well-formed Geranium-red flowers are arranged on good stems in such a manner as to give the trusses an almost globular appearance. Altogether a dignified harmonious combination. 3½ ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Poppy. Intense poppy-red. Large perfect florets in good trusses over greenish-bronzy foliage. Rich and effective. 5 ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Salmon Queen. An entirely new color in Cannas. Rosy salmon-scarlet, blending to a rosy-carmine toward the center. The large substantial flowers are freely produced in great clusters high above heavy green foliage. Very effective in bedding. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Sensation. To get a sensational color-tone in a pink Canna is particularly noteworthy. Our first impulse was to call it "La France" because the color called to mind the La France Rose but the tone is even cleaner and purer; it being a lovely pale-rose. The foliage is a beautiful glaucous-green; the plant dwarf and compact. One of the most noteworthy additions to Cannas in recent years. 3 ft. 75 cts. each.

One each of the above Ten Novelties for $4.00.

New Cannas From Other Sources

We offer here eight new varieties, which after several years' trial have proven themselves worthy of our commendation.

Cleopatra. A striking beauty. Wonderful deep carmine-crimson flowers surmounting the dark glaucous-bronze foliage. This variety stands out strongly in effectiveness. 4 ft., 50 cts. each; $5 per doz.

Dragon. An incessant bloomer, continuing to produce new stalks of flowers until cut down by frost. Dark ox-blood red. 3 ft., 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Flag of Truce. A large flowered creamy-white, with faint pink dots on each petal. The general effect is white. Not as white nor as tall as Eureka but quite distinct and valuable. 4 ft., 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Gaiety. Reddish-orange mottled with carmine and edged with yellow. The tongue is yellow and densely spotted with carmine. 4½ ft. 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Lafayette. In some respects resembles the variety "Meteor" but the flowers are not quite as dark, stand more erect and the plant grows taller. 5 ft. 30 cts. each; $3.00 per doz.

One each of the Eight Varieties for $2.00.

TYPE OF NEWER CANNAS.

Superb. This variety is unique in color and truly superb; having large, clean bright orange-scarlet blossoms of good substance, produced on strong stalks with glaucous-bronzy foliage giving a most pleasing effect. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Pocahontas. (Bronze-leaved Olympic.) Large oriental-red flowers borne on firm upright stems, just high enough above the foliage to show the entire head. The foliage is a dark bronze-green with emerald shadings; the ribs a darker bronze; one of the best recent introductions. 4 ft., 30 cts. each; $3 per doz.

San Diego. Chinese-orange or Persian-yellow. The crimped petals are remarkable for substance which enables them to withstand the hot summer sun without wilting. Another charm lies in the dark bronze color of the buds which harmonize with the rich bronze foliage. 4 ft., 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Varouna. We have tried this variety for several years and at all times the bright orange-scarlet flowers, combined with the good bronze foliage, has won our admiration. A free luxuriant grower, producing its flowers well above the plant. 4½ ft. 25 cts. each; $2.50 per doz.

Union Smut Control.

Co-operative tests between growers in southeastern Wisconsin and plant disease specialists at the state college of agriculture have shown that the application of one ounce of formaldehyde to one gallon of water, by means of a liquid fertilizer attachment fastened to the seeder, gives excellent results in controlling union smut. One gallon to 185 feet of row, or about 200 gallons an acre, is considered sufficient. By allowing the solution to drip in the row with the seed before it is covered, the fungus is killed in the surrounding soil for a slight distance.

at Chicago, June 26-28, 1918.

NEWPORT, R. I.—James McLeish has been elected chairman of the park board.

LAPEER MICH.—N. D. Mason, proprietor of the Botanical Nursery, has the contract to clear a large estate at Birmingham, this state.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—W. S. Speed, landscape architect, has closed his office in the Starks building and joined the colors as captain of engineers.

MONROE, MICH.—David D. Winkworth, proprietor of the Michigan Nursery Co., of this city, died in Toledo, January 25, aged 72 years.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—William E. Harries, landscape architect, of this city, has been appointed park superintendent, succeeding David A. Seymour.

BOSTON, MASS.—The Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association has elected the following officers for 1918: John Kirkegaard, Boston, president; G. Thurlow, West Newbury, vice-president; W. H. Thurlow, re-elected secretary.

ROCK ISLAND, ILL.—Chris Gaethjer, superintendent of parks, has arranged for the installation of modern apparatus in the children's playground. Parks and boulevards will be made as beautiful as possible this summer, seeds and bulbs having been purchased for the purpose.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—James McHutchison, of New York, who is much interested in the defeat of Senate bill 3344, prohibiting nursery imports, attention to which was called in our issue of January 19, page 38, passed through this city February 4 on his way to California via New Orleans.

New England Nurserymen's Association.

At the second day's session of the New England Nurserymen's Association, report of the proceedings of the opening meeting of the seventh annual convention at Boston, Mass., January 29-30, will be found in our issue of February 2, page 134, the following officers were elected: A. E. Robinson, Lexington, Mass., president; C. R. Burr, Manchester, Conn., vice-president; R. M. Wyman, Framingham, Mass, secretary; V. A. Vanicek, Newport, R. I. treasurer.

Tennessee State Nurserymen's Ass'n.

The annual meeting of the above organization was held at Nashville, January 31, and was a great success in every way. The programme included papers by some of the state's best known authorities and experts from other points, all of whom were liberal in giving their brother nurserymen the benefit of their experience. Among the speakers were: H. K. Bryson, state commissioner of agriculture; Rutledge Smith, state chairman of conservation; Howe Peyton, president of the N. C. & St. Louis Railway; O. J. Howard, Pomona, N. C.; R. C. Chase, Chase, Ala.; W. B. Bell, Huntsville, Ala.; Samuel Adams, Chicago; Paul C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; W. F. Bohlender, Tippecanoe City, O.

A very important resolution was adopted by the convention requesting state aid to advance horticultural development in Tennessee. The accredited apple production of 1917 was 1,667,000 barrels, of which only 150,000 barrels were marketed. The state thereby losing several million dollars annually through imperfect methods in apple growing, falling behind other states who give aid to horticulture. A committee was appointed to urge this matter before the legislature of 1918 in this state. The officers of the association are: George W. Poague, Graysville, president; vice-presidents, A. N. Hill, of Luttrell, for East Tennessee; Harry Nicholsen, of Winchester, for Middle Tennessee; Robert Fiser, of Humboldt, for West Tennessee; G. M. Bentley, of Knoxville, secretary-treasurer.

M. C. D.

Illinois State Nurserymen's Association.

As announced in our issue of January 19, page 38, an urgent invitation is given to the nurserymen of the state to attend the first meeting of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association, which will be held at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, February 14-15. It is the plan of those having the programme in charge to conduct the meeting in the nature of a round table discussion, asking all present to assist. Short papers will be presented, followed by a general discussion. The following are a few of the papers promised: "Aims of our State Nurserymen's Association," J. A. Young, Aurora; "Propagation of Ornamental Shrubs, and the Varieties Which Should Be Grown for Use in Illinois," F. W. Von Oven, Naperville; "Perennials, the Varieties and Sizes Best Suited for Landscape Plantings," B. F. Gage, Chicago; "Inspection of Nurseries, Home Grounds, City Trees, Parks, Etc.," P. A. Glenn, state inspector, Urbana; "The Propagation of Conifers," Thos. A. McBeth, Springfield, O.; "The Correlation Which Should Exist Between Prices and the Cost of Producing, Selling and Distributing Nursery Products," Alvin Nelson, Chicago; "Some New Varieties of Fruit That Should Be of Interest to Nurserymen," A. M. Augustine, Normal; "How to Properly Pack Nursery Products," paper and discussion led by A. H. Cultra, Onarga.

The complete programme will be printed in a few days and will be mailed to all of the nurserymen in the state.

STOCK GOOD AND MOVES WELL.

While the weather continues extremely cold, it seems to make more beautiful the flowers that are to be seen for every occasion. At a recent funeral the size and quality of the roses were particularly noticeable; Kaiserin, the size of teacups, and American Beauty, very large and in great profusion. While the social world is in a more or less quiescent state, the call for cut flowers continues very good, and the call for corsages is great; but, after all, it is the funeral work that uses up the bulk of the best flowers. Pot plants are excellent and there is a continuous call for them. Trade has been very good. If there is a slight lull for a day or two a great call comes and takes up all of the "left-overs."

NOTES.

The florists' convention here, January 29, was quite an event in floral circles. The exhibit in the loggia of the Hermitage hotel was quite beautiful, though not as large as last year. The exhibit of the Joy Floral Company consisted largely of carnations, very perfect and very beautiful specimen flowers of Rosalia, Enchantress, Belle Washburn, White Wonder and an exhibition of seedlings in 25 varieties. These were in the variegated white and pink, gold and pink, and several new pinks and reds. R. F. Smith, the grower of these carnations at the Joy range, also has charge of the chrysanthemums and sweet peas, of which they will soon have an abundance. They also had handsome pot cyclamens, very large and beautiful. The McIntyre Floral Company had a very beautiful display. Large vases of fine Champ Weiland, Pink and White Killarney, Richmond, Ophelia, and a fine lot of carnations. Geny Bros. staged large pot primroses and Dutch hyacinths and ferns. Chas. Tritchler had pot Primula obconica and the English primrose. J. A. Peterson & Sons, of Cincinnati, had an exquisite exhibit of Lorraine begonias, from a delicate pink in color to a deep red, all grown to perfection.

Mrs. W. G. Stewart and Mrs. Kate M. Wells, both of Gallatin, were more interested in the horticultural society and the canning. M. Gross, of New York, representing a Cleveland supply house, was present. Lyon & Co., of New York, also had a representative present with an exquisite exhibit of chiffons and ribbons.

Mrs. S. W. Jettin, of Murfreesboro, who has a small range, was an interested attendant at the convention; also Mrs. W. F. Jagers, of the same city, with small houses, but doing well in the business.

J. C. Anderson, of Lebanon, who has glass to the amount of 15,000 feet, was present at the convention. He does a good business in that city.

FUNERAL ORDERS BULK OF BUSINESS.

Spring flowers are now taking the place of winter staples, among the offerings being daffodils, jonquils, tulips, sweet peas, yellow daisies, etc., and there are excellent carnations and roses. Easter lilies and callas are scarce. Violets are very plentiful, but there is no great demand for them. The call for flowering plants is exceptionally brisk for the season. Funeral work is the big factor at present.

NOTES.

J. B. Keller Sons are featuring attractive baskets and vases arranged with orchids and cyclamens which are unusual for their size of bloom and

Louisville, Ky.

Following orders from the county fuel committee retail florists shops have been ordered closed on Mondays, no sales to be made on that day of flowers or designs. This has been quite a loss to the shops as the stores have to be kept heated to protect stock and in consequence no coal is saved to counteract the loss in business. The local trade are, however, cheerfully complying with the order. Necessary heat is permitted in greenhouses to prevent injury from freezing.

Coal in this city is to be had, provided you do your own hauling. It is almost impossible to get it delivered. Kentucky mine run sells at the yards for 23 2-5 cents per 100 pounds.

COAL SITUATION AGAIN SERIOUS.

A heavy snowstorm and windstorm February 3 makes the outlook on present conditions darker than ever. The coal situation was extremely serious all last week, the emergency office having to be re-established. This condition was relieved to a considerable extent by the arrival of 74 car loads of coal in this city on Saturday, February 2. But the present snowstorm will probably tie up traffic to a great extent, and transportation difficulties are again predicted. There is almost no call for flowers for social uses, and corsage work is conspicuous by its absence. A small stray wedding now and then, is all there is doing in this line of work. The supply, as far as locally grown stock is concerned, is ample for all demands, but the shipping facilities are poor and undependable. Business during the month of January was certainly up to expectations. Funeral work was, of course, the chief backbone of the trade. The death rate in January has been high, and the call for flowers has been unprecedented. The severe weather, with heavy snows, has interfered greatly with the transient trade during the month.

NOTES.

Edgar Wenninghoff had his share of funeral work, with magnolia wreaths combined with lilies and roses, making up a prominent part. He is receiving some excellent bulbous stock from his greenhouses, which he devotes exclusively to pot plants.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are feeling the effects of the lack of transportation facilities, as their business is largely wholesale. A fine lot of cattleyas, cypripediums, and other seasonable varieties of orchids are being cut daily at their greenhouses.

The Flick Floral Co. sent out four casket blankets last week, and report funeral work dominating the trade, with wreaths and sprays in the lead. They are showing some excellent spring stock, and fine azalea and heather plants.

A large amount of funeral work has been sent out from the Markey Bros. store. Their bulbous stock, both cut and pot, is meeting with a brisk demand, especially for hospital orders.

F. J. Knecht & Co. are cutting a fine lot of roses in spite of the severe weather. Their carnations are also holding up well under the existing unfavorable conditions.

A large number of funeral pieces were sent out by A. J. Lanternier. He is receiving some fine roses and bulbous stock from the greenhouses, as well as azaleas.

Owing to present unfavorable conditions, the February meeting of the florists' club has been postponed until next month.

SUPPLY CLEANS UP NICELY.

Due largely to the brisk demand for funeral work, stock in this market cleans up very well. Roses are plentiful and improved in quality and carnations are better, both in flower and stem. Sweet peas are also in good form. Lilies are plentiful. In the bulbous line, jonquils, Romans and yellow narcissi are seen in quantity daily. Prospects for St. Valentine's day sales are very encouraging.

NOTES.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. has heavy cuts of carnations, but roses are slowing up. The call for stock in all lines is good and the force is kept busy with funeral and hospital orders.

H. Kusik & Co. report one of the best January business records in the history of the firm. They are handling a fine line of stock in all seasonable varieties.

W. J. Barnes had a very good week of funeral business and numerous hospital orders. He is showing pot plants of begonias, cinerarias and azaleas.

The Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. are cutting heavily in carnations and sweet peas, but roses are slowing up.

T. J. Noll & Co. experienced a shortage in some lines, but in the main conditions are satisfactory.

A. Newell had a heavy week of funeral work with the call in other lines also good.

Charles Thomas reports excellent funeral orders and pot plant sales.

E. J. B.

Paterson, N. J.

Practically all of the retailers had orders for the funeral of the late United States Senator Hughes, which was held in the Episcopal church, February 2. The pall of cattleyas and violets and many fine designs were made up by Edward Sceery. He used up an immense stock of orchids, roses, lilies, and violets. One standing wreath from his store was ordered by the Passaic county, N. J., bar association. It was eight feet high, and many orchids, roses, lilies and violets were used in its arrangement. He also had orders from the Masonic, Elks and Moose lodges. Other fine designs noticed were made up by William Thurston, A. J. Vescelius and James Smith.

The thermometer registered 10 degrees below zero here on the morning of February 2.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Early Annuals.

During the warm days of June the carnations deteriorate very rapidly and there is often a great need for some flower to take their place, and an early bench of asters is a great boon at such a time, especially for those who have a good call for funeral work. Seed planted during February and grown in pots or flats until after Easter can be then transplanted to the benches in which the Easter crops are grown and they will be in bloom at the time when most desired. A good strain of early flowering varieties, either Comet or Victoria, should be selected and with good care a paying crop is assured. A sowing of candytuft by March 1 will also produce plants that can be benched after Easter in the same manner and a good cut for Memorial day be had. The strains of White Giant candytuft now offered make splendid spikes for the filling in of sprays at that great flower day. There are many annuals that can be grown for early spring blooming that are greatly appreciated by the trade, among which might be mentioned calendulas, nasturtiums, scabiosa, sweet sultans and bachelor's buttons.

Dahlias.

The forcing of early dahlias has been practiced successfully by growers the last few years, and roots started at this time will produce flowers for Memorial day and during June. A good deep bench, in a house not too warm, should be selected, and while the plants are great feeders in the open ground, it is better not to have the soil too rich in the houses, for the plants grow very tall inside, and with a rich soil make a strong, rampant growth, which will not bloom as early. They can be fed when the buds begin to form by giving them a mulch of half-decayed manure, which will materially assist the flowering and also provide a covering that will prevent evaporation. They will require but little attention except that long, strong stakes will be necessary to keep the plants growing erect, to which they should be firmly tied, and then disbudded to produce the better blooms. Any varieties of which it is desired to increase the stock can be planted in the house and the young growths made into cuttings, which root easily at this time.

Marguerites.

As the warm days of spring approach the marguerite plants will bloom profusely and those in pots will have, to a great extent, exhausted the plant food in the soil, so to keep up the size of the flower and length of stem watering with liquid manure will be necessary. Liquid cow manure can be safely used in frequent waterings with no danger of any injury if the plants are in a healthy condition. The flowers should be cut daily and placed in water; they will keep much longer than if allowed to remain on the plants, where they quickly fade if not picked when the warm spring days come on. This should be prevented, for it not only gives the plant an untidy appearance but takes the strength of the plants and the following flowers are often much shorter in stem. A few well bloomed plants are very decorative at Easter, especially in churches, where they make a splendid showing. Propagation for next year's stock should now be carried on; the cuttings root easily and there are plenty to be obtained at this time. As soon as rooted they should be grown on in good soil, and to secure the best results another year given the best of culture.

Cannas.

One of the most decorative beds for summer, especially if it is of large size, is a bed of blooming cannas, for they are very showy and will bloom throughout the summer until frost cuts them down, and the varieties have been greatly improved during the last decade. To make the best showing the plants should be started early enough to have good strong stock at bedding-out time in May and June. The plants should be started by March 1 and now is the time to procure stock of varieties of which the grower is short or which he has not on hand. The clumps when removed from the winter storage should have all the old soil shaken off, the dried up stalk and roots cut away. They are then cut up into small pieces and if the stock is plentiful two or three eyes can be left to each piece, but where stock is short they are cut up to single eyes, although with single eyes many weak plants will be introduced. Often the clumps have started into growth and where this has happened the eyes should be sorted, those already started being planted together and the dormant eyes by themselves. Have boxes all ready and place an inch of soil on the bottom and then place the divisions on this closely together and cover with light, sifted soil and then water thoroughly. Keep the varieties separate and properly labeled, each box to contain but one variety and the name plainly marked on the box, for labels are often lost or misplaced. Place the boxes in a warm location—where hot water heating is used they can be placed on the return pipes. In two or three weeks the plants will have made sufficient roots to be placed in 3½ or 4-inch pots, when they can be grown on in a house with a temperature of 50° to 60°. In planting cannas outside it should always be remembered that they are very tender and should not be set out until all danger of late frost is past.

The Hirsch Agricultural School.

In 1880, Baron de Hirsch founded an agricultural school at Woodbine, Cape May county, New Jersey, which was named in his honor. Five hundred acres of ground were purchased, on which were erected school buildings, dormitories, greenhouses, farm and dairy structures, barns, etc. The instruction was made as near practicable as possible, the work on the farm in all its branches being done by the students. There was a large palm house or conservatory, 80x80 feet, from which were two wings, 28x100 feet, one other 25x150 and 25x140 feet, respectively. There were also two fruit houses, 18x75 feet.

While every effort was made to make this work a success, the management was greatly handicapped by the sterility of the soil, which was for the most part sand and covered with scrub pine. There was a vineyard of 14 acres, from which considerable fruit was taken. Corn, sweet potatoes and melons also did fairly well. It has been found, however, to be too expensive to keep the land up and the institution is to be moved to Peekskill, N. Y., where new buildings are being erected. The greenhouses, which are, for the most part, in good condition, are for sale. The manager, F. C. Tesan, said that on account of the scarcity of coal and the urgent needs of the school buildings and dormitories, they had been obliged to let the greenhouses freeze up after disposing of as much stock as they could. As much land as is desired will be sold with the houses.

This is a very laudable enterprise, founded by Baron de Hirsch to assist young emigrants of his race and take them from the crowded sections of the large cities, to which they gravitated, particularly that of New York.

Washington's Birthday.

The 22nd of February is not of great importance as a floral holiday, but it presents an opportunity for decorative effect likely to attract attention and call forth favorable comment that has good advertising value. There is also considerable trade which may be worked up if the patriotic features and national colors of flowers are kept to the front. A good sized plaster bust of the Father of His Country may be purchased in any large city for from $2.50 to $5. This, if carefully put away after each celebration, will last for a long time. With this as the central idea, there are many ways in which the window can be attractively decorated to carry out the patriotic idea of the day. Drape a good sized flag over a three or four foot pedestal, depending on the height of the floor of the window from the street. Place the bust in the middle of the field of stars on top of the pedestal. A large oval wreath of bronze magnolia leaves may enclose the bust as in a frame. A wreath of good sized sago leaves is also suitable for the same purpose. A large gilt picture frame, in which the bust is placed, with a dark velvet background illuminated with a concealed top light and draped with the flag, is also striking. Ferns and palms should then be arranged to give an artistic finish. A few small baskets of red, white and blue flowers tied with miniature flags or tri-color ribbons, with a small hatchet at the bow, may also be displayed to advantage. The fable of the ax and the cherry tree has, by long usage, become associated with the observance of the day and bobs up serenely each year. Jerusalem cherries in pots tied with tri-color ribbons carry out the idea, and an opportunity is presented to work off the left-over stock standing about the houses since Christmas.

The store man can get busy and make up a dozen or two of good small sized counterfeit trees, from selected twiggy branches, on which are wired artificial leaves and cherries. When placed in a six-inch pot, these answer the purpose very well. A hatchet, tied to the trunk of the tree with tri-colored ribbon, gives the necessary finish. Cut flower boxes are given a patriotic flavor by the addition, on the lid, of a branch on which are wired a few leaves and cherries, this to be tied with a hatchet and miniature flag or tri-color ribbons. Empty boxes trimmed and tied up as if ready for delivery make good window ornaments.

There are a number of candy box conceits, one of which—an ax with a hollow handle filled with candy—can be tied with red and white carnations and violets or cornflowers and tri-color ribbon—makes a salable novelty.

The day is celebrated by clubs and patriotic societies with banquets and in many private homes with gatherings of friends at dinner, at all of which there are more or less decorations in which the national colors predominate. The inevitable cherry tree, sometimes of large proportions, with branches extending over the heads of the seated guests, in elaborate affairs, is a feature in most of the decorations. Plateaus or low pans of red, white and blue hyacinths are effective. Corsages for the ladies of red and white roses with cornflowers or violets and tied with tri-color ribbon are appropriate, with a red and white carnation and cornflower for the boutonnieres.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

With St. Valentine's day out of the way, all the unsold boxes and special novelties should be carefully wrapped or boxed and packed away to be brought out next season. Far too often such goods are left standing about until so shopworn that they are unsalable.

The first week of the Lenten season is generally quiet, but as there has been so little social activity this season, the change will scarcely be noticed. One cannot go wrong in keeping spring flowers to the front at this time. Daffodils are now at their height. A daffodil special for the week end, if well advertised, should be productive of good business. Customers may come in just to get a few but the alert salesman will, with the inviting material at hand, get his customers interested and they carry off something in addition, costing perhaps twice the price of the original purchase.

The well arranged store, with all leading stocks featured in the order of their importance, will make many more sales than if these special efforts were not made. A jar of pussy willows has a decorative effect, but they do not say "take me." If done up in bunches of a dozen or half dozen sprays, particularly wrapped in wax paper and placed in a bowl not too closely together, with a price card, they are at once salable.

Daffodils and tulips, in bunches of one dozen, will be found more salable if displayed in this way. A special in sweet peas is also timely. They will be a great factor for the next two months. Arranged in the tumbler baskets, with a bit of ribbon on the handle, they are attractive and quick moving items. A good supply of bulbous stock in pots and pans, with crepe paper coverings, and a fibre ribbon touch of color, should be carried at this season.

Plan for a Washington's birthday window. There is considerable entertaining on this holiday, and if an earnest bid is made for the business, it is likely to come your way.

Work up a trade in plant baskets by keeping a few in stock. They are always attractive, and even if not sold, earn their keep or cost in the decorative effect they give the store, in addition to their cumulative advertising value.

A good advertising feature is a printed single leaflet, calling attention to a special sale, or simply a list of the flowers now in stock, and an invitation to call and inspect them. This should be inclosed in every package wrapped up or sent from the store. It is inexpensive and costs nothing for delivery.

Plant Tags.

The accompanying illustration is of a tag that is attached to every plant that leaves the establishment of Penn. The Florist, Boston, Mass., and which has accomplished excellent results in overcoming difficulties which have doubtless occurred to florists in various parts of the country, namely, plants being delivered from the store in perfect condition and at a time when they are not apt to suffer from being chilled, but which were a week or so later reported as being frozen and received in that condition, which while unjust, is a hard matter to adjust and one which cannot at the same time be ignored. In calling attention to the necessity of making immediate report, as suggested on the tag, much dissatisfaction can be eliminated and full confidence between the customer and the store maintained.

Violets at Rhinebeck, N. Y.

The unprecedented weather after Christmas caught many growers without coal enough to save their plants, with the result that the water had to be withdrawn from the heating systems and a number of houses closed up. All growers suffered to a greater or less extent from frozen plants, but violets will stand this condition for a certain period, although it shortens the stems and checks the growth if continued for any length of time. With the continuance of cold weather throughout January, with nothing but green wood available for fuel, the plants have had little chance to recover and set new growth as they should as the days commence to lengthen. Snow or frost has been on the glass almost continuously for a month as it would be disastrous to the stock to run in enough heat to clear it in such severe weather. In a way, these conditions have brought about some good results in holding back the cut through January when the demand has not been strong, due to both the severe weather and war conditions. All are now looking forward, however, to a good St. Valentine's day demand and advance orders are beginning to come in satisfactorily. If favored with good weather during the coming two weeks, there will be a good crop for those who were fortunate in having fuel to save their plants.

With labor, coal and everything used in the industry at double former prices, very few, if any, of the growers have "broke even," figuring from May 1, which is the starting and finishing point of the violet season, and many who have not so far given up, will not start their houses for another season. The fuel administrator and dealers here have done their utmost to divide up the coal and save the violet industry, which is the backbone of the town. They have warned the farmers and others having available wood, to prepare for next winter as fuel conditions are expected to be as bad, if not worse, and as green wood gives only 60 per cent of heat as compared with that which is dry, it should be cut well in advance.

The seedlings and novelties exhibited at the annual exhibition of the American Carnation Society at Boston, Mass., January 30-31, were not as numerous as at some of the former exhibitions of this society, but the quality was of a very high grade, three of the varieties scoring 90 points or more, and several others getting very close up to this high score.

The Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., won the Fred Dörner memorial gold medal with the white variety, Crystal White, scoring 92 points. This flower has every qualification of the highest type of the present day carnation. It is pure in color, the largest size, fine in form and the blooms are carried on long stiff stems. Seedling No. 809, also from the Cottage Gardens Co., is a fine clear yellow, which scored 90 points—very high scoring for a yellow seedling. It is a large-sized flower, pure in color and has a good stem. The Cottage Gardens Co. also exhibited a crimson seedling, No. 701. It is a fine large flower, but the judges considered it a little too dark in color and scored it 84 points.

The largest number of seedlings were exhibited by S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., for Fred Dörner & Sons Co., Lafayette, Ind., the most prominent being the variety, Laddie, which won the American Carnation Society's gold medal, scoring 92 points. It is a deep salmon pink, a very beautiful flower of the largest size, good calyx and the best of stem. A bench of this variety, seen growing at Mr. Goddard's greenhouses showed the plant to be a vigorous grower and very productive for so large a flower, the bench being a mass of fine buds and blooms. Other very fine Dörner varieties shown were: No. 119 (12)—A light, flesh pink; scored 86 points; a very fine color and has the appearance of being a good producer. It is not as large a flower as some of the others, but fully up to the standard, commercial size. No. 167 (12)—One of the brightest scarlets in the show; scored 88 points; looks to be a fine acquisition in this color. As seen growing at S. J. Goddard's, it is very productive.

W. D. Howard, Milford, Mass., exhibited a crimson variety, named Bernice, which won first prize in the class calling for 100 blooms of this color. This is a very fine bright variety with enough scarlet in the color to live up to the crimson.

C. Warburton, Fall River, Mass., exhibited two scarlet seedlings under number for preliminary certificates. Both are very promising looking, bright in color, of good size, with lots of substance and fine stems.

A. A. Pembroke, Beverly, Mass., has a very promising white variety in his sport of Benora, named White Benora. It is a very pure, white flower of excellent form and substance.

Strout's, Biddeford, Me., staged two fine white varieties, named White Delight, a white sport of Pink Delight, and Snow White, a very free flowering, pure white variety which originated at the Mount Greenwood Cemetery greenhouses, Morgan Park, Chicago.

Littlefield & Wyman, North Abington, Mass., staged a very deep flaked variety on the order of the old Prosperity, but of smaller size, named Eastern Beauty. It is a very showy flower, especially for decorative work.

Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, Ind., have a very promising looking variety in their No. 414, pink. A large vase of it showed up well throughout the show, after traveling from that city.

The outstanding feature of the displays at the Boston exhibition was the average high quality of all the flowers and the complete range of colors. The extremes of colors in pink was well represented as were the scarlet, crimson, variegated and the white and yellow.

The following growers' blooms were fine: S. J. Goddard, Wm. Sim, W. D. Howard, Cottage Gardens Co., J. E. Nelson, Wm. Nicholson, A. A. Pembroke, Ernest Saunders, A. H. Knight, Strout's, and Littlefield & Wyman.

MARKET FAR FROM SATISFACTORY.

The market has been very unsatisfactory, with conditions one-sided as far as local buyers were concerned. Carnations are the most plentiful stock, being seen in larger numbers than at any time since last spring. Roses are high in price, but the quality is excellent. Bulbous stock is coming in freely, but there is not enough of it to meet all requirements. Sweet peas are more plentiful and of better color.

NOTES.

The usual decorations in the stores for Easter and spring openings will be missed by the florists this year, it having been decided by most of the dry goods establishments to forego this feature this year.

W. J. Barnes had a good week of hospital orders and funeral work. Cineraria sales were exceptionally heavy. He is now cutting large quantities of carnations and narcissi.

A. F. Barbe reports a big crop of roses and carnations; also bulbous stock. He will soon start digging an oil well on his ground to supply fuel for next winter.

H. Kusik & Co. say they have never had such a brisk call for ferns. Carnations are plentiful, but the rose supply is falling off. Sweet peas are plentiful here.

During the recent fire in an adjoining building, Samuel Murray suffered loss by water in his basement, which damaged his stock of flower boxes.

T. J. Noll & Co. report extra heavy carnation sales. Roses are none too plentiful, and there is a heavy call for sweet peas and violets.

Ed Humfeld has a good stock of lilies and bulbous stock coming on for Easter.

John Stevens is bringing in large quantities of good carnations.

BUSINESS RATHER QUIET.

What with the uncertainty caused by the closing order, blizzards retarding express shipments, war talk, etc., it is scarcely to be wondered at that florists who deal in what is to a great extent considered a luxury, should feel the effects in diminished business. Retailers here are now closing on Mondays after two weeks on which they remained open on that day. The loss of trade is, of course, considerable. However, most of them are pocketing the loss cheerfully and are using this day to catch up with necessary office work that easily slips by at other times. The market conditions are as favorable as could be expected and cut flowers are adequate to present needs. Carnations are plentiful and of good quality. Roses are sufficient to meet demand and of fair quality. Daffodils are coming in stronger. Bulbous stock is in fine condition and is much used for gifts to the sick and often for funeral work.

COAL SITUATION.

Growers of this city have been exceedingly fortunate during the long cold spell in getting coal, due in a great measure to the fact that this city is the gateway to the east and the west of tremendous shipments. Thus, while there has been a narrow margin at times, there have been no serious losses. Krueger Brothers, large growers of the east side, went so far in preparation as to purchase a coal mine, but have had difficulty in getting cars. The present mild weather, if it continues, will relieve the situation.

NOTES.

A. E. Warning started a very modest little floral establishment a few years ago on Broadway in a populous suburban district and, through dint of hard work and by giving his patrons satisfaction in floral service, now enjoys a very prosperous business. Trade is a little quiet now, but Mr. Warning looks forward to a lively spring demand.

Frank Schramm and Arthur C. Kneiel have returned from a two weeks' trip in northern Michigan, where they encountered nothing but blizzards and mountainous snow. Schramm Brothers are exhibiting their new delivery car at the auto show, giving them desirable publicity.

The Helmar Flower Shop, on Madison avenue, is pulling hard for a big St. Valentine's day business, and to call this day to the attention of the passers-by, has put in a very attractive window display. The business of this progressive flower shop is growing nicely.

Robert Schramm, son of Frank Schramm, of Schramm Brothers, is recovering from a double attack of typhoid fever and pneumonia, which for a time threatened his life.

CLUB MEETING.

Discussions on a special meeting to be held Thursday evening, March 21, were a feature of the February meeting of the florists' club. It was decided to start at the March meeting, a tention to the special features of interest to florists during the farmers' week programme at Ithaca, February 11-16. Private Christie, a member of the club, wrote from Camp Devens, Massachusetts, to thank the members for a box of cigars sent to him during the holidays. Three applications for membership were received and held over to be acted upon at the next meeting.

Following the adjournment, the members took note of an exhibit of plants and flowers staged under the direction of the special committee, William Newport, chairman. Among the displays was a vase of seedling carnations, red, from the grower, E. A. Richards, Sunny Dell Greenhouses, Green-

One of the neatest booklets issued by a local florist, is an eight-page article on "Wedding Etiquette," which is being distributed by William C. Gloeckner, 97 State street, to his customers. The subject is divided into paragraphs which deal fully and concisely with such details as the license, the ring, flowers and decorations, conveyances, gifts, rehearsal, the clergyman's fee, stationery, the order of the ceremony, after the ceremony, and going away.

MARKET CLEANS UP FAIRLY WELL.

Business is fairly good. The demand is strong and active, and while it does not manage to take up all receipts, still it generally manages to clean them up fairly well. The supply of flowers peculiarly appropriate to St. Valentine's day this week is excellent. American Beauties of all sizes are in a supply that is fairly good. Other roses are still somewhat scarce, but with the warmer weather and sunshine that is at hand they should be much more plentiful during the coming fortnight than they have been during the past several weeks. Carnations are in a good supply. Lilies are plentiful, while callas and rubrum are each in a fair supply. Sweet peas are excellent and are fairly plentiful. The supply of Paper White narcissus is so large that it is impossible to move all, and many go to waste. Other bulbous stock, including tulips, daffodils, freesias, Dutch hyacinths and Poeticus, is proving good property. Other offerings are stevias, calendulas, baby primroses, forget-me-nots and violets.

NOTES.

Peter Weiland has been getting in excellent crops of callas that are cleaning up readily from day to day.

Frank & Sons, of Portland, Ind., are shipping some excellent Ophelia and Ward roses into the market.

P. J. Olinger has an excellent cut of flowers, particularly red carnations for St. Valentine's day.

campaign for the use of window boxes in the city, especially in the downtown business and hotel section. Samples of window boxes will be sought for display at the meeting, together with prices. In connection with the window boxes display, there will be an exhibition of flowers and plants by some of the local growers. The special committee in charge of the meeting is made up of F. A. Danker, George E. Nagengast, Jr., Edward P. Tracey and P. A. Yauch.

At the meeting, Edward P. Tracey reported that members of the club had ordered 3,500 St. Valentine's day posters, 3,500 Mothers' day posters, and 79 large St. Valentine's day and Mothers' day posters from the advertising committee of the Chicago Florists' Club. With the exception of the large Mothers' day posters all have been received and distributed. A copy of the Saturday Evening Post of February 9 was passed among the members to show the page advertisement inserted by the national publicity committee of the S. A. F. to promote the sale of flowers on St. Valentine's day and during the month of February. The advertisement received favorable comment, and a suggestion on the part of some that it would be still more impressive if printed in colors. Thomas F. Tracey reported that one of the members of the club died, February 4, John O. Graham, of Little Falls, who joined the club last August. Mr. Graham suffered a stroke of apoplexy. The club contributed a wreath for his funeral.

Communications were read from Prof. E. A. White, of Cornell University, and Private William Christie, of the Three Hundred Third Infantry, National Army. Prof. White called at-field, Mass. Mr. Richards described the variety as, not a fancy one, but fine under all conditions and entitled to be called a bread and butter producer. George E. Nagengast, Jr., of this city, showed some choice specimens of cyclamens which called forth enthusiastic comment. James A. Reynolds, of Troy, had on view a new carnation, red, which he wrote was a sport of Benora.

SEVERE WEATHER A HANDICAP.

Severe weather conditions have handicapped the local florists to a considerable extent. For on a number of days it has been impossible to ship goods, owing to the cancelling of a number of the trains, so that a large part of the stock that arrives sometimes after 24 to 36 hours' delay, is not of much use. Acting upon the instructions of the fuel controller, all florists were closed February 9-11 and not a flower was sold in this city on which are allowed to remain open, sell of the drug, fruit and grocery stores, cut flowers, and we ask you to prohibit the sale by these stores of cut flowers, as we the florists do not think it just that our special lines should be sold by these stores when we have to remain closed." In answer we received a telegram that the sale of flowers would be prohibited to all.

The coal situation does not improve; in fact, each day gets worse, and there are some close calls when anything that is burnable is used. Some of the industrial plants have come to the res-

Milwaukee.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK PROMISING.

There was not a great deal of difference in market conditions last week to that of the week previous. The continued shortage of roses is still on and the other lines of cut flowers are reaping the benefits. Due to more favorable growing conditions, the supply of cut flowers is on the increase, but at no time was there danger of an over supply of good stock. These conditions, too, are welcomed, inasmuch as the supply for St. Valentine's day will be heavier than anticipated. While February 3 proved to be the coldest day of this winter, the weather began to moderate on the evening of February 5, and continued so throughout the week, the thermometer reaching the 45° above mark, February 11. The sun was out all day, and it certainly was a sure sign that spring cannot be far off.

NOTES.

The regular club meeting, February 7, with President Kennedy in the chair, was well attended. Chas. E. Dettmann, of A. M. Dettmann & Son, 417 Auer avenue, was elected to membership. Those present, being in a patriotic mood, voted to use half of the club's cash to purchase thrift stamps. The committee, consisting of C. C. Pollworth, Fred H. Holton and Wm. C. Zimmermann, called on the trade in behalf of the local thrift stamp campaign. The Florists' Advertising Association, which was formed September 6, 1917, began to levy the proper percentage on all flowers bought and consigned through the wholesale houses in February and will continue for the remainder of the season. The first task of this community advertising in the local press will be for St. Valentine's day.

The state fair committee of the local club is now working out plans by which the arrangement of the horticultural building will present a most artistic view and not all straight lines as in the past.

those days. The closing of the stores on Saturday caused us to lose a lot of business, for many people, wanting to use flowers on Monday, would not take a chance on having them delivered on Friday, and, as there was a possibility of a $5,000 fine or six months in jail for making a sale, no one was willing to take the risk, even if his patriotic feeling was not strong enough. Stock is becoming more plentiful in the market, but roses still keep up to the near holiday figures. Some complaint is heard that the retailers do not buy enough of the No. 1 stock. When they have to pay $20 per 100 for it, you can easily find the reason. Carnations are still listed at $5 for No. 1 stock, but quite a number of the growers are not keeping to these prices to make sales. Orchids, violets, sweet peas and bulbous stocks are all fairly plentiful, so that the market lacks little.

The retail florists' association held a patriotic dance in the Metropolitan assembly rooms, and about 120 turned out to a most enjoyable evening. Cards were also indulged in and all had a good time. These social features have a way of bringing out the members, and from this good fellowship and organization, more good will result. As an instance of one of the benefits from sticking together, some of the stores here who handle other goods besides flowers, said they would not be bound by the fuel controller's order, as they would be allowed to remain open to sell their special lines and would also sell flowers. The following telegram was forwarded to Ottawa: "We, the Toronto Retail Florists, in executive meeting, assure you of our earnest co-operation in the closing of places of business on Saturday, Sunday and Monday, February 9-11, but would call to your attention that many cue on a number of occasions, and as high as $12.50 is paid a ton for soft coal, so that there will not be much margin left.

The gardeners' and florists' association held a social evening at St. George hall, February 6. A minstrel show was the drawing card, and 225 members and friends accepted the invitation.

SEVERE WEATHER HURTS BUSINESS.

Severe winter weather, with the temperature 10 below zero, has caused business depression, with shipments badly frozen. The weather has moderated, however, with considerable sunshine. Roses, especially reds, are limited in supply, but the quality of Francis Scott Key, Hoosier Beauty and American Beauty is very good. Cecile Brunner is more plentiful, but the call is not very brisk. Carnations are seen in generous numbers and the stock is good. The supply of reds is short, however. There are good stocks of Easter and calla lilies, mignonette, freesias, cornflowers and yellow daisies. Violets are hard to get in good condition owing to shipping difficulties. A few sweet peas are being received.

NOTES.

At the first meeting of the creditors of Frank R. Bohnke, 84 Miller street, in proceedings in bankruptcy, George B. Draper was appointed trustee. The principal assets are represented by 15,000 early flowering bulbs, and since all have been planted the trustee will have the task of keeping them from freezing until marketable.

Two radiators at the store of H. E. Wilson burst February 10, due to the cold weather, resulted in some frozen stock and suspension of business for a few hours followed.

Max, The Florist, has been returned from Camp Gordon, on account of a weak arm and will open a store a few doors from his former place of business.

Mrs. Alma Keys has given up her store on Central avenue, it not proving a profitable venture.

Geo. B. Hart has installed an electric air brush for applying color to baskets, etc.

TRADE SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

The past week showed improvement in the local market. Stock was a little easier and business showed some energy. Roses of all kinds are a little more plentiful. Ophelia and Russell are the best stock. Some very good Killarneys are also seen, particularly White Killarney. Sweet peas are beginning to arrive in quantities, and prices have dropped accordingly. Carnations have improved with the bright weather. Violets are in good supply and evidently will be for St. Valentine's day. Bulbous stock, such as narcissi, jonquils and tulips, are plentiful but the colored does not move so well. Lily of the valley is scarce, but orchids are in good supply. In novelties, the market is well supplied with calendulas, cut primroses, myosotis and daisies. Greens of all kinds are fairly plentiful, with the exception of southern smilax.

NOTES.

The local street car strike cut in quite heavily in the downtown retail florists' business last week. The outlying florists did not feel it so much, because most of their business is more or less over the telephone. However, everybody was glad to see it end so quickly, as it did not do the business any good.

W. A. Rowe is cutting very heavy in calendulas and yellow daisies. These should have a good call for St. Valentine's day as they combine very nicely with violets in boxes. Windler Wholesale Floral Co. handles the consignments.

D. S. Geddis, of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., states quite a number of big orders for orchids are booked. They are also handling some very nice Russell and Ophelia from the Miligan establishment.

W. J. Pilcher's wife is at the St. Mary's infirmary where she underwent an operation February 9. Mr. Pilcher states she is doing very nicely, and he expects she will be out again within a couple of weeks.

Quite a few of the local retail florists have taken the cue and are connecting their local advertising up with the national publicity campaign. This sort of advertising should show results.

H. G. Berning and C. A. Kuehn, wholesale florists, are getting in some extra quality carnations. A number of their growers are prize carnation growers.

W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. expects to have a big cut of violets this week, as some of the biggest violet growers are among their consignors.

TRANSPORTATION DELAYS CAUSE TROUBLE.

In spite of cold weather, delays in shipments and other conditions, business has been fairly good. The wholesale houses have been especially handicapped in getting stock and making shipments, incoming supplies being from 12 to 24 hours late in some cases, meaning a long day's work for what could generally be accomplished in four or five hours. Roses are scarce, but the prospects for a good crop are fair. Carnations are still up in price, the best bringing $4 and $5 per 100. American Beauty sells fairly well and a good supply is received daily. The demand for sweet peas is exceptionally brisk and the quality excellent. Yellow daisies, freesias, daffodils, Paper Whites, snapdragons and some fine Primula obconica are seen in the market.

CLUB MEETING.

The meeting of the florists' club was held in its new location in the basement of the North Side Carnegie library on the night of February 5, and in spite of a biting northwest wind, with zero temperature, there was a large and enthusiastic attendance and the exhibition tables were a blaze of color. "Such perfect specimens of well flowered cyclamens were never before on our tables," said the oldest member. These, together with several well-grown, well-flowered Primula obconica came from the greenhouses on the old Campmeeting road, Leetsdale, Pa. Some carnation seedlings from Sewickley Heights were favorably commented on, and also a double spotted flower of the "Lily of the Nile" from Dixmont. The feature of the tables was a vase of the best Nemesia strumosa Suttonii ever seen in Pittsburgh. Gorgeous, red, orange and yellow beauties on 30-inch stems, with 12 to 14 blooms, and many of these measuring one and one-half inches across. Murphy says: "They are as easy to grow as snapdragon, and their keeping qualities as cut flowers are O. K." The nemesias came from "Oakledge," Sewickley Heights, as did also some splendid East Lottier stocks. A new plantsman in the Pittsburgh market, H. Wray, from Cambria, Ohio, staged some very good Primula obconica. It was election night, and the veteran officers were all given a third term.

OBITUARY.

Theodore Krombach.

Theodore Krombach, a well-known retail florist, who for the past five years has conducted a store at 4519 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, died February 10, aged 58 years. He was born in Brooklyn, and for some years was in the hotel business. He had been prominent in Masonic and other fraternal orders. He is survived by his widow and four sisters. Funeral services were held at the home on the evening of February 12, by Joppa Lodge 201, F. and A. M., burial being in Greenwood cemetery on the morning of February 13. A brother, Charles, who died several years ago; was for many years a prominent Brooklyn florist.

Charles Edward Faxon.

Charles Edward Faxon, assistant director of the Arnold Arboretum since 1882, died in Boston, Mass., February 6, aged 72 years, as announced in last week's issue, page 154. He was formerly an instructor of botany at Harvard University. He was a noted botanical artist, and was selected by the Smithsonian Institution to make the illustrations for work on trees, afterward known as "Sargent's Silva of North America." It is stated that for this work he made nearly 750 drawings, with a prepared analysis for each subject. He was a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

Mrs. Gertrude Fries.

Mrs. Gertrude Fries, wife of Thomas R. Fries, prominent retail florist of Lancaster, Pa., died in that city, January 27, of pneumonia. She was 43 years of age. The deceased is survived by her husband, her father, John J. Egge, four children and three brothers. Mrs. Fries was highly esteemed by all who knew her and the sympathy of a wide circle of friends is extended to the bereaved family.

Detroit Florists' Co-Operative Publicity.

Florists of Detroit, Mich., alive as usual to every opportunity to put flowers to the front on every occasion, stimulated public interest for St. Valentine's day by placing posterettes on all outgoing bills, correspondence, packages, etc., with large size posters on delivery vehicles. The design showed a soldier and sailor behind a red heart upon which is the inscription "Flowers to My Valentine." Below was the date, February 14.

AKRON, O.—The flower shop of Frank F. Denison was totally destroyed by fire, January 1.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.—C. D. Mills occupies a high place in the councils of the American Woodmen.

CLEBURNE, TEX.—A greenhouse belonging to D. Fudge was partially destroyed by fire, January 15.

WINNIPEG, MAN.—Fire recently destroyed a large stock of plants and cut flowers at the establishment of A. R. King on Hargrave street.

DAW, IA.—The Curtis Floral Co., with other establishments at Hampton and Webster City, has closed its business here on account of fuel shortage.

SAN DIEGO, CALIF.—Miss Alice M. Greer has been elected secretary of the floral association to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Winfield Hale.

THE price of lead which recently declined has advanced from 6½ to 6¾ cents.

Illinois State Florists' Association.

The annual meeting of Illinois State Florists' Association will be held in the floricultural building, adjoining the greenhouses at the University of Illinois, Urbana, March 5-6. Every florist in the state is invited to attend. Better make your plans now to be there.

The inspection of the greenhouses and the experiments being carried on there will be profitable to every florist. Be sure to come and see them. If you have any trouble with plant diseases, let the university help you.

An interesting programme is being prepared, so come and take part in the discussions.

THE government's $10,000,000 supply of nitrate of soda is reported exhausted.

Canna Fiery Cross.

The W. Atlee Burpee Co., Philadelphia, Pa., writes as follows regarding this new canna, which it proposes offering the present season:

"Last year we were able to secure a most wonderful new canna to be known as Fiery Cross. It is a Firebird seedling and so vastly better than that variety that we have decided to introduce it this year, notwithstanding the fact it is apparently a bad year to put out a novelty, that must of necessity sell for a high price.

"This new canna is larger than Firebird, producing enormous heads, and is almost the identical color with Fiery Cross sweet peas. That is the reason we have decided on the name Fiery Cross."

NOTICE TO THOSE WHO ISSUE CATALOGUES.

I am directed by President Totty to call a meeting of all in the trade who publish catalogues, to be held at the new offices of the society, 902-903 Johnson building, 1170 Broadway, New York, Thursday, February 21, at 2 p. m.

The object of the meeting is to be the consideration, in view of the adverse conditions now generally experienced in the trade, of the question whether or not a uniform clause should be embodied in all sales contracts, to the effect that all shipments of stock in transit travel at purchasers' risk.

Any catalogue publisher who cannot be present, either in person or by representative, is invited to present his or their views, in writing, through the secretary.

All who intend to be present, or represented, will please at once notify the secretary of such intention.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Pot Makers Endorse Trade Acceptances.

The Pot Makers' Credit Association, composed of the flower pot manufacturers east of the Mississippi river, held their January meeting in New York and discussed the adoption of trade acceptances as outlined recently in THE AMERICAN FLORIST. These and general credit conditions were thoroughly discussed, and trade acceptances will be used as soon as full data can be obtained.

The publicity idea of advertising flowers was discussed, and the association ordered a check drawn for $100 for one year's payment as evidence that they believe in advertising flowers, while several individual members expressed their willingness to join in this movement.

The potters are being hard hit on coal and labor, and also the shortage of ready cash due to the long use of the present liberal credit terms, and it was decided that these practices must cease if the potters expected to remain in business. The meeting was well attended, 95 per cent of the members being present or represented.

P. M. READ, Sec'y.

National Publicity for Flowers.

The promotion bureau of the S. A. F. has experienced a pleasing demand for electrotypes which it has prepared for use by retail florists in their local newspapers, connecting their establishments with the national advertising campaign now in progress. The electros sent out for St. Valentine's day as nearly as possible accentuated the features of the page advertisement in the Saturday Evening Post of February 9, so that identity would be fully evident, and the direct advertising by the individual productive of results such as aimed for by the use of the national magazine.

Other electrotyped advertisements linking up with the advertising in a selected coterie of national magazines are now available for Easter and Mothers' day, and, for regular use, calling attention to birthday and wedding requirements, and to the home use of flowers and plants. A "broadside" showing reproductions of these electrotyped advertisements, as well as of the magazine advertisements, has been mailed throughout the trade. Anyone not having received this should make request of the secretary for one.

A large number of orders have been received for the transfer signs, "Say It With Flowers," the handsome design for windows and doors, easily transfixed and permanent. These signs will be forwarded in a few days, the makers having required considerable time for their production. It will be two weeks before the same signs in glass form and with an easel back can be shipped. Those ordering any of these items, should be sure to send the cash price with the order, as the prices are near to the cost mark and based on remittances with orders.

On account of the enforced holidays, some late orders for electrotypes covering St. Valentine's day could not be filled to reach destinations in time. Order early your requirements for other special days.

All florists advertising in their local papers are urged to send in marked copies of the newspapers containing the advertisements, as this bureau is desirous of keeping a record of same.

BUSINESS HOLDS UP WELL.

A noticeable change has come over the market the past week. Business has kept up in spite of the severe cold weather and stock is more plentiful, although an embargo on all goods over the Boston & Maine Railroad stirred up a little excitement in the shipping trade. That matter, however, has settled and all hands are pleased. Spring bulbs are arriving in large quantities, such as Thomas Moore, Flamingo, Cottage Maid and White Hawk tulips. Campanulas, Golden Spurs, Purity freesias and Roman hyacinths all find a ready market. Carnations are plentiful and selling for $3, $4 and $5 per 100. Sweet peas are quoted at 75 cents and $1, and moving slowly. Mignonette, English daisies, English primroses and myosotis are selling well, with a large demand for St. Valentine's day. Roses are not plentiful, and good American Beauties are hard to obtain at any price.

NOTES.

F. H. Houghton, formerly of the firm of Houghton & Clark, and who later opened a store in Melrose, is now with the firm of John O'Brian in his new store on Charles street, where he is meeting his old customers. Mr. O'Brian is having a good year and carries a heavy stock of flowering plants and a choice variety of cut flowers.

Henry R. Comley reports business extra good, although running short of help on account of his son joining the colors, and the scarcity of good salesmen. He is working from early morning until late at night getting orders out and arranging his store.

John J. Lee, of Jamaica Plain, one of our bulb specialists, is ill with a severe attack of the grippe. His overflow of cut flowers is being looked after by M. Liebman at the Flower Exchange.

Penn. The Florist, has a very attractive window display of heart-shaped boxes tied with ribbon, a suggestion for St. Valentine's day. His other window is attractively arranged with genistas, cyclamens and azaleas.

Thomas Galvin's stores have been kept very busy with funeral work, and the entire force worked all night making up designs for John L. Sullivan's funeral. Over 200 pieces were delivered.

Since January 1, Welch Bros. Co. has done a wonderful business. Their shipping trade alone has doubled last year's. Their florists' supply trade is a trifle better than in 1917.

F. E. Palmer, of Brookline, is exhibiting some very good lilies and large white and salmon pink cyclamens. He is also cutting some large sprigs of Acacia pubescens.

B. A. Snyder & Co. report trade improving each day. The way they go about the work, they are deserving of a great deal of credit.

The Houghton & Gorney store is always artistic and the window is attractively arranged, old fashioned bouquets predominating.

Wm. Carr, salesman at the Flower Exchange, is receiving daily shipment of fancy snapdragons, Easter lilies and colored freesias.

Reports are coming in from all the retail stores for a large demand for St. Valentine's day trade.

George Arnold, of the firm of Arnold & Fisher, is ill at home with a severe cold. S. K. G.

PELHAM MANOR, N. Y.—John G. Gardner, for the past year in charge of the Frederick H. Allen estate here, died February 2.

STOCK IS EXCEEDINGLY SCARCE.

We are all greatly relieved by the appearance of the present thaw, which we have anticipated for so long. Although we are told that it will not relieve the coal situation to any great extent, yet the strain on our coal piles at the greenhouses will be greatly lessened. Flowers have been exceedingly scarce. Roses are far from plentiful, especially in the short lengths. Carnations are just about equal to the demand, which is very active for them. Easter lilies and callas, although in large production, are not sufficient to meet the demand. Orchids are fairly plentiful. Lily of the valley and violets, in the singles and doubles, are more plentiful. Bulbous stock is just about meeting requirements. Spencer sweet peas are in good quantity, while snapdragon, calendulas, mignonette, hyacinths, stevia and pansies are all in limited supply. In blooming plants, primulas, and cyclamens are the most plentiful. The demand has been far greater than the supply the past week.

NOTES.

One of the most elaborate wedding decorations ever staged in this city, on February 11, called for numerous cases of southern smilax, used in the cathedral, on the marble altars, chancel rail, pulpit, and priex dieu, which formed a fine background for the thousands of Easter lilies and callas which banked the church, and which were clustered on the pews. The entire color scheme at the church was green and white. At the home, southern smilax covered the walls, doorways, arches, etc., and many thousands of Russell, Shawyer, Ophelia and Sunburst roses were banked and massed throughout the rooms, while spring flowers in all varieties, combined with pussy willows, were also used with fine effect. The bridal table was decorated with lily of the valley and Laelia Anceps orchids, white freesia, and white Killarneys. The Flick Floral Co. also sent out two casket blankets and a large number of other funeral pieces last week.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey report more business than they can take care of. This firm has closed down five houses in order to conserve coal. They are cutting some fine orchids, roses, and Easter and Calla lilies. Their bulbous stock is also coming in bloom in fine shape. They will have a good rose crop for St. Valentine's day.

Funeral work and advance orders for St. Valentine's day are keeping the force at A. J. Lanternier's busy. They are cutting good carnations, and quantities of bulbous stock at their range.

The New Haven Floral Co. is sending some fine Killarney roses and Spencer sweet peas to this market. The demand here is very heavy for all cut flowers and bulbous plants.

TRADE SHOWS SIGNS OF IMPROVEMENT.

Business has been fairly good the past week compared to last month, and according to some of the leading retail florists, their sales so far during February compare most favorably with those of the same period of 1917. The warm weather of the past week has helped business considerably and also saved thousands of dollars in fuel bills for the growers. It has also relieved the coal situation considerably, and while conditions are far from normal, they are better at this writing than they have been for several months. Roses are scarce, especially in the short and medium stemmed grades, and there is seldom a surplus in any variety when the wholesale houses close for the day. Carnations are in fair supply, but clean up nicely every day at good prices. Gardenias are not as plentiful as they have been and are commanding higher prices. Sweet peas are seen in large supply, but are in good demand and move quickly. Orchids are in heavy supply, consequently the price is within the reach of all. The offerings in this line include particularly fine Cattleya Trianae, cypridiums, and magnificent sprays of Phalenopsis Schilleriana and P. amabilis. Lily of the valley is in fair supply. Tulips, jonquils, narcissi and freesias are arriving in large quantities, but are moving satisfactorily at good prices. Some particularly fine iris and wall flowers are included in the daily offerings as well as splendidly grown double giant calendulas, Candytuft, violets, daisies, stocks, mignonette, Romans, stevias, snapdragons, bouvardias and pansies are also to be had in quantity. Lilies are seen in large numbers at several of the stores, and while they are moving well, prices are none too good, considering the general market conditions. Many of the wholesale houses are now charging $3.50 per 1000 for ferns, which became effective the first of this month. The outlook for St. Valentine's day is very bright, but the demand started in later than usual this year. It would not be at all surprising if the market cleaned up completely in all lines before the rush is over.

NOTES.

Kyle & Forester are experiencing a brisk demand for the pretty new seedling sweet pea, Chicago Jewel, grown by Kottrach Bros., proprietors of the Deerfield Nurseries. This variety was awarded a certificate of merit by the florists' club at the novelty show held at the Hotel Bismarck last week, where it attracted much favorable attention. Kottrach Bros. will be pleased to have seedsmen inspect this variety and arrange with a reliable firm to market their entire stock.

Allie Zech was well pleased with the St. Valentine's day demand at Zech & Mann's store, especially from out-of-town points, which was unusually heavy. Fred Ottenbacher, who has been with this house for a number of years, celebrated a birthday February 9. He has passed the 40 mark, but looks as young as ever.

Nicholas Admiral, owner of one of the earliest floral establishments at Danville, 25 years ago, died last week. In recent years he had been engineer and conductor on the C. & E. I. railroad, residing in this city. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Virginia Admiral, and two step-daughters.

Bassett & Washburn are cutting quite heavily in roses, but report an early cleanup each day. C. L. Washburn says that their St. Valentine's day trade was good, but not equal to that of last year, which was exceptionally heavy.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report a good St. Valentine's day business, with a heavy call for roses. Tulips, jonquils and all other spring flowers are leaders at this establishment.

H. B. Brandon, who has charge of the ferns and other green goods at the A. L. Randall Co.'s store, is back on the job after being on the sick list for three weeks.

H. C. Blewitt, of Des Plaines, who is making his headquarters at A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s store, is offering a good supply of fancy forget-me-nots.

William F. Schofield, the North State street florist, has plans under way for the building of a new store, flat, garage and conservatory.

J. A. Budlong is handling a regular supply of gardenias. Darwin tulips of fine quality are seen at this firm's store.

John Michelsen of the E. C. Amling Co., fell and sprained his right hand on the evening of February 8.

J. E. Yeats, of Champaign, spent a few days here last week on a combined business and pleasure trip.

A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., is in New York on business.

Some of the west side retail florists held a meeting last week when they decided to co-operate with each other in every way possible hereafter. All those present agreed to close on Wednesday and Friday evenings at 6:30 o'clock and at noon on Sundays. This is a move in the right direction and it is gratifying to note that some of the retail florists especially those in the outlying districts are beginning to realize that it is not necessary to keep open day and night to earn a living.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is headquarters for orchids this week, especially for cattleyas and phalaenopsis which are in splendid crop at the Morton Grove greenhouses and are in good demand at the store. Otto W. Freese reports that the demand for roses for St. Valentine's day was very heavy and that pink tulips also had a good call. T. E. Waters was pleased with the demand for Valentine boxes and succeeded in cleaning up all those the supply department had on hand.

The stockholders of Kennicott Bros. Co. held a meeting at their store on North Wabash avenue, Monday, January 11, when a 20 per cent cash dividend was declared. Joseph Kohout will represent the firm before the growers and act upon any subject that may present itself. The proprietors are more than pleased with the showing made by manager Pollworth the past year.

Second Lieutenant Fred W. Haeger, now stationed at Rockford, visited with his folks here this week. He was formerly with the A. L. Randall Co. and received his commission in the first officers' reserve training camp at Ft. Sheridan.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is handling large quantities of bulbous stock and a good supply of roses, particularly in the longer stemmed grades, which are moving nicely owing to the short and medium lengths.

Percy Jones, Inc., experienced a splendid demand for violets for St. Valentine's day as well as for other stocks, particularly roses. Callas of unusually fine quality are seen here in fair supply this week.

George Reinberg was well pleased with the car of coal that he received through the fuel administrator, which compared most favorably in quality to that obtained through his regular channel.

Stollery Bros. report that their sales so far during February have been very encouraging, but that their total sales in January were not up to expectations. Fred Stollery is rejoicing over the fact that they tore down their greenhouses when they did, otherwise he would be worrying about the coal supply like practically all the other growers in this vicinity.

The John Kruchten Co. is strong on carnations this week, among which are noted particularly fine Aviator. Henry Kruchten says that this variety not only is one of the best sellers at the Kruchten store, but the best producer at the greenhouses.

George Valke, of Minot, N. D., was here buying seeds for his spring trade this week. He reports that he has plenty of coal to carry him through the remainder of the season and that the remarkable part of it is that it is all eastern fuel.

Wietor Bros. are in good crop with carnations which they grow in quantity in all the leading varieties. They are having unusually good success with Rosette now arriving in large numbers in perfect condition.

Visitors: John Lapes, Cedar Rapids, Ia.; George Valke, Minot, N. D.; George Bischoff, Ft. Wayne, Ind.; E. S. Thompson, Benton Harbor, Mich.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Hotel Bismarck, February 7, President Lautenschlager in the chair. The novelty exhibition staged by Chairman Waters, of the good-of-the-club committee, was an interesting feature and attracted a good attendance. Two new members were elected, John E. Ebberts, and E. W. Young. Victor Bergman, 516 South Michigan avenue, and M. S. Smith, 233 West Madison street, were proposed for membership. The advertising committee made a highly favorable preliminary report on the sales of St. Valentine and Mothers' day posterettes and on the motion of August Poehlmann the committee was instructed to continue the sale of the latter. The fuel committee, Peter Reinberg, C. L. Washburn and August Poehlmann, was accorded a standing vote of thanks for its splendid services in having some 65 cars of coal directed to florists in urgent need, and substantial compensation was voted E. A. Ollinger for his excellent services as greenhouse fuel administrator. A letter was read from W. N. Rudd, thanking the members for the floral offering sent his daughter, Miss Margaret Rudd, on hospital service in France. Vice-President Friedman has promised a great night of entertainment and amusement for the next regular meeting to be held March 7, and plans have been made for an elaborate Ladies' Night at the May meeting. A. K. Andersen, orchid grower for the Poehlmann Bros. Co., read a valuable paper on the culture and use of phalaenopsis, his firm exhibiting a number of grand sprays of P. amabilis and P. Schilleriana. Peter Pearson gave an account of his experiences in the home production of tulips and narcissus bulbs, saying it was not only possible, but that he had produced bulbs fully equal to those imported from Europe. George Walker, Minot, N. D., was a welcome visitor.

President Lautenschlager appointed P. W. Peterson and Victor Bergman as judges of supplies and C. W. Johnson and Albert Erickson, judges of floral exhibits. It was announced that the annual convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association will be held at Urbana March 5 and August Poehlmann, chairman, James Morton, P. J. Foley and E. A. Ollinger were appointed a committee to interest the trade and secure a large delegation, this work to be carried on in co-operation with the transportation committee. Paul Klingsporn was appointed chairman of a similar committee with the privilege of selecting other members of his committee to work up enthusiasm and a large delegation for the annual convention of the Society of American Florists, to be held at St. Louis, Mo., April 9-11.

Other committees announced were as follows: Publicity Committee—A.

THE EXHIBITS.

Poehlmann Bros Co.—Large display of very fine spikes of phalaenopsis and a cattleya plant; highly commended. Also a large collection of Valentine novelties. The hand-painted Valentine Kewpie boy and girl with water container is especially suited for an inexpensive gift. A beautifully decorated little basket arranged for pin cushion with silk butterfly tied in handle was highly commended, also the red heart corsage box and an inexpensive folding Valentine box. The very latest novelty in hand painted panels, 2x5 feet, is made of Bebanos grass, and not forgetting a pretty little basket for St. Patrick's day on a clover leaf base with a potato-shaped container and twisted oval willow handle.

A. Lange.—A very effective heart and arrow on easle made of cape flowers. The heart and easle were red and the arrow white, which were trimmed with well-placed clusters of ribbons.

Alois Frey, Crown Point, Ind.—Vase of colored freesia, No. P. 44; certificate of merit, and L. No. 2, highly commended.

George Wienhoeber. — Wonderful basket of phalaenopsis, cattleyas, lavender freesias, roses and purple iris. Unusual ability shown in the blending of colors.

Deerfield Nurseries, Deerfield.—Vase of new seedling sweet pea, Chicago Jewel; awarded certificate of merit; also, vase of new seedling sweet pea, No. 00-12; highly commended.

Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet.—Vase of carnation, Superb; highly commended. Seedlings No. 178 and No. 161 pronounced two very promising varieties.

August Jurgens.—Twin tulips and narcissus. Also collection of named narcissi and jonquil; highly commended.

Peter Pearson.—Assorted tulips and narcissus grown from bulbs produced at Jefferson Park; vote of thanks.

William Copeland.—Display of tulips from bulbs produced at Jefferson Park; vote of thanks.

George Ball, Glen Ellyn.—Giant flowered double calendula, Victor; highly commended.

E. C. Amling Co.—Vase of English wall flowers, Cheiranthus Cheiri; vote of thanks.

Sam Pearce.—Vase of Iris Tingitana; highly commended.

Pyfer & Olsem, Wilmette, Ill.

Pyfer & Olsem write as follows, February 12: "Referring to the statement published in your paper last week, regarding Pyfer & Olsem being bankrupt, we beg to state that this is not the case. In order to conserve the property for the protection of all concerned, H. E. Philpott has started foreclosure proceedings on his second mortgage and has had a receiver appointed to look after the best interests of all concerned. We think, however, that we will be able to have the receiver discharged before your paper goes to press. The creditors' committee is suggesting that we continue the business until July 1 under the management of Mr. Philpott.

New York Florists' Club.

The club met in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building on the night of February 11, President Schenck in the chair. New members, nominated at the January meeting were elected, and the following were present, and being introduced, spoke briefly: Otto Hauschild, Henry Dierks, Alex. M. Rymer, Bert H. McIlveen, Jacob Sprich, Felix C. Tam-aroglio and E. Bonnot. It was announced that P. F. McKenney had taken a life membership in the club. The following were nominated for membership: E. J. Hession, Madison avenue and 76th street, New York; F. McGovern, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Thos. Burns, New York; C. A. Peterson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Paul Meconi, 55 West 26th street New York; J. McGovern, Brooklyn, N. Y.; C. Galuba, Woodlawn, N. Y.; Robert Roper, Jr., Chatham, N. J.; P. F. McKenney, Fifth avenue and 42nd street, New York; Joseph Trepel, 334 Lewis avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Morris Christatos, New York; Albert Friedman, Woodlawn, N. Y.

Walter F. Sheridan, for the committee on the annual dinner, announced that it will be held at the Hotel McAlpin March 16, at $5 per plate. At least 150 persons are expected to be present. Emil Schloss, for the committee to secure a new meeting place, reported on a hall near 42nd street; selection deferred. A. H. Langjahr, for committee to entertain soldiers who have been florists, when visiting the city, reported that few are in the city as no leaves are being granted at the cantonments. Charles Weathered, for the flower show committee, which had held a meeting in the afternoon, reported satisfactory progress. Secretary Young reported along similar lines. He expects to be able to report $12,000 worth of space sold before the show opens. The ladies of the Red Cross are making great efforts to make their tea room more attractive than ever. Secretary Young announced that hereafter his office of the club and the Society of American Florists will be at 1170 Broadway. He also referred to his recent trip to St. Louis. The club voted to increase his salary as secretary to $500 per annum.

President Totty, of the Society of American Florists, made an interesting address on the affairs of the society and the trade in general. Referring to the action of the executive board in dropping the national flower show, he said it had met with general approval. He believes the coal situation much improved. He further stated that the traveling men in the trade are opposed to holding the convention earlier than August, and that a change in date may yet be made. He added some good words for the Washington representative, William F. Gude, who of late has been a tireless worker in the various interests of the society. President Schenck spoke highly of the hospitality of the St. Louis florists on his recent visit.

A. L. Miller, for the transportation committee to the St. Louis convention, reported that the fare would be about the same either over the New York Central or Pennsylvania railroads, to wit, $24.89 one way for a party of not less than ten; $26.73 for individual tickets. It is expected that two special cars will be taken.

William C. Freeman, business manager of the Advertising News, gave an interesting talk on publicity. He commended the publicity committee of the S. A. F. for its recent page advertisement in the Saturday Evening Post. In the discussion which followed, President Totty, Maurice Fuld, W. R. Pierson and E. C. Vick took part. In answer to a question, W. R. Pierson stated that the florists of this county do an annual business of $100,000,000.

Chairman Kessler of the house committee was given a standing vote of thanks for his generous donation of abundant "eats" at the January meeting. A letter was received from the Brooklyn gardeners, employed in the city parks, who were recently classed as laborers, saying that they had been restored to the competitive list. It was announced that Frank H. Traendly and Robert Simpson and the committee had left for Ithaca, N. Y., to attend the meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs, February 12.

The following stock was exhibited: Pink rose, Bedford Belle, by the Bedford Floral Co., Bedford Hills, N. Y., committee wants to see it again. Rose Madame, Colette Martinetti, by A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.—highly commended. Iris Tirgitane, by P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y., vote of thanks.

Joseph A. Manda spoke of his recent visit to his son, who is a soldier at Camp McLellan, Ala. He was well pleased with what he saw of the camps.

W. R. Pierson made a strong appeal for support of the American Rose Society which meets in connection with the flower show in this city, in March. Arthur Herrington, who will superintend the show, made a good talk for its success and said, among other

COAL SITUATION EASIER.

Extremes of weather has been our lot the past week, the temperature jumping from 14° below to 40° above zero in two days. The extremes, accompanied by high winds, overcame all the exertions of the greenhouse men to keep frost out of the houses, and quite a number have reported the glass showing 32° and below in cold ends exposed to the free force of the wind. As the winter is wearing away, with the sun getting strong enough to supply heat through the day, the anxiety of the coal problem is easing up. Growers have to still work very hard to get a supply, but, being satisfied with the lowest grades, such as rice and scrapings of the yard, which has to be mixed with coarser buckwheat and pea sizes, and burned with the aid of a blower, it produces heat, and they now all feel that the balance of the season may be tidied over. The situation in the market is much the same as that of last week. Roses are scarce, particularly the medium grades. While American Beauties are shy, there are special Russells which make a satisfactory substitute. This variety, which is good nearly all the season round, is carried by all the high class stores. Carnations are more than equal to the demand; the quality is good. The accumulation that goes to the street men on Saturday is not comforting to the growers. Sweet peas are the best stock in the market; excellent flowers, many of them first crops, are coming in from a number of growers. Daffodils and tulips are becoming plentiful, particularly the former; they are popular, however, and move off in large quantities. Cattleyas are above the demand. Lily of the valley of excellent quality is still to be had in limited quantities. Easter lilies are good stock; the market seems fairly full, but they bring the top price of 12½ to 15 cents, which will help out a little. Asparagus is away behind the demand and the despised southern stock is taken without question at highest prices. Hardy ferns give the dealers considerable trouble these days. The boxes are so long on the way that, with the freezing and thawing, many damaged and blackened fronds are formed in the bunches, which, with considerable time and labor, have to be sorted out and the leaves rebunched. Violets do not clean up as they should. They appear to be losing their popularity.

WITH THE WHOLESALERS.

Leo Niessen, in speaking of the rose, Mrs. Sawyer, says its natural long stem, without a pinch, gives it an advantage over many other sorts with knots in the stems, which many retail florists object to most strenuously. Fairly busy is the report here. Easter lilies, carnations, Russell roses and spring flowers are features.

The Joseph Heacock Co. does not at this time have enough roses to go around. Another two weeks will see the beginning of a new crop, with which Manager Cortis hopes to satisfy everybody.

The hot water system of the Philadelphia Wholesale Cut Flower Co. has at last been fixed up and all is now serene. High grade roses and carnations are seen here in quantity.

Edward Reid is handling superb sweet peas, the variety, Mrs. Gude, being particularly fine. Prima Donna, Maryland and Sunburst are features of his rose stock.

Spring flowers, Easter lilies and sweet peas are features of the Berger Brothers' Market. Very fair business for the season is reported as being done here.

A good supply of roses from the Florex Gardens is the feature of the Eugene Bernheimer stock. Easter lilies and sweet peas are also seen in quantity.

Martin Reakauf, for over 30 years with H. Bayersdorfer & Co., is going into business on his own account, and has leased the building at 433 Callowhill street for his store and factory. He will open March 1 with an up-to-date stock of new goods in florists' supplies and hopes for a share of the patronage of the trade.

The team representing the florists' club in the ten pin tournament for the championship of the city are now the runners up, being in second place. George Moss, the captain of the previous championship teams, is coaching and rooting for them.

The St. Valentine kiddies of H. Bayersdorfer & Co. made a great hit. St. Patrick's day and Washington's birthday are the next novelty days for which there are many special features. Then all energies will be bent upon Easter.

The large Walnut street window of J. J. Habermehl's Sons is now gay with spring flowers. The Philapatrian ball, MILDER WEATHER BENEFITS GROWERS.

We are always glad to mention even a slight improvement in the condition of the cut flower market, but along that line for the past week there is little or nothing that can be said. The one bright spot on the horizon, under present conditions, at least for the growers, was milder weather during the latter part of the week. It was not a real winter thaw of the old-fashioned kind, but it thawed some, for which we are truly thankful. On February 7, for a short time, the temperature was up to 49°, the highest since Thanksgiving. On February 8, there was light freezing, with another rise and rain on February 9. This made but little difference in the supply of roses, but it materially increased the receipts of carnations and bulbous stocks. In roses, American Beauties continue to arrive in light supply and good specials wholesale at the rate of $75 per 100, but the shorter grades, No. 1s and 2s, are very poor and hard to move. In tea roses, on the other hand, there is a noticeable lagging in the call for fine specials, the principal call being for shorter and cheaper grades; in fact, all the buyers are looking for something cheap this winter, and as a rule they are getting it. On February 9, fair to good carnations could be bought for $2 per 100. From now on, we expect to see an avalanche of carnations on the market and very low prices. Good tulips are now attractive features of the market; the best running from 40 to 50 cents per dozen, with possibly a few sales of Flamingo at 75 cents. Both yellow and Paper White narcissi are plentiful and hard to clean up. The best of the yellows bring $1 for three dozen, but much of it goes cheaper; Paper White, 10 to 20 cents per dozen. Milder weather may somewhat stimulate the violet market, but it is also likely to increase the supply, and there is now plenty to go around. In orchids, gardenias, lilies, lily of the valley and various minor stocks, there is movement, but no increase in prices over our last quotations.

February 11.—This is a "heatless" Monday, but fortunately the weather is not cold. Tomorrow is a holiday in this state, and with fair weather there should be some business. The supply of carnations and bulbous stock continues to increase.

NOTES.

Charles Hornecker, of East Orange, N. J., a member of the 213th aero squadron, which was on the transport Tuscania, recently torpedoed off the Irish coast, was a member of a family of florists, well known in this city. He enlisted last November, soon after his twenty-first birthday, and was sent to the aviation field at Mineola, L. I. In his physical examination, he was passed as an almost perfect specimen of manhood. For four years previous to his enlistment, he had worked with his brother, Henry, who has a range and store in East Orange. The death of their father was duly recorded in THE AMERICAN FLORIST of January 12. On the morning of February 9, the Hornecker family had not heard directly from Charles, but a clergyman of Oyster Bay, L. I., had received a cablegram which stated that it was believed that all members of the 213th aero squadron were saved.—Later reports state that Charles Hornecker's name appears in the list of survivors.

William H. Foddy, the retailer of Flatbush and Seventh avenues, Brooklyn, now has two sons in the aviation service of the army, both volunteers. Howard K. volunteered some time ago and is now at Lake Charles, La. Har-

VAUGHAN'S ASTER SEED FOR FLORISTS

NEW ASTER—Mammoth Non-lateral Branching

MAMMOTH NON-LATERAL BRANCHING

MAMMOTH NON-LATERAL BRANCHING WHITE. 2 ft. This is without doubt the largest Aster on the market. Many of the flowers will measure four inches in diameter. The plants grow about two feet high with a low branching habit, and the flowers which are borne on non-lateral stems are full, with petals curled and incurved, making the flowers appear like a cross between an Ostrich Feather and a Giant Branching. $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., \$1.00 \$0.35
MAMMOTH NON-LATERAL BRANCHING BLUE. 2 ft. Very like the preceding except the flowers are a medium shade of blue $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., \$1.00 .35

OTHER AMERICAN ASTERS

LAVENDER GEM. One of the most charming sorts. The flowers are of a true lavender shade and the petals are gracefully curled and twisted, and the blooms are borne on long stems. .25 2.20
PEERLESS PINK. The flowers are enormous, globular in shape, many five inches across, of a most delightful and pleasing rich shell pink. First flowers appear about the middle of August, but the plant is at its zenith about four weeks later. .20 1.20
CRIMSON GIANT. This shade has been one which has seemed to lack intensity of color, but in this variety the blood red blossom is particularly bright. .20 1.20
SENSATION. The redder of all red asters, the color being a dark rich garnet or ox-blood red, which glistens in the sunshine like a live coal. The plants are of the free branching habit, about 18 inches high, the double flowers, averaging about 3 inches in diameter, are borne freely on stems about 12 inches long. .25 2.00

VAUGHAN'S SEED STORE

NEW YORK

Joseph L. Barnitt, a designer and decorator for Alexander McConnell, received a cablegram February 9 from his son, Joseph L. Barnitt, Jr., a member of Aero Squadron 213, who was on the torpedoed Tuscania, saying he was safe. Both father and son have been with Alex. McConnell for years and are well known and highly respected in the trade.

John Tryferos, of the retail firm of Tryferos Brothers, was married to Miss Tsolomiti, in Chicago, February 3. His friend, George Rondires, a retail florist of Eighth avenue, this city, accompanied him to Chicago and acted as best man. The happy couple are spending their honeymoon in the west.

A. Kottmiller, 426 Fifth avenue, arranged a handsome wedding decoration in the Ritz-Carlton hotel, February 12. Rubrum lilies, hanging baskets of Lorraine begonias and many spring flowers were used.

Henry Hoffman, who has been connected with the store of G. E. M. Stumpp for 24 years, has taken a position with Max Schling.

A meeting of the flower show committee was held in the Grand Central Palace, February 11.

A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., was a visitor to the wholesale district on January 9.

THE KING

The habit is similar to the popular Giant Branching, vigorous in growth, long, stiff stems. In form the flower is entirely distinct from any other variety; petals somewhat resemble the quilled varieties, but are much larger and broader, those in the center being curled and incurved, completely covering the crown. In shape and size the bloom is round, full and very large.

AMERICAN BEAUTY

2½ ft. Is similar in type of flower and growth to the well-known Late Branching Asters, but differs in that all the large blossoms are produced on much longer and heavier stems. It is the first of a new strain of late branching habit, and of robust growth. The flowers are fully double to the last and are a most lovely shade of bright carmine-rose. Almost identical with the World-famous American Beauty Rose. Each plant forms a perfect bush. $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 50c. .25 2.00

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-sixth annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 18-20, 1918.

ONION SETS are being shipped to the south by express.

PANSY seed (new crop) from Europe is showing very low germination.

A. T. FERRELL and family, of Saginaw, Mich., are expected at Belair, Ga.

VISITED CHICAGO: Francis C. Stokes, of Stokes Seed Farms Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

IT is reported that the ocean tariff from New York to London on bulbs is 55 shillings per ton.

CALIFORNIA seed growers report continuance of drought and that this with the labor situation renders conditions very serious.

J. C. VAUGHAN, Chicago, left February 9 to join Mrs. Vaughan and their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Dr. R. T. Vaughan, at Miami, Fla.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—James Vick's Sons report much difficulty in securing seeds for early spring orders, especially timothy and clover.

FREESIAs in California look well and orders already placed with growers are said to greatly exceed those of the same date last year.

THE name of Maurice Blot, son of F. Blot, director of seed cultures for Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co., Paris, is added to the long list of those who have died in the service of France.

GRASS SEEDS.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade February 13 were as follows: Timothy, $7.50 to $8.50 per 100 pounds; clover, at Toledo, $25.00 to $34.00 per 100 pounds.

NEW YORK.—Invoices are lacking for the cargo of the Nieuw Amsterdam and more trouble than with the last autumn Dutch importation is likely to be experienced because under present weather conditions all cases must be warehoused.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—A petition filed at the probate court January 23 names Mrs. May as executrix of the estate of the late L. L. May, valued at $15,000. The seed warehouse is now in the hands of a canning concern, but it is understood the seed and cut flower business will be continued at the store under the management of L. L. May the Second, also the greenhouses and nursery.

WHILE there are some 10,000 cases of bulbs, roots and plants aboard the Nieuw Amsterdam, mostly in the names of brokers, thus far nothing has been learned as to the condition of the stock. The manifests available to the close of February 11 show no seeds in the cargo. The firms listed as having stock on the ship include Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Storrs & Harrison Co., Vaughan's Seed Store, Bobbink & Atkins and F. R. Pierson Co.

LA PARK, PA.—The La Park Seed and Floral Co. has succeeded to the Geo. W. Park seed and plant business, Mr. Park retaining the magazine which bears his name. Mr. Park, in his seventieth year, is now at his winter home in Florida.

Tulip Bulb Duty.

The litigation involving the tariff classification of tulip bulbs is now ended after having been twice before the customs court. The final decision holds tulip bulbs to be dutiable at 50 cents per thousand instead of $1 per thousand as assessed. Refund will be made of the excess duties paid on shipments on which protest has been filed but on no other shipments. Shipments in the fall of 1918 can be entered for duty at 50 cents per thousand.

Strauss & Hodges represented the trade generally before the board of assessors in this case.

Seeds Exempted from Embargo.

A. H. Smith, regional director of eastern railroads, under date of January 30, 1918, issued a memorandum to presidents of railroads in official classification territory exempting certain important commodities from embargoes then in force. The list of the commodities exempted includes, among others, field and garden seeds, seed potatoes, nursery stock, insecticides and spraying materials, agricultural implements required for spring planting, fertilizers, and feed for animal or poultry consumption.—United States Seed Reporter.

National Cannery Association.

There was a large representative attendance at the annual convention of the National Cannery Association, held at the Copley-Plaza hotel, Boston, Mass., February 11-15. All seed stocks were in active demand, especially peas and sweet corn. Seedsmen represented included the following: W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; J. Bolgiano & Sons, Baltimore, Md.; E. B. Clark Seed Co., Milford, Conn.; Hogg & Lytle, Toronto, Ont.; N. B. Keeney & Sons, Leroy, N. Y.; D. Landreth Seed Co., Bristol, Pa.; S. F. Leonard Seed Co., Chicago; Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y.; Rogers Bros., Alpena, Mich.; Western Reserve Seed Co., Norwalk, O.; F. H. Woodruff & Sons, Dowagiac, Mich.; S. D. Woodruff & Sons, Orange, Conn.

Catalogues Received.

Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago and New York, seeds, plants and bulbs; Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., seeds, plants and bulbs; D. Hill Nursery Co., Dundee, Ill., evergreens; W. W. Wilmore, Denver, Colo., dahlias; Geo. S. Woodruff, Independence, Ia., gladioli; Giblin & Co., Utica, N. Y., greenhouse boilers.

New York Seed Trade.

There are consignments of bulbs and plants for all the leading seedsmen on the Holland-America liner Nieuw Amsterdam, which recently arrived at an American port, but on account of a most rigid inspection by United States government officials of both passengers and cargo, nothing can be stated at this writing relating to the condition of the cargo.

J. S. Wilson, who recently returned from a week's tour of the private estates, advises that he believes that if the war continues, most of the greenhouses on such places will be closed.

A. F. F.

Bulb Import Decisions.

In an opinion recently rendered by General Appraiser Waite, it was held that mother flowering gladiolus bulbs classified at 50 cents per 1,000 under paragraph 210, tariff act of 1913, were duty free under the same paragraph. On the authority of G. A. 8023 (T. D. 36998) grape hyacinth (muscaria) bulbs were held by the same appraiser to be dutiable at 50 cents per 1,000 under paragraph 210, as "all other bulbs."

Forage Plant Seed Imports.

The following table prepared in the seed laboratory of the bureau of plant industry, United States department of agriculture, shows the amount of the various kinds of forage plant seeds subject to the seed importation act permitted entry into the United States during the month of January, 1918, as compared with January, 1917:

Retail Prices on Vegetable Seeds.

The following table has been compiled from a large number of retail mail order catalogues, received from representative seedsmen, according to the United States Seed Reporter. The prices given after each crop represent retail prices of standard varieties for 1918, and for the same varieties in 1917. So-called novelties were not included because their prices would disturb normal comparisons. It will be seen that all prices in 1918 are higher than those in 1917. The increases range from about five per cent on celery up to 260 per cent on Swede turnip. The average increase in catalogue prices on all the vegetable crops listed as shown by this table is about 60 per cent.

A study of the catalogues shows that some seedsmen have endeavored to maintain prices on many items approximately the same as or but slightly above those of last year, while other seedsmen have raised their prices materially on practically all the items. Prices given are in cents:

Lettuce Under Glass at Boston.

Boston and vicinity is noted for large greenhouse establishments which are devoted to the raising of vegetables during the winter season. The Hittenger Fruit Company, at Belmont, one of the suburbs, a half hour's ride on the trolley from the center of the city, has a very compact and well arranged lot of houses, covering three acres of ground. The heating plant comprises three 175 horse-power return tubular steam boilers. The largest house is 40x630 feet, with several glass divisions in which different temperatures can be maintained, when necessary. Nine houses, 40x150 feet are built at right angles to the large house. There are also a number of smaller houses containing the seed and preparatory beds in which plants are brought to the age for final transplanting. This entire place is devoted during the fall and winter to the growing of lettuce. About 35,000 bushel boxes, 18 heads to a box, is marketed in four crops; prices of 75 cents to $1 per box is considered good, but this season has only averaged around 50 cents to 75 cents. All stock is sold on commission in the Boston market. Cucumbers are grown during the late spring and summer, the product ranging from 6,500 to 8,000 bushels or boxes, 96 fruit to a box.

Lettuce seed for the winter crop is first sown August 15-20. This comes up quickly, and in from a week to 10 days, is transplanted into beds three inches apart each way. When the plants meet, and the ground is covered, which takes about six weeks, they are replanted in the larger houses about 7½ inches apart each way where they make their final growth, being ready in about seven weeks for the market.

The essential features in the successful growing of lettuce are: First, that it must be kept on the go, a check in the growth being injurious. Then, Mr. Hittenger describes it as a temperance plant, not indulging in a drink of any kind, at least, during its last six weeks of growth.

The secret here is the preparation of the soil. This is well supplied with horse manure, dug in deeply. The soil is fine and very friable, as if having been put through a sieve. It is then given a good soaking of water and after this has been absorbed, the plants are set out and not another drop of water is given until they are rinsed in the tub and packed for market. To show how the soil still retained the moisture in a bed, from which the crop was being pulled, Mr. Hittenger dug down with his hand with ease a distance of a foot, bringing up soft moist soil filled with the white roots of the lettuce which had permeated that distance for food and moisture. The variety grown is May King which heads up well and is practically free from mildew.

Care must be taken that houses do not cool down too quickly. There must be good common sense used, together with practical knowledge gained by close observation and experience. Sowing of seed is timed so that a continuation of young plants are always ready to fill in spaces as fast as cut out.

The first cucumber seed is sown the last of January or early in February. The variety is White Spine. These follow the lettuce in all the houses as the late winter and spring crops run out. They are planted 12 inches apart in rows, with four feet of space between. They are trained to a jute string, fastened to overhead wires, much the same as tomatoes. All laterals are pinched back within an inch of the stem; on these spurs the fruit is borne, beginning almost at the ground. The vines soon reach the top, about six feet, and spread out over the wire supports, getting so thick as they near their full growth that many of the leaves have to be cut away to admit the sun.

Mr. Hittenger said there had been difficulty to get coal, but so far they had succeeded and had a little on hand. He believed the government control in arranging routes, so as to avoid long hauls by competing companies, would solve the coal problem and there would be no trouble next year.

The bureau of markets of the United States department of agriculture which publishes a daily report of receipts, maintaining an office in Boston, keeps in close touch with all branches of the

Ten truly marvelous acquisitions, introducing new tones of color and showing the highest development in form and habit.

Carmine Beauty. Deep bright carmine flowers, freely produced high above the heavy dark-green foliage which has a narrow red margin. The flowers, while not as large as those of Olympic, are of a much brighter and more pleasing tone. 4½ ft. 75 cts. each; $7.50 per doz.

Cheerfulness. No more appropriate name could be given to this brilliant novelty. Its beautiful bright fire-red or deep orange flowers appear early and continue without interruption until frost. Add to the prevailing color a golden border and center with each petal flaked carmine-crimson and you may form some conception of this fascinating variety with its erect stems always topped with clusters of cheerful color held high above the foliage. 3½ ft. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Cloth of Gold. A very attractive dwarf, compact, growing, free-flowering golden yellow. 3 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Dazzler. Time and again the past season the dark green foliage of this variety has been hidden beneath the mass of clusters of deep fire-red flowers. The intensity of coloring and freedom of blooming coupled with compact habit, make this variety the peer of the best for bedding purposes. 3½ ft. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Golden Eagle. A wonderfully intense golden-yellow. Very free upright grower. The large flowers are produced in great clusters well above the foliage. 4½ ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Harmony. Great clusters of good-sized, well-formed Geranium-red flowers are arranged on good stems in such a manner as to give the trusses an almost globular appearance. Altogether a dignified harmonious combination, 3½ ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Poppy. Intense poppy-red. Large perfect florets in good trusses over greenish-bronzy foliage. Rich and effective. 5 ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Salmon Queen. An entirely new color in Cannas. Rosy salmon-scarlet, blending to a rosy-carmine toward the center. The large substantial flowers are freely produced in great clusters high above heavy green foliage. Very effective in bedding. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Sensation. To get a sensational color-tone in a pink Canna is particularly noteworthy. Our first impulse was to call it "La France" because the color called to mind the La France Rose but the tone is even cleaner and purer; it being a lovely pale-rose. The foliage is a beautiful glaucous-green; the plant dwarf and compact. One of the most noteworthy additions to Cannas in recent years. 3 ft., 75 cts. each.

One each of the above Ten Novelties for $4.00.

New Cannas From Other Sources

We offer here eight new varieties, which after several years' trial have proven themselves worthy of our commendation.

Cleopatra. A striking beauty. Wonderful deep carmine-crimson flowers surmounting the dark glaucous-bronze foliage. This variety stands out strongly in effectiveness. 4 ft., 50 cts. each; $5 per doz.

Dragon. An incessant bloomer, continuing to produce new stalks of flowers until cut down by frost. Dark ox-blood red. 3 ft., 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Flag of Truce. A large flowered creamy-white with faint pink dots on each petal. The general effect is white. Not as white nor as tall as Eureka but quite distinct and valuable. 4 ft., 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Gaiety. Reddish-orange mottled with carmine and edged with yellow. The tongue is yellow and densely spotted with carmine. 4½ ft. 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Lafayette. In some respects resembles the variety "Meteor" but the flowers are not quite as dark, stand more erect and the plant grows taller. 5 ft. 30 cts. each; $3.00 per doz.

One each of the Eight Varieties for $2.00.

TYPE OF NEWER CANNAS.

Superb. This variety is unique in color and truly superb; having large, clean bright orange-scarlet blossoms of good substance, produced on strong stalks with glaucous-bronzy foliage giving a most pleasing effect. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Pocahontas. (Bronze-leaved Olympic.) Large oriental-red flowers borne on firm upright stems, just high enough above the foliage to show the entire head. The foliage is a dark bronze-green with emerald shadings; the ribs a darker bronze; one of the best recent introductions. 4 ft., 30 cts. each; $3 per doz.

San Diego. Chinese-orange or Persian-yellow. The crimped petals are remarkable for substance which enables them to withstand the hot summer sun without wilting. Another charm lies in the dark bronze color of the buds which harmonize with the rich bronze foliage. 4 ft., 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Varouna. We have tried this variety for several years and at all times the bright orange-scarlet flowers, combined with the good bronze foliage, has won our admiration. A free luxuriant grower, producing its flowers well above the plant. 4½ ft. 25 cts. each; $2.50 per doz.

business and sources of supply. The list shows total amounts of produce of all kinds received, and the wholesale prices that it brought. The retail prices at which the same stock sold over the counter in the stores is included. This is obtained by the Massachusetts board of food administration. This daily report is of the greatest benefit, showing what is doing in the market and whether it is advisable to ship at once or hold off for a day or two.

The business of the Hittenger Fruit Co., which has grown to such large proportions, was started 31 years ago with one large lean-to house, which is still in active service. The accompanying illustrations are of the seed beds, and a section showing first transplanting; a house, 40x600 feet, in which the plants are about half grown, and a house, 40x150 feet, of stock about ready for market.

Forty-third annual convention will be held at Chicago, June 26-28, 1918.

PEACH trees are in bloom at Macon, Ga. Ploughing is in full swing throughout the state. Business generally is good, with lumber and cotton well in front.

FRESNO, CALIF.—The home of George C. Roeding, president of the Fancher Creek Nurseries, Inc., was totally destroyed by fire recently, the loss including an extensive library and many art treasures.

HARRISBURG, PA.—At its annual meeting in this city, January 22, the Pennsylvania State Nurserymen's Association elected officers as follows: Adolph Mueller, Norristown, president; J. H. Humphreys, Chestnut Hill, vice-president; Henry T. Moore, Morrisville, secretary; Thomas Rakestraw, Kennett Square, treasurer.

Barberry Extermination Threatened.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—On motion of Representative Young of North Dakota, the house of representatives included in the agriculture bill an appropriation for eradication of the barberry bush, said to be the distributor of black rust, which in 1916 destroyed 180,000,000 bushels of wheat in the Dakotas and Minnesota. Nation-wide destruction of the barberry bush will be planned under the appropriation.

The Late John A. Shafer.

John A. Shafer, one of the founders of the Botanical Society of Western Pennsylvania, and who later became custodian of its herbarium, incorporating into its extensive collection specimens of his own from Pittsburgh, Moon township, Allegheny county, and other localities, died at the Sewickley Valley hospital, Pittsburgh, December 1, in his fifty-fifth year. The deceased was born in that city, and when a young man moved with his parents to a farm near Carnot, Allegheny county, Pa. He was a lover of plants, and in 1880 began an extensive collection of them while taking a course of pharmacy at the Western University of Pennsylvania.

When the Carnegie Museum was founded, the collection of the botanical society was turned over to it and Mr. Shafer was appointed custodian of the botanical section of the institution, which position he held until November, 1903. In that year, in company with Dr. N. S. Britton and wife, he made a trip to Cuba, collecting plants, and later that year was appointed custodian of a department in the New York botanical garden. Owing to his love of the open and his ability as a plant collector, he was commissioned each winter and spring to secure specimens for the garden. He spent several seasons in Cuba, one in Porto Rico, and in 1907 visited Montserrat. Upon taking up this line of work, he gave up his position of custodian and spent his summers on his farm near Carnot, where, with the aid of his sons, he built a range of houses and developed considerable trade in ornamentals and vegetable plants. During his many trips he collected and sent back to New York not only dried botanical specimens, but also hundreds of living plants and cuttings, perhaps more particularly cacti. During the spring of 1917, he botanized in Argentina, and while there contracted the disease which caused his death.

Mr. Shafer, having graduated as a pharmacist, was later given the degree of Doctor of Philosophy by the Western University of Pennsylvania. In 1901, he wrote a catalogue of the plants of Allegheny county, and later a number of short articles on the flora of the West Indies and was the joint author with Dr. N. S. Britton of the book "North American Trees," published in 1908.

He named one plant, Cassia Medsgeri Shafer, and a number of West Indian plants have been named in his honor by various botanists who have worked in his collections.

GENERAL CONDITIONS AGAINST BUSINESS.

The weather has been most unfavorable, and aside from local stock, the supply of cut flowers has been very irregular. Train schedules are as bad as the weather. Bulbous stock in the nearby establishments helps out. Trade in general is only fair. There are few weddings, but the call for funeral work has used up quite a quantity of stock. The "heatless Monday" has also put a damper on business but like true Americans, the florists are willing to do "their bit" and help in every way possible.

NOTES.

The election of officers and banquet of the retail florists' association was a most delightful affair. The changing of the officials each year seems to be a good idea. Those chosen for the ensuing year were as follows: Chas. Schoenhut, president and Robert Scott, secretary-treasurer, who with W. J. Palmer, S. A. Anderson and Theo. Frank, will comprise the board of directors.

The decision of the interstate commerce commission on express companies liability reported on page 106 of THE AMERICAN FLORIST of February 2, is gratifying, especially to the trade in this vicinity, where shipments arrive from two to 10 ten days late and frozen beyond any chance of salvage.

About 20 of the local florists expect to attend the winter meeting of the New York State Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs at Ithaca.

The election of officers of the florists' club will be held at the first meeting in March. The florist section in the "Smileage book" campaign for the oldiers. His report is very gratifying.

LAGER & HURRELL, Summit N. J.

Louisville, Ky.

At the February meeting of the Kentucky Society of Florists, the matter of Monday closing was taken up. Some members expressed the opinion that it was a patriotic duty, and that even future orders should not be taken on that day. As the stores had to be kept warm on that day, to save the stock, many others could not see where the patriotism came in, as no coal was saved. The following points in favor of the stores being allowed to open were advanced: Flowers being perishable, a great loss is entailed by the florists. Monday closing injures the business for two days in filling orders for early trains and funerals. Flowers for special occasions, funerals, etc., could not be supplied and that business was lost forever.

Nearly all growers who laid in their fuel supply during the past summer and fall, have run short and are experiencing trouble in getting further supplies, as dealers will make no deliveries.

The garage and conservatory at the rear of the store of the C. B. Thompson Co. was partially destroyed by fire last week. The delivery truck and other property were totally consumed.

It is reported that the coal bill of Anders Rasmussen, New Albany, Ind., will be $14,000 more than last year.

Solanum Cleveland

— AND —

ORANGE QUEEN

A Plant you cannot afford to be without from Thanksgiving till Xmas.

From The American Florist, Feb. 9, 1918—

"Carl Hagenburger's exhibit of dwarf solanum, Cleveland, and his new one with orange colored berries, was so popular with the visitors that he had finally to enclose the plants in a glass case to save the berries. Just to think, that this happened in Boston. A certificate of merit for Cleveland and a silver medal for the orange variety from the Massachusetts Horticultural Society were his reward."

Providence, R. I.

Trade during the past week has been good, with stock of good quality and plentiful, except in the case of roses, which are limited in supply and bring high prices. Violets are having a good call with the supply equal to all requirements, but from the present outlook there will not be very many for St. Valentine's day. The extreme cold weather has caused a number of freeze-ups and the coal situation is still acute. Even wood is scarce.

ST. LOUIS CONVENTION POSTPONED

To August 20-22, 1918.

Change Meets With General Approval.

In response to a very general desire expressed by members of the Society of American Florists, that, in view of the indefinite postponement of the national flower show, the 1918 convention of the society be held in St. Louis during the month of August, by order of the executive board, the dates fixed for the convention in conjunction with the national flower show are hereby cancelled, and the regular dates provided for in Section I of Article V of the by-laws, which are the third Tuesday in August and the two following days (August 20-22), are adopted as the convention dates for 1918.

This change has met with the approval of the St. Louis interests, and Vice-President Bourdet has obtained the consent of the authorities of Moolah Temple, where the convention and trade exhibition is to be held, to the postponement now ordered.

CHAS. H. TOTTY, Pres.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Chicago and Philadelphia Move.

When it was announced last month that the executive committee in session at St. Louis, Mo., had postponed the Fifth National Flower Show, some members of the Chicago trade were hurriedly consulted and it was the general opinion that under existing conditions and the show deferred, the convention should be held at the regular time in August. Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., then on the road in the interest of his house, likewise favored this view and said he believed the supply houses generally and many in the trade of his city would welcome such a change in the convention date. The following exhibition was then dispatched:

Chicago, Jan. 23, 1918.

John Young, Secretary,
Society of American Florists,
Planters Hotel, St. Louis, Mo.

Postponement of flower show has warmest approval here and in Philadelphia. As the National Show is postponed removing main cause of change in convention date we believe best interests of trade will be served by holding convention as usual in August.
Many new problems confronting florists, nurserymen and seedsmen will need strictly undivided attention at home this spring.

J. C. VAUGHAN.

AUG. F. POEHLMANN.

C. L. WASHBURN,

W. N. RUDD,

MICHAEL BARKER.

The telegram reached Secretary Young too late for consideration at the executive committee meeting, but was taken up later with the above result.

Executive Committee Meeting.

The executive board of the Society of American Florists held a meeting at the Jefferson hotel, St. Louis, Mo., January 21, 1918. This took the place of the regular mid-Lent meeting, the change of time being necessitated through the change of convention dates. Those in attendance included President Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N.
J.; Secretary John Young, New York;
Treasurer J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.;
Ex-President R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; Washington Representative Wm.
F. Gude; Frank X. Stuppy, St. Joseph,
Mo.; Joseph A. Manda, West Orange,
N. J.; Chas. E. Critchell, Cincinnati, O.; Charles Schenck, president of New York Florists' Club; Fred Lautensch-lager, president of the Chicago Florists' Club; Benjamin Hammond, president American Rose Society.
There were also present, Henry Penn,
Boston, chairman publicity committee;
George Asmus, Chicago, chairman national flower show committee and publicity finance committee; Herman P. Knoble, Cleveland, O., and J. J. Bencke, St. Louis.

President Totty, upon assuming the chair, called for formal presentation of credentials, which were found duly in order. Secretary Young read communications from A. Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa., E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., and Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich., giving reasons for their non-attendance. In opening the meeting, President Totty pointed out that the deliberations of the board would, in view of general conditions, be more momentous than had ever been the case before. Reports from standing and special committees, he said, could hardly be expected at that time, the appointments having been so recently made.

In behalf of the emergency committee appointed to act for the society in the matter of the coal question, Wm. F. Gude made a long verbal report, dealing with the hearing given in Washington to 22 members of the committee, an account of which was published in the trade papers. Mr. Gude made it plain that the government expected the florists to conserve coal to the extent of at least one-third of their regular consumption, and the fuel commission wanted some assurance from the society, as a representative body, that the florist trade was willing to make the curtailment required of it. Several letters and telegrams from florists were read by the secretary, all expressing a willingness to meet requirements. The discussion of the question was long and earnest, and resulted in the appointment of Messrs. Gude, Young and Schenck as a committee to report a resolution for transmission to the coal commission at Washington by wire. The committee later brought in a proposed telegram and resolution, both of which met the unanimous approval of the board:

THE TELEGRAM.

"To the Honorable H. A. Garfield,
Washington, D. C.

The executive board of the Society of American Florists in session at St. Louis, Mo., unanimously vote to co-operate in the coal conservation by reducing the consumption one-third pursuant to your recommendation.

CHAS. H. TOTTY, President,

JOHN YOUNG, Secretary.

WM. F. GUDE, Washington Rep."

THE RESOLUTION:

"Resolved, that the president and secretary of the S. A. F. are hereby authorized to sign and execute any papers or telegrams that may be required by the national fuel administrator in complying with the fuel conservation by our members and the allied organizations."

Secretary Young read a letter from Prof. F. L. Mulford, of the bureau of plant industry, United States department of agriculture, requesting the co-operation of the board in an appeal for rose varieties for planting in the national rose test garden, and, on motion of Mr. Gude, the board voted to co-operate with the committee in charge of the garden in every possible way.

The secretary brought up the matter of the need of some rules and regulations governing the registration of new plants and flowers, so that those registered should at least have sufficient importance to make recognition desirable. On motion of Treasurer Hess, the chair appointed the following as a committee to draft a set of rules and present them later: Joseph A. Manda, C. E. Critchell and Benjamin Hammond. Mr. Manda later presented the report of the committee, which, as it entailed an amendment to the by-laws, was, on motion, referred to the 1918 convention.

Henry Penn, as chairman of the publicity committee, read a report showing the progress of the campaign for publicity for flowers since the joint meeting of the publicity and publicity finance committees in Cleveland last December, at which meeting $20,000 was appropriated for immediate needs, and instructions given to the O'Keefe Advertising Agency, Boston, Mass., to place the advertising contracts. Mr. Penn exhibited proofs of the advertisements prepared up to date, and other matter which was to be provided for florists in order that they might, through local newspaper advertising, tie up with the campaign, their own advertising having especial reference to the advertisements in the magazines, as in the case of some electrotypes exhibited, which featured the St. Valentine's day page in the Saturday Evening Post. The report also attached importance to the offer to send out booklets, mentioned in the advertisements. Space was so expensive that a complete story could only be told through the use of an auxiliary such as a booklet. It had, therefore, been arranged that a supply of 50,000 booklets be available for mailing in response to application for them, and for issue to retail florists who might care to purchase a quantity. It was more economical to print a stock of such booklets at once rather than to make several printings. Transfer and glass signs had been arranged for, which members of the society could purchase at prices near to the cost mark. A "broadside," or collection of printed matter, would shortly be mailed to members and others, which would not only explain the publicity feature, but would serve as a plea for contributions to the fund, and the bringing home to florists the idea of the necessity for joining the society. All supplies and publicity media were distributed through the society's promotion bureau, at its executive offices in New York (now 1170 Broadway), and only members of the society would be furnished with them. The report scheduled for the advertising programme arranged for the magazines being the following: Saturday Evening Post, Metropolitan, Literary Digest, Good Housekeeping, Woman's Home Companion, Delineator, Garden Magazine, House & Garden, and the trade papers, all of which entailed a total expenditure within the appropriation; the cost of the stock of supplies, which was to yield a small profit, and the bureau expenses were additional. After reading his report, Mr. Penn explained the use and scope of the transfers, signs, and other material. The report was very favorably received, and a long discussion followed, mainly as to the course which the committee was following, and suggestions concerning action which had been received.

Chairman George Asmus of the publicity finance committee reported at some length as to the finances of the publicity campaign and working plans as regards the obtaining of subscriptions. Finally, on motion, the board endorsed the work of the publicity committee, and its plans for future action; and a further motion accepted the reports presented and directed that they be made part of the records of the meeting.

Secretary Young presented his financial report for the year ending December 31, 1917, and the report of the auditors confirming the correctness of same. The secretary's report included a financial statement of the condition of the publicity campaign fund. Treasurer Hess presented his financial report, and the same was referred to an audit committee, to report at a later session.

Wm. F. Gude, for the committee on tariff and legislation, reported that, on January 7, a bill had been presented in Congress prohibiting the importation of seeds, plants and other commodities, but there was every reason to hope that it would be killed in committee.

From the report of Theodore Wirth, chairman of the convention garden committee, the prospects for a successful garden at the Detroit convention in 1919 were exceedingly bright. Buildings and grounds had been offered free of charge, and conditions seemed to be ideal. On motion, the report was received and filed.

Benjamin Hammond made a very enthusiastic report for the committee on school gardens. School garden work, he stated, had increased with almost the suddenness of an earthquake. After an interesting discussion, President Totty, on motion of Wm. F. Gude, appointed Frank X. Stuppy, Fred Lautenschlager and Benjamin Hammond a committee to draw up resolutions in regard to encouraging children everywhere to plant vegetable gardens.

The matter of the relations of the society with Miss Anna Jarvis, originator of Mothers' day, was brought up by the chair and discussed. It was, on motion, referred to the St. Louis convention for action.

The committee on credits and collections bureau, through R. C. Kerr, reported progress.

The board here adjourned for lunch.

At the afternoon session the special committee on resolutions regarding school garden work presented resolutions which, by unanimous vote, were adopted. The resolutions were as follows:

"Whereas, recent developments during the present great world conflict have emphasized the value of the movement that was started some years ago by the Society of American Florists for the establishment of school and home gardens as a stimulus to our children to care for and protect all plant life; to help themselves by serving others; to beautify home surroundings and thereby strengthen their love of home and country; and,

"Whereas, This movement has been greatly advanced by the far-seeing efforts of our government's food conservation, through whose recommendations its possibilities have been marvelously increased; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That this organization tenders its heartfelt thanks to the board of food conservation and the national council of defense; and we pledge our co-operation and acquiescence in their statesmanlike recommendations in this direction; and be it further

"Resolved, That we acknowledge our great debt to the various women's organizations that have done so much to further this movement for home and school gardens; also to all local and national horticultural organizations, local improvement associations, and national and civic authorities who have supported this movement. Further, be it

"Resolved, That we commend local exhibitions of products raised in such gardens, the offering of suitable prizes, such as medals and certificates, to contestants, and all other means of awakening the pride of our children and their enjoyment in this work, which means so much for their health and happiness and home life; to this end we ask every florist to personally assist in acquainting the public with the benefits to be derived through the encouraging of home and school gardens."

The audit committee on the report of the treasurer reported that it was unable to complete its audit, owing to the non-arrival of the report of the accounting auditors; but the committee recommended that all revenue derived from interest be diverted to the general fund, as suggested by the treasurer. The report was, by motion, accepted and the recommendation ordered carried out.

The remainder of the session was devoted to a discussion of matters in general not requiring action.

On Tuesday morning, January 22, the board met pursuant to adjournment. After disposing of some routine business, Chairman George Asmus of the national flower show committee reported for his committee, which was in session during the evening previous. Mr. Asmus presented a resolution that was passed at this meeting, under which the recommendation was made that the national flower show, which the society was to hold in St. Louis in conjunction with the convention, be postponed indefinitely, owing to the general conditions prevailing. The board, on motion, accepted the recommendation of the committee, and a further motion was carried expressing the wish of the board that the next national flower show be held in St. Louis, and that this motion be submitted for the consideration of the national flower show committee at its next meeting. In order, however, that there might be no misunderstanding as to the dates for holding the convention, the board, by motion, re-affirmed the holding dates as April 9-11, 1918. J. J. Hess, Wm. F. Gude and George Asmus were appointed a committee to visit the recorder of Moolah Temple and make such arrangement as they might find possible in regard to the balance of the lease entered into by the society.

The preparation of the programme for the convention was, by motion, placed in the hands of the president, secretary and vice-president.

The usual appropriations were made to the offices of the entomologist, pathologist, botanist, school garden committee, committee on tariff and legislation, the sergeant-at-arms at the convention, for clerical assistance to secretary at the convention, and the allowances to the secretary for superintendence of the trade exhibition and sojourn in St. Louis. The board, realizing that the work of the secretary's office would thenceforth be very great and necessitate the whole time of the secretary, the situation was fully discussed, and Mr. Young was consulted. Finally, the secretary was offered a salary of $3,600 per annum, the same to be irrespective of his income from flower show management and other official appointments.

This Mr. Young accepted. Henry Penn and George Asmus, chairmen of the two publicity committees, in expressing satisfaction with this arrangement intimated that the publicity promotion bureau should bear its share of the salary paid the secretary. Mr. Penn therefore moved, and the motion was carried, that a committee be appointed to make proper apportionment to each account. President Totty appointed R. C. Kerr, Henry Penn and H. P. Knoble as this committee. This committee later reported recommending an equitable apportionment, which proved satisfactory to the board. The question of obtaining suitable offices in New York was left to the president and secretary.

At this point the board took a recess to visit Moolah Temple, first accepting an invitation from the St. Louis Florists' Club to attend a dinner at the American Annex restaurant that evening. Moolah Temple was duly visited, and the members of the board were greatly impressed with the facilities it afforded for purposes of the convention.

Later in the afternoon the board again met. The committee on programme reported progress, and many details suggested were discussed, but action was deferred. It was decided that cards of identification would be issued to members, instead of the customary official button.

It appeared to the board that some change was necessary in regard to the distribution of the volumes of annual proceedings, and that, in view of the largely increased postal rates on such material, they should only be sent to those who actually required them. After considerable discussion, it was arranged that the edition of the 1917 proceedings already in press be minimized, and copies sent only to members who made application for them.

The special committee on the lease of convention quarters, through J. J. Hess, chairman, reported that they had been able to obtain a release from the general terms of the lease, and the rental would only be expected for the period of the convention.

A vote of thanks was passed to the national flower show committee for its work in promoting the show, which was postponed through no fault of the committee, and absolving it from the slightest blame in incurring expenses absolutely necessary in the initiatory work. Another vote of thanks was tendered to Wm. F. Gude for his admirable work accomplished in Washington. A third resolution was passed that all liabilities in connection with the show be shouldered by the society, and that the American Rose Society and the American Carnation Society be released from their shares of indebtedness, provided the profits of the forthcoming convention be sufficient to discharge them, any undischarged balance being carried against the next show and pro-rated according to the profits. A poll vote was taken on this resolution, the vote being unanimous.

It was decided, by motion, to recommend to the convention that the clause in the by-laws making the president of an affiliated society a member of the board be altered to allow of a vice-president taking the office in the event of a president being unable to serve. It was also decided to recommend that the chairmen of the national flower show committee, the publicity committee, and the finance publicity committee be added to the board.

After a resolution pledging the support of the members of the society to the government in the sale of Thrift Stamps, the board adjourned sine die.

At the dinner in the evening, tendered by the St. Louis Florists' Club, the following final resolutions were passed:

"Whereas, The board of directors of the Society of American Florists, and the members of the national flower show committee have closed a very busy session held during the past two days at the Jefferson hotel, St. Louis, at which matters of great import to the entire florist trade were considered and acted upon, it is the sense of these bodies that a suitable expression of their appreciation for courtesies tendered them while here be now made; therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the board of directors of the S. A. F. and its national flower show committee tender their thanks by unanimous vote to the following: to the St. Louis Florists' Club and to the local florists individually; to the Jefferson hotel management; to the local press and to the trade papers; to the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Company and all others who have aided us in our deliberations here and shown us appreciated courtesies. Further, be it

A WELL-FLOWERED HYDRANGEA.

"Resolved, That we desire to tender a special vote of thanks to the president of the St. Louis Florists' Club and the various committees appointed by him to prepare for the contemplated national flower show, which events have compelled the postponement of to their and our mutual regret. We also owe them our thanks for the efficient work they are now doing in preparing for the annual convention to be held in St. Louis, on April 9-11, 1918, at which a large attendance of our members and florists generally the country over, is confidently expected to consider coal conservation, co-operation of all florists, and publicity."

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Hydrangeas for Easter.

The best hydrangeas seen in the Philadelphia cut flower shops last Easter were raised at the Floracraft Gardens, Moorestown, N. J. This popular Easter plant has long been a specialty here. The old Otaksa was the variety until the newer French sorts were introduced, since which time they have been grown exclusively. Edward M. Ross, the foreman and grower, came up from the ranks here and has become a skilled gardener and plantsman.

The way in which the young hydrangeas are raised will give an idea of his thoroughness. Strong young plants are potted into four-inch pots and grown on during the summer, plunged in a frame outside. They are pinched once. When winter sets in the sash is placed on these as they stand, which is the only protection. They are moved into the house in February and allowed to come along slowly, making a very sturdy growth. Top cuttings are taken from these plants, and later the best of the lower breaks. They average about six cuttings to a plant. These stock plants, when set outside early in May, are planted three together. They make a good growth during the summer, and when lifted, are potted into 11-inch cedar tubs, for his specimens or largest sized stock.

The young stock is planted singly in rows and the tops are pinched out August 1. All are watered by the Skinner system of overhead pipes. They do not make much growth during hot weather, but in late August and September are very vigorous. These are all lifted about the middle of October, potted, and set in cold frames. Every particle of soil is shaken from the roots, which are a mat of fibrous material. For potting, fresh soil is used, sometimes having to be hauled quite a distance. Mr. Ross believes it pays to get this, which before using, is mixed with cow manure. The stock is brought from the frames just as soon as the Christmas specialties are out of the houses; this season it was December 23. The plants are very short and stocky; even the large ones are not over a foot in height. He is careful to strip all old leaves off, in late fall, to have the branches clean before plants are brought into the house. This season the early frosts did this for him, saving several men a couple of days' work.

BASKET OF HYDRANGEAS BY J. J. HABERMEHL'S SONS, PHILADELPHIA.

As soon as they come into the house they are syringed daily and sometimes twice, with a force of water to keep off all insects. The starting temperature is 45°. From January 5 on it is 60° at night. After they are well started they are given a lot of water with plenty about the walks and under tables. The walls of the house and eaves are kept hosed down to wash out all crevices that might harbor insects.

The plants are never forced with any undue heat. Mr. Ross believes this a great mistake that many growers make, as their growth is retarded and not advanced by too much warmth. They should have, and do best, in an even temperature. The various sizes are grown in 6, 7, 8 and 9-inch pots and the specimens in 11-inch tubs.

The little frost they get outside while in the frames is beneficial, thoroughly ripens the wood and this gives color to the flower. None of this stock is ever staked. They are given plenty of room, which allows every shoot to set its bud properly. When finished, each plant is well covered with bloom, the heads holding up and making a symmetrical plant.

National Publicity for Flowers.

Several new subscriptions to the publicity fund are recorded this week, as noted below, but the leaders in the campaign think the impetus should be much greater. It was pleasing to have a personal subscription from Fred Burki, the well known grower of Pittsburgh, who, from his winter home in Los Angeles, writes, "Though my company has subscribed to the S. A. F. publicity fund, I think so much of it that I make a personal subscription of $25 a year for four years, and enclose my cheque for the first payment herewith."

The trade will have noticed the opening shot in the campaign—the page advertisement in The Saturday Evening Post of February 9. It is, of course, too early yet to get reports of results, but judging from the heap of applications for the booklet mentioned in the advertisement, the page was very generally read.

The secretary has now a supply of the electrotypes for newspaper use covering "Easter," "Mothers' day," "Beautifying the Home," "On Her Birthday," "The Wedding," and the slogan "Say It with Flowers," and any or all of them can be forwarded at once. Anyone not having received a copy of the "broadside," describing these electros should send for a copy. It should be pointed out that these advertising electros are as far as possible identical with the national advertising, and are designed to draw to the florists using them direct benefit accruing from the national publicity. It is expected that the orders received for the transfer signs will be filled next week, and for the glass signs about one week later.

Chairman George Asmus of the publicity finance committee reports the following additional subscriptions, annually for four years, except as noted:

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

J. A. Young, Aurora, Ill.

Temporary Chairman Illinois Nurserymen's Ass'n.

Illinois Nurserymen's Association.

The Illinois Nurserymen's Association met at the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, February 14-15, when the officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: Guy A. Bryant, Princeton, president; Alvin Nelson, Chicago, vice-president; Clyde Leesley, Chicago, treasurer, and A. M. Augustine, Normal, secretary. A. H. Hill, of Dundee, was elected a member of the executive committee to serve for three years; Wm. Saddler, Bloomington, two years, and F. W. Von Oven, Naperville, one year. J. A. Young, Aurora, chairman; A. M. Augustine, Normal, vice-president, and Guy A. Bryant, Princeton, elected at the preliminary meeting at Champaign, December 19, 1917, when the association was organized, were given a vote of thanks for the splendid services rendered, and which was responsible for the large attendance.

The programme was very interesting and the first day was devoted to the appointment of committees on constitution and by-laws, membership and resolutions. "The Propagation of Ornamental Shrubs and the Varieties Which Should be Grown for Use in Illinois," was discussed and handled in a masterly manner by George Klehm, of Arlington Heights, who chose this topic to open the meeting. C. A. Brill, Kalamazoo, Mich., opened the discussion of "How to Build a Storage House, and the Proper Methods of Handling Nursery Stock in Storage." The subject of "The Correlation Which Should Exist Between Prices and the Cost of Producing, Selling, and Distributing Nursery Products," by Alvin Nelson, Chicago, was thoroughly discussed by practically all the members present, and was one of the most interesting topics of the meeting. A. H. Cultra, Onarga, gave some interesting points on "How to Properly Pack Nursery Stock." John M. Wise, Freeport, opened the round table discussion, choosing the topic, "Shall the Importation of Nursery Stock be Prohibited."

On Friday, the morning session was devoted to "The Inspection of Nurseries, Home Grounds, City Trees, Parks, etc.," by P. A. Glenn, Urbana, state inspector; "Some Varieties of Fruits that Should be of Interest to Nurserymen," by A. M. Augustine, Normal, and "The Propagation of Conifers," by Thomas A. McBeth, Springfield, O.

The meeting was a great success and thirty-five firms were represented in the paid membership, which it is expected will double in a short time, now that the association is fully organized. All those present decided that February is the best month in which to hold the annual meeting and the executive board will select the city. A. M. Augustine invited the association to hold the 1919 meeting at Bloomington, and A. H. Hill suggested that it be held in Chicago. The national publicity campaign of the American Association of Nurserymen was indorsed and all the members were urged to contribute. To start the movement several members contributed about $500 a year for three years, and others signified their intention of doing their share in the near future.

Guy A. Bryant, Princeton, Ill.

President Illinois Nurserymen's Ass'n.

P. A. Glenn and Thomas A. McBeth were elected honorary members.

The following are included in the membership of the association: Augustine & Co., Normal; Aurora Nursery Co., Aurora; W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; Beaudry's Nursery Co., Chicago; Arthur Bryant & Son, Princeton; Custer Bros., Normal; Corn Belt Nursery & Forestry Association, Bloomington; L. F. THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Phila., Pa.

Be sure that the mossed design is quite wet before filling; just a sprinkle over very dry moss is not sufficient; the water runs off without being absorbed. An immersion, and a half hour to drain, assures of perfect saturation.

St. Valentine's Day in New York.

Considering the general condition of the florist business, and the fact that we have been passing through an exceptionally hard winter, the demand for St. Valentine's day was fair. At some stores, and they were the stores where preparations had been made, it was stated that the business was as good as in former years. By preparations, we mean specially attractive features appropriate for the day. The regulation red and heart shaped boxes, filled with cut flowers, were popular. Pink and yellow roses, carnations, sweet peas, pansies and other spring flowers were extensively used. Sprays of heather were also popular. Small bouquets in the old fashioned style, were favorites. Many fancy baskets of various cut flowers, as well as plants, were sold.

At the store of Malandre Brothers, Broadway and 72nd street. It was stated that they had sold over 100 of the heart shaped boxes of flowers and many baskets of plants.

P. F. McKenney, Fifth avenue and 42d street, had good business in small old fashioned bouquets, a rose in the center, the filling being of Benora carnations, sprays of heather and other small flowers. The bouquet was on a red heart shaped border, adorned by a fancy collarette.

David Clarke's Sons, Broadway and 75th street, had many fine features in fancy boxes and baskets. Another fine feature was their elaborate window decorations of large acacias, heather and spring flowers. At this store it was said that business was as good as in former years.

Herman Warendorff's store in the Ansonia hotel had an attractive window decoration, designed especially for the day, a large heart of roses and lily of the valley. Old fashioned bouquets were also noteworthy. In addition he had dinner decorations, and said it was a good day's business.

Drakos & Co., opposite Columbia University, had a fine collection of plants and cut flowers, well arranged, and reported good business.

At the C. A. Dards store, Madison avenue and 44th street, a splendid collection of all features suitable for the day was noticed. Manager Perry stated that business was good.

Alfred Kottmiller, Madison avenue and 49th street, had, as usual, many good features and good business.

At the store of Alexander McConnell, Fifth avenue and 49th street, it was stated that their business had been better than St. Valentine's day, 1917.

The Van Praag Floral Co., 4 West 40th street, stated that their business was as good, if not better than last year.

In considering St. Valentine's day business, it must be reckoned that thousands of young men to whom the tender sentiment appeals, are now in the army and beyond the zone of the florists. Taking this into consideration, the business was, we believe, as good as last year. A. F. F.

St. Valentine's Day in Philadelphia.

There was a fairly good day's business in most of the stores, February 14. Spring flowers were featured, as were pot plants. Roses were scarce; all the miniatures were in demand, there not being near enough to go around. The popular arrangement was the corsage, mostly delivered in heart-shaped boxes. Many of the novelties of the supply houses, kiddies representing Cupids, soldier boys and Red Cross nurses, with receptacles for flowers, were offered in most of the stores. Hamper heart-shaped baskets, filled with flowers and plants, were popular. Heart-shaped boxes, hand painted, with zinc linings, were filled with plants and some with cut flowers. There were many small plant baskets, which were gay, as were nearly all the novelties, with ribbon bows.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons' large Walnut street window, with its grotto-like effect, contained a fine lot of baskets in various sizes. The ground work consisted of plants of Primula malacoides with spring cutflowers in combination. One of malcoides and calendulas was striking. Cattleys, mignonette and tulips were used in other very pretty combinations. Gloriosa ferns, vases of choice pussy willow, Acacia pubescens and string smilax gave this window an artistic decorative effect. Their Ritz-Carlton store had a forsythia window, a large cork bark stump being filled with choice sprays. Pussy willows and spring flowers in vases were a feature.

The Sign of the Rose displayed corsages of various kinds in heart-shaped boxes, which were very attractive. The window, with its tastily arranged stock, was very showy.

Battle's Century Flower Shop was a dream. There were literally hundreds of salable articles tastily filled—medium-sized baskets, some all of plants, others flowers, with quite a few in combinations of both. Quantities of flowering plants, cyclamens, primulas, freesias, chorisemas, azaleas and many others, were seen on every hand. The pots of these were all decorated with white paper. An inner lining of another color, to match the flowers, had a very decorative effect. This decorating is done as follows: The pot, on earthen saucer, is placed in the center of a square of white paper. This, with a band of paper the color of the flower, is drawn up around the pot with the edges projecting irregularly about six inches out and above the rim. It is bound to the pot with a colored cord or narrow ribbon. This is not as lasting as the crepe paper, but much more showy.

Pennock Brothers had their usual fine show of heart-shaped boxes and hampers, many of them hand-painted. Their window was very tastily decorated with these special creations, all filled in the latest color combinations.

The London Flower Shop had a fine display of novelties, many of them nicely filled. A good business was reported here.

Charles Grakelow's uptown store was well stocked with the latest novelties, many of them tastfully filled. A much better business than last year was reported. Many F. T. D. orders from outside sources were received.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

In a very short time the show window awnings will have to go into service at the stores on the north side of the street. These sun shields are a great handicap to efficient displays, as when down they intensify the shadows, and the glass then reflects all objects immediately in front of buildings or on the opposite side of the street. Many attempts have been made to overcome these reflections, but so far with but little success. The latest device is a curved pane, which takes the place of the usual straight plate glass. When this is correctly in place and kept clean, strange as it may seem, there appears to be no glass, the effect being as if the entire pane had been removed. This requires about eighteen inches in depth of the front edge floor space of the window. It is rather expensive to install, but the goods are then seen with wonderful clearness and advantage. The only other remedy is to move to the south side, which situation is certainly a great advantage during the spring and summer months.

Now that there is a variety of flowering stock and bulbous plants in blossom, they should be kept to the front and offered as most suitable for the window sills, giving a warmth of color to the room and a bit of spring cheer to the passersby. Each pot or pan should be decorated by being wrapped or placed in a cover. The most showy arrangement is to place the pot in a clay saucer in the center of a square of white paper. Tie a paper band about the rim of the pot so that six inches of it projects above. This inside sheet is to be of the color of the flower. Then draw the white paper up close all around and tie just below the rim with a cord or narrow ribbon. The edges of the papers are then pulled out irregularly. It takes but a minute to do this, the cost is trifling, but the effect adds from 10 to 25 per cent to the selling value of the plant. It is much more inviting in appearance than the plain earthen pot.

Do not let the stock of table ferns run down. So frequently the order comes over the phone at the last minute to get the fernery, refill and return at once. With a variety to select from, this can be done in a few minutes. An indifferent or carelessly filled dish will, however, often lose a customer, as its next visit is to a competitor, who, if he makes good, gets the future business.

St. Patrick's day is not far off. Look up the last season's leftovers in accessories of the day. A few pots of shamrocks, with a miniature flag in each, should have a place in the window and on one of the display tables.

Have you sent in a subscription to the S. A. F. publicity fund? This is distinctly for your benefit. Pittsburgh.GRATIFYING ST. VALENTINE'S BUSINESS.

The St. Valentine's day trade was very satisfactory; in fact, about 25 per cent better than in 1917. The usual amount of corsage work was not in evidence, however, as parties and dances are few and far between. Most of the demand was for dainty baskets and boxes of spring flowers. Stock was plentiful, except in sweet peas, for which the call was brisk, and they were about the only flowers that held up in price. There was so much stock on the market, that prices were reduced to move it off. Daffodils and Paper Whites were a drug and only a limited amount were sold. Violets did not enjoy the popularity of former years and only the best were disposed of. Some shipments received Thursday afternoon were sold to the street men. This flower is certainly losing in favor and growers will surely soon come to realize that too many are produced and they cannot be sold at a good profit. Carnations are now being received in large numbers and prices have suffered. There was little demand for them last week and they were sacrificed in large quantities to move them. Roses still hold firm and the supply increases daily. American Beauties are in short supply, but the demand is weak. Lilies hold up well with small daily shipments. Orchids, Romans, lily of the valley, calendulas, myosotis, pussy willows and primroses are included in the list of good sellers. Plants for St. Valentine's day sold well. While it was not expected that business for the day would equal that of a year ago, the results are most satisfactory.

M.

San Francisco.GOOD BUSINESS CONTINUES.

Trade has been very brisk during the week just past. There has been practically no letup since the holidays. Stock still continues to be hard to get, and prices are firm all along the line. Roses are limited in quantity. This applies to all varieties. Long-stemmed Russells are in short supply. Ophelia is also hard to get. Very few American Beauties are coming in. The red roses, such as Hadley, Richmond and Red Radiance, seem to be more plentiful than the lighter colors. However, they sell readily at fine prices. Very few Cecile Brunners are seen, and the same is true of Fire Flame. Killarney is only rarely met with nowadays. Carnations are a trifle more plentiful this week and are not held at such high prices. Enchantress Supreme, Matchless and White Enchantress meet with the most favor. Prices average about $3 per 100. Violets are of very poor quality, owing to lack of rain. The stems are short, and many are off color. However, a large supply is available. Shipping trade in this flower is unusually heavy and helps to keep the market cleaned up daily. Cattleyas have seldom been more plentiful. Phalenopsis are also to be seen everywhere. Prices on the poorer grades have dropped somewhat, but first-class stock holds firm. Bulbous stock is arriving very freely. Narcissi are in heavy supply and prices have dropped accordingly. Tulips and Dutch hyacinths are in large supply and are selling well as pot plants. Lily of the valley is a little more plentiful this week, but not nearly enough to supply the call. Gardenias are in ample supply, but they are in steady demand at good prices. Acacias, in variety, are coming in freely, and flowering fruit, particularly Cydonia japonica. Cut branches of the different ericas are largely used in fancy basket work.

Ferns are none too plentiful. There seems to be enough asparagus and greens to supply the demand at all times. There is a large supply of pot plants to select from, with well flowered azaleas the favorite. Bulbous stock in pots and pans, arranged with ribbon, are also good sellers. Shipping trade is very brisk among the wholesalers, the difficulty being to secure enough stock to fill orders.

NOTES.

The E. W. McLellan Co. has purchased the land and greenhouses of the Richard Graves estate at San Leandro. It is the intention of this firm to devote this range to the growing of American Beauty roses exclusively. Two more houses will be added this spring. Manager J. A. Axell reports great activity in the shipping trade to the north and middle west. The great difficulty is getting enough stock to fill orders. They are shipping large quantities of violets to Canada and points east of the Mississippi river.

Kenneth S. Murray is supplying this market with a grand strain of colored freesias. He claims the strain, which originated with him, is much superior to other so-called colored freesias, and he has worked up a stock of 50,000 flowering bulbs. He intends to discard Purity entirely next season and grow his colored strain exclusively, as they command much higher prices than the white varieties.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. has opened up a very elaborate flower store in the Palace hotel. This store, as well as the Powell street store, is under the management of Walter A. Hoffinghof. Just at present this firm is featuring large quantities of ericas in different varieties. They are being received from the firm's greenhouses in San Mateo.

The San Jose branch of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries has been receiving large shipments of ornamental trees and shrubs from the Eureka headquarters. Manager W. B. Clarke reports a fine trade this season and says the demand for roses is particularly heavy. They will have a large stock of azaleas and rhododendrons to offer for Easter.

The Pacific Coast Horticultural Society held a very successful "ladies' night" February 2. While the weather was not very propitious, nevertheless a very large attendance gathered to enjoy one of the most pleasant evenings in the history of the society. Many members from out of town were on hand to enjoy the society's hospitality.

We have noted some grand azaleas, the stock of which was imported by the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, of Eureka, several years ago and offered this season. The plants were a perfect mass of bloom and vastly superior to the stock imported this season by most of our growers.

Schwerin Bros., who are the largest growers of ferns for this market, report a heavy demand at all times. A visit to their range of greenhouses in Visitation Valley showed their immense stock to be in fine condition and producing heavily.

Podesta & Baldocchi have been making an elaborate showing of cattleyas and phalenopsis during the past week. They are also featuring daffodils and immense quantities are used daily in their store decorations.

Donald McLaren reports much activity in the landscape department of the MacRorie-McLaren Co. at San Mateo. He says that, notwithstanding the dry season, planting is going ahead far in excess of expectations.

F. Goraducchi, of the California Florist, of Tacoma, Wash., spent a few days visiting the trade in this city.

He left for a brief visit to Los Angeles in the company of P. F. Rosala, of Seattle.

Walter K. Lewis, vice-president of the Art Floral Co., came from Los Angeles during the week and is spending some days in town. M. H. Ebel, of Sacramento, was also a visitor this week.

F. Schlauthauser, of the Fairmont Floral Co., says his firm was very busy on decorations this week. A very fine display of bulbous stock was noted at the store on Powell street.

Nels Peterson, proprietor of the Peninsula Nursery, is sending carnations of the highest quality to this market daily. His cut of Belle Washburn is worthy of special mention.

The Western Orchid Co., of Alameda, is sending in a very heavy cut of cattleyas to this market. The quality is extra good, and they are in steady demand.

G. N.

Kansas City, Mo.TRADE BEST IN YEARS.

St. Valentine's day trade was the best ever experienced by the trade of this city and a strong incentive to prepare for a big Easter demand. All salable cut stock, especially sweet peas, had a heavy call and pot plants and made up baskets went fast. Carnations, lilies, sweet peas and bulbous stock of all kinds were plentiful, while roses were very scarce and high in price. Greens are extremely scarce, there being practically no flat ferns available.

NOTES.

W. J. Barnes enjoyed a substantial sales increase over St. Valentine's day, 1917, together with a brisk call for funeral work. In addition to a large cut of carnations and bulbous stock, he had many cinerarias, cyclamens and begonias among his best sellers.

H. Kusik & Co. report very good business with plenty of stock. Outgoing shipping is on the increase.

T. J. Noll & Co. had extra heavy business, more orders going out than in any previous year.

A. F. Barbe had a large supply of both plants and cut flowers, especially carnations and bulbous stock, and reports excellent sales. His Easter stock is looking fine and he will have a heavy supply.

W. L. Rock Flower Co. made a big hit with the trade with a fine supply of bulbous stock, which came in just right. A fine crop of carnations and excellent sweet peas were among the other offerings.

Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. reports business better than expected. Funeral work has been a big feature, and the greenhouses are furnishing excellent cuts of stock and a fine lot of plants.

The Alpha Floral Co. had the best St. Valentine's day trade in its history. Fancy cut stock went fast, and the call for pot plants was excellent.

Miss Lou E. Boggess was compelled to double her force to handle the St. Valentine's day business. Funeral work has also been heavy all week.

The Peterson Floral Co. had an excellent window display during the past week, a St. Valentine's day feature. Funeral work here has been brisk.

A big increase in business is reported by A. Newell and he anticipates a fine Easter trade.

Milwaukee.GOOD SUPPLY, EXCEPTING ROSES.

Due to the first real moderate weather, which prevailed from February 5 to February 15, the supply of cut flowers for St. Valentine's day was heavy in all lines except roses. The local advertising by the florists' association certainly "brought home the bacon," for the demand, especially for sweet peas, violets and bulbous stock, both in pots and cut, was highly satisfactory. Most of the growers still being off on roses, the demand in this line could not be satisfactorily filled. Carnations are coming in more freely than for some time past, and while the most of them are of very fine quality, still, with the exception of the reds, they did not enjoy the popularity so noticeable in other lines.

NOTES.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. comment, for the first time in many a moon, on the excellent local demand for the smaller sized cut flowers for last week's holiday. While they have more roses of the better sorts, they say the demand is mainly for the medium and short grades.

The growers who consign violets and sweet peas to the Holton & Hinkle Co. just hit it right last week, and the enormous cut was handled to good advantage for all concerned.

Gust, Rusch & Co. report shipping for the past week very fine and way ahead of expectations for St. Valentine's day. Gust is under the weather just at present.

F. Ernst, North avenue and 37th street, reports an active demand for bulbous stock grown in pots. Funeral work has been satisfactory for some time past.

C. C. Pollworth spent February 18 calling on the trade in Chicago.

Boston.ST. VALENTINE'S DAY CLEANUP.

Market conditions have improved wonderfully the past week. St. Valentine's day was a wonderful help to the growers, who sold everything in sight at firm prices. Roses moved well; 12-inch, 10 cents; 15-inch, 12½ cents; 18-inch, 16½ cents; 21 and 24-inch, 20 and 25 cents each. Carnations were $4 and $5 a hundred, sweet peas $1.50 and $2 a hundred and violets $1. Myosotis went at 25 cents and 50 cents a bunch. Sweet peas, marguerites, English daisies and English primroses were in great demand. Lily of the valley was very poor, but sold at $8 a hundred. Gardenias and cattleyas moved well. Violets and old fashioned bouquets were popular at the retail stores, arranged in heart shaped boxes.

NOTES.

After a 10 months trip to Europe, Philip L. Carbone has returned with a large line of antique furniture, old glass and china, which is displayed in his large spacious store in connection with his flowers and plants. Last week the store was arranged with lilac, flowering almond, Japanese apple and several varieties of acacia. St. Valentine's day trade was ahead of last year.

Welch Bros. Co. had a busy season, and continue to ship large quantities out of the city. Their orders have increased on account of many smaller greenhouses out of town being closed on account of the coal situation.

Penn, the Florist, had a very busy week, with St. Valentine's day trade far ahead of other years. Twenty-five thousand violets were handled in their store, besides large quantity of roses, carnations and sweet peas.

J. K. Chandler is cutting his last crop of French iris, with which he has had very good success this season, prices still holding at $3 a dozen. He is also selling the carnations from Backer & Co., of Billerica.

Chas. O'Brien is sending to market one of the most popular of the old fashioned roses (Cherokee), very scarce and only to be found at private estates.

Twenty-five salesmen and salesmen helpers are in the selected draft, "Class A," who expect to be called in the next quota. These men come from the two markets.

B. A. Snyder & Co. report a wonderful week, their trade for St. Valentine's day ahead of expectations, with an overdemand for violets and sweet peas.

Paine Bros. are supplying a fine line of bulbs, including campanulas, Golden Spurs, Poeticus, Thomas Moore, Flamingo and White Hawk tulips.

Paul Richwagon is sending in a beautiful crop of Virginia snapdragons, rich in color, good foliage and strong stems.

John J. Lee is still confined to his home with the grippe and the trade sends their best wishes and hope for a speedy recovery.

Thomas F. Galvin reports business as improving, with demands for the past week ahead of any week this season.

Beasley & Co., of Milton, are shipping to the market some excellent pansies and English daisies.

Illinois State Florists' Association.CHICAGO TO CHAMPAIGN.

The annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, announcement of which was made in our last week's issue, page 200, will be held in the Floricultural Building, University of Illinois, Urbana, March 5-6. A very instructive programme has been prepared and every florist in the state is invited to attend and take part in the discussions. The Chicago party will leave the Park Row station, via the Illinois Central railroad, March 5, at 9:15 A. M., due at Champaign, 12:12 P. M. The fare in each direction to Champaign, the railroad station for Urbana, is $2.52, plus 20 cents war tax. No reduction is made for the round trip. There is no party rate.

Other trains are as follows:

Leave Chicago.	Due Champaign.
2:10 A. M.	5:35 A. M.
7:30 A. M.	12:01 P. M.
5:20 P. M.	9:05 P. M.
6:35 P. M.	9:45 P. M.
9:45 P. M.	12:43 A. M.

The evening programme for the first day will be conducted by the Floricultural Club of the University of Illinois, and will include an interesting and instructive paper by Professor H. B. Dörner. A report of the experimental work being carried on at the greenhouses will be given by Professor Lehenbauer and will also be of interest to all who attend. Florists who have surplus stocks of plants or flowers to dispose of are requested to bring samples and exhibit them. There is no charge.

The annual flower show of the association will be held in the fall. The place has not been decided upon and invitations will be in order at this meeting.

DETROIT, MICH.—J. F. Sullivan has recovered sufficiently from his recent injuries to make a tour of the New York trade. His son Ernest, manager of the original "Sullivan's Roses" store, has been visiting in Chicago the past week.

Rochester, N. Y.TRADE GENERALLY SATISFACTORY.

Market conditions remain practically unchanged, with carnations and bulbous stock plentiful and the supply of roses limited. The St. Valentine's day trade was somewhat better than last year and everything sold well—plants, corsages, novelties and boxes of cut flowers. Easter lilies are scarce at this writing, but callas are abundant. Azaleas have begun to arrive in larger quantities.

NOTES.

J. B. Keller Sons had an unusually attractive display for St. Valentine's day. They made a departure from the customary red, to pink and white. Two white cupids suspended from the ceiling held a string of pink, heart-shaped boxes of corsages. Pink roses, Roman hyacinths, etc., formed the foreground of the window, with birch bark boxes filled with spring plants in the rear.

Salter Bros. had a window feature of a solid red heart of flowers upon which were numerous cupids. Baskets filled with cyclamens and other plants were featured. Business was reported far ahead of last year.

H. E. Wilson featured a dainty heart of daffodils, pussy willows and asparagus. Another heart, identical in size, was made of yellow flowers in pleasing combination.

Geo. T. Boucher had an immense heart decoration pierced with a large gold arrow wielded by two cupids. Novelties for the day completed the display.

An auction sale of the stock of R. Bohnke, upon approval of Nelson J. Sanford, referee in bankruptcy, was held February 19.

CHESTER.

Cincinnati.SUPPLY SUFFICIENT FOR ALL NEEDS.

St. Valentine's day business was good. The supply was large and sufficient to take care of practically all of the needs for that day. Since that time, local business has been somewhat slow. Shipping business, however, is fairly good. Roses are rather scarce. The supply is better than it was at the last writing, but is still below the normal stage for the time of the year. Carnations are plentiful. A good supply of Easter lilies, rubrums and callas is coming into the market. Sweet peas are plentiful. Tulips, jonquils, daffodils, Dutch and Roman hyacinths, yellow and white narcissi, Narcissus poeticus and freesias are all in a supply that is fairly large and is sufficient for all immediate needs. Some excellent stevia may be had. Calendulas, forget-me-nots and baby primroses find a fair market.

NOTES.

The William Murphy Co. has been receiving large cuts of sweet peas from their growers in Delhi.

C. E. Critchell has been showing some exceptionally fine daffodils.

Visitors: J. P. Keller, Lexington, Ky., and H. S. Price, representing the S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

H.

MIAMI, FLA.—Recent arrivals include J. J. Nunnally of the Nunnally Co., Atlanta, Ga.; A. N. Kinsman and wife, Austin, Minn.; and J. C. Vaughan, Chicago. Ideal summer weather prevails.

CINCINNATI, O.—Alfred Forder, prominent local florist of 3325 Menlo avenue, who has been seriously ill for several weeks, while not fully recovered, is much improved and his many friends hope for an early, complete recovery.

SOME southwestern capitalists claim to have found a practical method of taking alcohol from cacti.

MACHINERY for a $3,000,000 government nitrate plant in southwestern Virginia has been ordered.

FLOWERS are more fragrant when the sun is not shining on them, according to a French scientist, because the oils that produce the perfume are forced out by the water pressure in the plant cells and this is diminished by sunlight.

Dixieland Prosperity.

The whole of Dixieland, as every one knows, has done and is doing a wonderful business. But it is in cotton manufacturing towns and localities as well as in the cotton growing sections that as one of the leading merchants and manufacturers of that region writes, "prosperity is rampant." Centers like Charlotte, Savannah, and Macon, so great have been economic changes, are now more like northern than southern cities. People are rich and the demand for goods is insatiable.

St. Valentine's Day Trade.

From reports received from a number of cities it is evident that sales for St. Valentine's day were in most instances equal in volume to those of a year ago, regardless of the fact that many young men to whom the sentiment of the day appeals were with the colors. Sweet peas were prime favorites this year and were in generous supply. Violets appear to be losing in popularity and in several instances were found hard to move. As a rule, however, there was a satisfactory call for cut stock of all varieties and the movement in pot plants was better than in previous years.

New York Flower Show.

With the opening of the New York flower show less than a month away, the preparations at this date augur well, for another great success, in spite of general conditions which might, by some, be considered hardly favorable. Many changes in the usual order of things, and quite a few innovations have been found necessary, but happily, everything is in excellent shape and there is every reason to expect that the ultimate result will be satisfactory to all concerned.

The trade exhibits will again be an important feature of the show, and on the usual large scale. Space amounting in the aggregate to $8,000 has actually been sold, and there is every probability that sales will run to $12,000 before the exhibition opens. While the exhibits of the greenhouse builders will necessarily be curtailed somewhat this year, all the concerns in this line will be represented. The official programme is under way, and its advertising pages are being generously taken up, insuring an edition which will be up to the usual high standard. Trade tickets will be issued in blocks of 100 or more at 20 cents per ticket, and in less quantities at 25 cents per ticket.

The competitive exhibits will be numerous, and many new exhibitors will make an appearance. Special exhibits will also be prominent, and include some war gardens, practically a new feature. F. R. Pierson of Tarrytown, N. Y., will lay out a handsome rose garden of the formal type, and A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., will install a charming rose garden on rustic lines. John Scheepers & Co., Inc., New York, will enter an elaborate garden planting of Dutch bulbs, using accessories which will include a windmill and other picturesque subjects.

The American Rose Society having abandoned the exhibition it was to stage in St. Louis as part of the national flower show, will hold its annual exhibition in connection with the New York show, co-operating with it in every way. This insures a grand display of cut roses on a large scale, also of rose plants.

There will be no tea garden this year, the ladies interested having fallen in with the Hoover idea of conservation as regards what is alleged to be unnecessary food and refreshments. The ladies of the Red Cross, however, have organized to meet this deficiency with a patriotic exhibit which will be more in line with the spirit of the times. Their exhibit will be both new and novel, and will include machines for making sweaters, all in operation by men and women workers of the Red Cross. They will have two moving picture theatres, which will project films made expressly for the Red Cross and shown for the first time. Some of the films will feature the ruined fruit orchards of France and the methods now being used for re-establishing them. Another feature of the Red Cross exhibit will be a flower booth conducted by ladies of the Junior League. Speeches by persons prominent in Red Cross work will form part of the programme each day.

A more than usually patriotic sentiment will attach to this show. The War Savings Stamps campaign of the government will be featured in an exhibit, and quarters will also be occupied by officials in charge of the promotion of the next Liberty Loan, where some most prominent speakers will deliver patriotic addresses.

Orders for trade tickets should be in the hands of the secretary as early as possible, accompanied by remittances covering the cost as per rates mentioned.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

American Rose Society.

The American Rose Society will have its annual exhibition and will hold its annual meeting at the Grand Central Palace, New York, March 14-21.

The plan had been to go to St. Louis for the proposed show in April, but the conditions of the weather and coal, and the upset in routine business, made it impracticable to hold the show there.

These flower shows help to make not only the suburban but the city home pleasant and cheerful. The flower conveys in its presence the spirit of cheer and the spirit of consolation, and no flower exceeds the rose in this respect. The society wants to do everything it can to make the exhibition a success. During the last two years there has been a large increase in the amateur membership. The first rose show for the development of popular interest in the rose was held in New York, which is one of the great flower markets of the country. The increase in the amateur membership was due largely to the ability of the society to issue the illustrated annual, edited by J. Horace McFarland, Harrisburg, Pa. This annual was something that could be sent to all parts of the country, and it carried with it fine pictures and good instructions.

The original plan of the society was to have an exhibition each year, during the period of Lent, and also encourage public flower shows in the rose season—June. It has been planned to have this year, in Elizabeth park, Hartford, Conn., a show of great beauty. The park department of that city started a rose garden that caused much interest and gained fame. They also started a test garden to try out suitable roses for outside culture. This year preparations have been made to have a special public rose week in June, at which time the American Rose Society will make every effort to bring its members to Hartford for this occasion. In the meantime, we want every member that we can reach to boom the coming exhibition.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY LITTLE EASTER.

Weather conditions during the past week have been more favorable, but railroad facilities are very little, if any, improved. We hope for better service soon. The coal situation is better and prospects are now bright for the grower. He can see lily buds showing white and hopes to get them far enough advanced to put them in a cool house. Roses are still coming good, and carnations are becoming more perfect. Although the shipments of American Beauties are delayed, the stock is good, and the same is true of orchids. There are enough of both arriving to supply the market. St. Valentine's day is now counted by the florists of this city as a little Easter and this year was no exception, and as they used precaution in laying in supplies, they did not lose anything. The call for roses was not as large as last year, and the same holds true for violets, but plant sales were better than a year ago. Birch baskets filled with tulips, jonquils, primulas, hyacinths, ferns and other plants in various arrangements, relieved by vases of cut flowers, were much in evidence, and with the ribbon decorations found ready buyers at prices ranging from $3 to $10. They cleaned up well. In general, the local florists are well pleased with the volume of business done.

NOTES.

The delegation from this city to the meeting of the state federation of societies at Cornell University last week was not as large as expected, poor street car service causing several to miss the train. The change in train schedule also shortened the time and made the trip a hurried one. Next year the delegation will go one day in advance of the meeting. The writer was pleased to meet Frank Traendly, Robert Simpson, Anton Schultheis and the jovial "boys" from Syracuse. Unfortunately, F. R. Pierson could not be present. Professors White, Beal and Lumsden, as usual, were there and made the visit a pleasant one, which they know so well how to do, and one and all will want to be present next year and inspect the grounds and the buildings. Rochester missed Charlie Vick, but "Safety Valve" Bates was a welcome visitor from that city and the boys from this city are always glad to see him.

The "heatless" Mondays are now a thing of the past and there is much satisfaction to both employer and employee. Local florists were true blue and lived up to the letter of the law, and careful buying made the loss of stock very small. Preparations for a big Easter trade are now being made. It is up to the Florists' Telegraph Delivery to boom this business in every way, and while there may not be the usual supply of azaleas, there will be plenty of other good offerings to fill their places.

MARKET WELL SUPPLIED.

Stock is plentiful; in fact, almost more than the market can handle comfortably. Daffodils are being cut in large quantities and the supply of carnations is unusually heavy. Violets are the only flowers that are scarce and the call for them is brisk. St. Valentine's day business proved a surprise, bringing in a stream of late orders following a poor advance demand. While no records were broken, it was a successful day's business that did not end until dusk. Roses had few calls, but carnations, violets, when available, and sweet peas sold out early. Asparagus and maiden hair ferns are very short in supply on this market. From all reports, bulbous stock and azaleas will not be any too plentiful this Easter, and the present cold weather will reduce the supply somewhat.

The Davey Tree Expert Co., Kent, Ohio

The tree surgery done by your experts on this estate in 1912 has been a credit to you. You are without doubt the leaders in this science.

The work was done expeditiously, courteously, in a business like manner, and strictly in accordance with our wishes; the test of time has proved its permanency. I certainly shall not fail to recommend you to those of my fellow gardeners who have the care of valued trees. I am,

Very truly yours, ROBERT WEEKS.

SUPPLY OF GOOD STOCK LIMITED.

The problem in this city of late seems to be to get enough good stock to supply the demand. For two or three weeks the call has cleaned up roses, carnations and other good stock faster than they are produced and the supplies from California and other places have fallen off so we at times had a real shortage and the proposition would have been serious if the bulb supply had not been in to help out. Shipments from California have sometimes been delayed and of poorer quality than our trade demands. Bulbous stocks are rather inferior in quality, due principally to hasty forcing. Sweet peas are quite scarce, but of good quality. Fewer calla lilies are to be seen than ever before. Lately, practically all the supply of greens in the way of ferns and asparagus, have come from California. Nothing like half enough are grown here. The weather outside has been so warm that roses and all shrubbery is pushing out the buds, and everywhere the crocus and other bulbous stocks are only waiting for a day's bright sunshine to pop them into full flower. This section has not had to worry a moment about the fuel problem. A good new fuel is being put on the market here and it is one that promises to be cheap and most excellent. It is called "Hogged Fuel" and is made from refuse bark, slabs and sawdust from the big fir logs at the mill. It burns freely and heats equal to our soft coal, and can be banked to hold fire first rate. It is being used in the central plant that heats practically all the downtown business section. Two of our local greenhouses are burning sawdust and are finding it first rate fuel. The lawn mowers are to be seen in use frequently in all parts of the

to get caught up for the losses sustained in the last "three lean years." Shipping business with them continues good, so they find it a problem to get supplies for the retail and stock to partially fill the out-of-town orders.

The Smith Floral Co. has a continuous call that keeps them sold out of all good stock as fast as they can get it.

California Florists all continue wearing that "prosperity smile"—the reason? Good business. S. L. H.

Springfield, O.

Prospects are very encouraging for a large volume of business this spring, especially for those who were able to pull through the long, severe winter, with their stock in good condition, as the fuel shortage, together with the very extreme weather, has forced many growers to close part, and in some instances, all of their houses for the winter. These conditions prevailing, will mean that practically all their stock will have to be bought in order to carry on their spring business. It is regretted that such losses had to be incurred, and we trust that the ones fortunate enough to pull through, will put forth an extra effort to supply the ones who have met with misfortune. Heatless Monday has been observed by all local florists, and all means possible devised to curtail the use of fuel to the very greatest extent; all stores and offices have been closed, and just sufficient heat maintained to keep the contents from being damaged. We trust that the moderate weather, which we are having at the present, will help to relieve the congested traffic conditions and lead to a rapid readjustment of transportation. The favorable weather prevailing on St. Valentine's day, helped

ST. VALENTINE'S TRADE DISAPPOINTING.

The St. Valentine's trade was disappointing, and according to several of the wholesale houses and many of the retail dealers, at least 10 to 30 per cent below that of 1917. The out-of-town demand was good, but the city trade was nothing to speak of. Stock is plentiful at this writing with the exception of roses, especially in the shorter stemmed grades, which clean up early each day. Long stemmed roses are in good supply, but are moving nicely considering the present market conditions, and while there appears to be more than enough to go around, there is no great surplus. Several out-of-town wholesale houses have been drawing on this market for roses the past week, which has helped the situation considerably as far as this item is concerned. Carnations are in good supply but are selling well at fair prices. Gardenias are none too plentiful. Orchids are seen in large numbers, especially Cattleya Trianae and beautiful sprays of Phalaenopsis Schilleriana and P. amabilis. Lilies and callas are to be had in quantity and the same holds true for tulips, freesias, jonquils, narcissi, irises, wall flowers, calendulas, candytufts, daisies, stocks, mignonette, Romans, stevias, snapdragons, bouvardias, pansies and forget-me-nots. Sweet peas are reaching the market in larger supply, but clean up quickly at prices ranging from 50 cents to $1.50 per 100. Violets are plentiful enough to fill any demand, but are not arriving in any too good a condition. Greens are not any too plentiful, and practically all the dealers are asking $3.50 per 1,000 for terns.

NOTES.

C. C. Pollworth and wife, Milwaukee, Wis., were welcome visitors, February 16. Mr. Pollworth says that the St. Valentine's day trade in the Cream City was exceptionally good with all the florists, due principally to the extensive co-operative advertising in all the local papers, including those reaching the foreign speaking people.

The Wholesale Cut Flower Association elected the following officers for the ensuing year at a meeting and dinner held at the Hotel Sherman, February 14: August Poehlmann, president; Paul Klingsporn, vice-president; Philip C. Schupp, treasurer, and A. C. Kohlbrand, secretary.

Fred Krauss passed the examination before his draft board last week, which probably means that the E. F. Winterson Co. and the trade will lose their popular "Micky" for some time. Here's hoping for a speedy end of the war, and a safe return for all our soldier florist boys.

Joe Einweck, of the Bassett & Washburn force, was called for examination by his draft board, February 18. His brother, Tony, formerly employed in the local wholesale cut flower market, but now located at Denver, Colo., has joined the navy.

John Alles, son of Gus Alles, of Wiator Bros., will be called to the colors in the near future, having successfully passed the examination before his draft board. Mr. Alles' other son, Nicholas, joined the navy as a volunteer several months ago.

William J. Kaspar, who was drafted into the national army recently, has been ordered to report for duty February 22. He is in the retail business and a brother of George Kaspar, with the Batavia Greenhouse Co.

Ed Hunt, with the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, is one of the many young men employed in the local wholesale market who was called for examination by his draft board this week.

Second-lieutenant Fred Haeger, who has been visiting with relatives here for nearly a week, left February 17 for Rockford. He was formerly in the employ of the A. L. Randall Co.

Peter Reinberg reports a brisk demand for carnation cuttings in all the varieties he is advertising, and will be ready to quote prices on young rose stock in the near future.

The Freres-Windler Co. is handling a large quantity of fancy home-grown Asparagus Sprengeri, which is none too plentiful in this market at present.

Perry Jones, Inc., received a car of brown, purple and green Superioria magnolia leaves this week. He is now having a special sale on same.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. report that their sales so far during February are about the same as those of the same period in 1917.

A. Miller, who is in New York on business for the American Bulb Co., is expected home this week.

A. Lange is showing a fine grade of Scotch heather from California.

E. C. Pruner is back from a successful out-of-town business trip.

George Asmus reports that Schiller enjoyed a splendid St. Valentine's day trade at both stores, which he attributes to the extensive advertising his firm did. He took advantage of the market conditions last week when orchids were plentiful and used one in every corsage amounting to $2.50 or more. Rheinold Schiller finished serving two weeks on the jury, February 16, and Herman Schiller was called the following Monday, consequently "Let George do it" seems to be the byword at the Schiller establishment now.

Sidney Buchbinder, manager of Buchbinder Bros., reports numerous inquiries the past week for store fixtures and refrigerators which promise to develop into actual orders in the near future. He is making his headquarters at Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s city salesroom, 72 East Randolph street.

Wietor Bros. never had such a brisk demand for carnation cuttings as they experienced this season and each mail brings in new orders. This firm is now cutting a splendid supply of stock in this line in all the leading commercial varieties.

Allie Zech and Fred Ottenbacher visited several of Zech & Mann's growers, February 17, and bring back the report that they will be particularly strong on lilies for Easter, judging from the excellent condition of the plants.

Arnold Ringier has returned from a combined business and pleasure trip to Kansas City, Mo. It is needless to add that he had a most pleasant visit with his old friend, Samuel Murray, well and favorably known retail florist.

James Morton has the sympathy of many friends in the loss of his wife, who died February 18, after a protracted illness. The funeral will be held Thursday, February 21, at 2 p. m. from 912 West Madison street.

Harry Gardiner, of A. T. Pyfer & Co., is in Class 1 of the draft, but so far has not been ordered to appear for examination. He was in the national guard for a long time, and is ready to do his bit when called.

Theo. Rodkiewicz, of the Bassett & Washburn force, celebrated his fifteenth birthday, February 19, by treating the entire force with a splendid line of eats, including a large, delicious birthday cake.

Joe Restevo, who makes his headquarters at Wietor Bros.' store, has failed to show up for several weeks.

Toledo.

ST. VALENTINE'S BUSINESS FAIR.

St. Valentine's day, according to some florists, proved that war or no war, the demand for flowers is not going to cease automatically, while others report a decreased business for this day. However, it is to be noted in this respect that those retailers who had faith in the day, stocked up and let the public know that it was entirely in order to "Say it with Flowers," enjoyed better business than ever. The weather on this day resembled, in its mildness, the first advances of spring, which helped considerably in putting the people in a mood to buy floral valentines. Stock was rather inadequate, particularly as regards violets and sweet peas. Roses and carnations were in good supply and stock was excellent. Bulbous plants, such as tulips, azaleas, cyclamens and daffodils, were sold in surprising numbers, showing that the appeal of St. Valentine's day knows no age limit when rightly promoted. Funeral work has been unusually heavy during the past week, and with the advent of spring and the abolishment of the Monday closing order, florists are looking forward to brisk trade.

NOTES.

When the gorges at Defiance and Napoleon on the upper Maumee let loose their pent up masses of ice and water upon Toledo, the Maumee here suddenly overflowed its banks, sewers backed up, and for a while it looked as though Max Spanner would be flooded out, but a cold spell froze up the source of supply, and the Maumee is again within its banks. Spanner reports a splendid sale of pot tulips on St. Valentine's day.

Schramm Brothers advertised St. Valentine's day more thoroughly than ever before, using the same cut that appeared in the Saturday Evening Post for their newspaper ads, and sending out a beautiful folder in colors to a large mailing list. Business on this day fully justified this aggressive policy. Many novelties were sold as well as a great many pot plants.

The new decorator at Mrs. J. B. Freeman's flower shop revealed his excellent art in a Valentine window that attracted much favorable attention from passersby, and brought in a good share of the business this popular florist enjoyed on that day.

St. Louis.

BUSINESS LIVENS UP.

The market was rather brisk the past week. The weather opened up considerably and it seemed to liven up business immediately. This was particularly true of the downtown florists who do a big transient trade. The supply of flowers was fair, with the principal shortage in the roses. There were not enough to go around or anywhere near fill the orders from day to day. No roses of any variety coming into this market are any too good just now, and for St. Valentine's day this came near being disastrous. Of course violets and sweet peas had the big call and the wide-awake florists pushed these on account of the reasonable prices prevailing. Violets were quoted from $7.50 to $10 per thousand and sweet peas $10 to $15 per thousand, but violets had a bit of a drop and some were quoted as low as $2.50 per thousand late in the day. Carnations are coming better with the opening of the weather and promise a big crop for the next few months. Sweet peas are also coming into their own and some of excellent quality are seen daily but they seem to clean up at good figures. Narcissi have not been any too plentiful. Jonquils and freesias are equal to the demand. Calendulas have become quite a favorite with the local trade and large quantities are cleaned up daily. Snapdragons have been somewhat scarce, but what have been on the market are fine. Lilies have been equal to the call, but rubrum do not come in often enough to create a regular market. Greens of all kinds are equal to the demand. Fancy ferns have dropped off somewhat in quality.

NOTES.

The last meeting of the florists' club happened to fall on St. Valentine's day and naturally the attendance was light. The meeting, however, was very enthusiastic. The publicity committee had a very encouraging report to make on St. Valentine's day advertising. They also announce that they intended to run so-called "locals" in the various dailies in the form of the new slogan "Say It With Flowers." The local publicity committee has been formed by co-operating the individual committees from the florists' club, the retail association and the growers' association, and expects to form a permanent committee to handle the various schemes of publicity, and also to raise a permanent fund. This should redound to the good of all florists in this section and it is hoped everybody will come in, even to the smallest contributor.

The St. Valentine's day business this year, no doubt in a slight measure at least due to the publicity given the day, exceeded that of last year, from all available reports. Violets, of course, had the big call, but even sweet peas had a very large demand.

The only real hardship, however, to the retailer, was the absence of the blooming plants. Tulips, hyacinths, primulas and azaleas were cleaned up, and the local growers were called on to deliver bulbous plants that barely showed color. The business shows what can be done by advertising and will be a good criterion to go by in the future.

The retail florists' association held its meeting, February 18 and elected officers for 1918 as follows: J. J. Windler, president; Theo. Miller, vice-president; Chas. Young, secretary; Andrew Hofman, treasurer; F. H. Weber, sergeant-at-arms. Trustees: Chas. Beyer, chairman; L. Jules Bourdet and R. Tubbesing. Questions of publicity and closer relationship between the grower, wholesaler and retailer came up for discussion. Fred C. Weber, Jr., and Martin Seeger were re-appointed as members of the joint publicity committee.

ABUNDANT SUPPLY AND GOOD BUSINESS.

Weather conditions having been much more favorable, for the past week or 10 days has brought out an abundant supply of the early spring blossoms, hyacinths, jonquils, and a great variety of blooming plants. Roses, it is true, are somewhat scarce, but those that are coming in are of superb quality. The extreme cold winter played havoc with the cold-frame violets, and they have not yet recovered and begun to bloom with any degree of profusion. To supply the St. Valentine's day demand, several of the dealers found it necessary to have violets shipped in—something that has not been done before for many years. Carnations are fine and plentiful, and the Dutch hyacinths are blooming right along and are used both as cut flowers and sold as pot plants. The St. Valentine's day trade was very fine; the best ever here, and fully 25 per cent better than last year's. Pot plants sold freely and were in great demand. Cyclamens, tulips and the Von Sion narcissi, as well as Dutch hyacinths, all sold readily. Handsome arrangements of plants in the birch boxes tempted the buyer and quantities were sold. The arrangement of cyclamens or Dutch hyacinths with Primula obconica, giving a feathery effect, made the boxes very beautiful.

NOTES.

The Mount Olivet greenhouses and conservatories are filled with a beautiful display of hyacinths, primroses and cyclamens, plants that are in demand for the decoration of the graves. Recently they have built a new house, 30x100 feet, in which the same flowers and bedding plants are grown. The sale of flowers is entirely from the greenhouses, and a sufficient amount is realized to entirely pay the expense of running them. J. M. Scaif is the grower, and has been with the company for more than 15 years. I. H. McBride is the superintendent. The cemetery is kept in beautiful condition and the lovely flower beds add to its attractiveness.

The Joy Floral Company is having a profusion of flowers of every description and have had a fine trade. Their St. Valentine's day trade was much larger than that of last year. Their Chattanooga store also did a big business and is growing all the time in popularity. Thomas H. Joy has been very much run down in health for some time past and went to Florida two weeks ago to recuperate. Mrs. Joy is with him, and they will prolong their stay until he has recovered his wonted health.

Geny Bros. had all they could handle for the St. Valentine's day demand, and for the call had splendid flowers of every description. Red carnations, of which they had a fine cut, were a prime favorite for the call. The beautifully arranged birch boxes sold well.

McIntyre Bros. said their trade was the best they had ever had. They had all of the prettiest pot plants, and any quantity of roses, hyacinths, and narcissi.

Haury & Sons had a fine display of pot plants, and did a very good Valentine trade.

FAIRLY GOOD GENERAL DEMAND.

The business of the past week was encouraging. There appeared a fairly good general demand, funeral week creating the most of it. St. Valentine's day trade was quite important to those who catered to and pushed the sentimental idea of flowers for the celebration. Those who made no effort or did not feature the day, complained of nothing doing, no old-time snap, interest dying out, etc. It's the old, old story; the hustler gets there, while the man who waits, gets disappointment. The market was full of flowers, with the exception possibly of roses, which, while the volume is increasing, does not prove enough for any extra demand. The quality of the rose stock is fine; of the new comers, Champ Weiland looms up strong. If it were a trifle more double, it would be in it with the best of them. Sweet peas had their inning this week. Stock is now fine and sells as well as anything in the market. Carnations were a bit draggy. Somehow they cannot get up any speed. The quality is all right, although the percentage of splits seems larger than usual. The quick moving price for the best grades was not over three cents. Calendulas are plentiful; with one-third the quantity, and two-third quality added, they would find a ready market. The stock now offered is too prolific in single and imperfect flowers. A grower who will make a specialty of this flower, producing good stock in the several shades, will find a ready sale at top prices. Cattleyas lack the old time demand; $4 a dozen is top price, which at this season is not very encouraging to the grower. Gardenias are another fancy that lack favor. Good long stemmed stock is plentiful on the street corners at 10 cents, 3 for 25 cents. Easter lilies appear to find buyers at good prices, while callas are lagging a little. Snapdragons move along and there is a good demand for tulips, daffodils, freesias, pansies, etc. All kinds of greens sell well.

EASTER PROSPECTS.

Easter is looming up and there is considerable speculation as to the quantity of available stock. A survey of the lily growers finds them of the opinion that there will not be any too many. While there does not appear to be much disease, yet a lot of the bulbs were small and imperfect, and with some a rather large percentage, as they fail to develop, have to be thrown out. Not as many are being grown this year as last, careful growers estimating at least 20 per cent less. Rambler roses are also curtailed in quantity by several growers. Spireas will be missing, as none of this popular plant came from the other side the past season. There appears to be a good stock of hydrangeas which are in a fairly forward state for the early date. Bulbous stock should be as plentiful as usual, as bulbs were offered very low late in the season.

WITH THE WHOLESALESALEERS.

An interesting operation the past week was the dynamiting of much of the ground surrounding the green-houses of W. K. Harris at 55th and Springfield avenue. Here is grown on during the summer months much of the stock that is forced in the houses during the winter. In order to stir up the subsoil, so that it will retain more moisture for the plants during the dry summer months, the explosive was used as follows: A gasoline compressor supplied air through a hose to a mechanical augur drill which made 1½-inch holes four feet deep about ten feet apart. In the bottom of this was placed half a stick of dynamite which was then tamped in. Connected by electricity, half a dozen holes were fired at once. The surface soil around each hole was raised about two feet, but on account of the hard frozen ground, most of the disturbance was below. It will be interesting to note the difference the coming summer in some patches which were not disturbed on account of being occupied with stock.

That when a plant is well grown, there is pretty sure to be a market for it, is demonstrated by the 25,000 block of Primula malacoides moved in about a month, from middle of January to February 15, by the S. S. Pennock Co. The plants had been grown cool and were just right as to vigor, wealth of bloom and color. Many other plants could be done as well if they were studied and grown by the housefull. In these times of competition, the specialist wins out, as he soon stands head and shoulders above the general grower.

mand was not up to the standard of previous years. Hadley and Russell roses, sweet peas and carnations in quantity are features here.

Eugene Weiss, the veteran and retired retailer, is off on a trip to Palm Beach and southern Florida, where he expects to spend the next three months. He will stop off at the various cities enroute to see old friends and renew his interest in the business.

Edward Reid found a good out-of-town demand through the week, but not as much for February 14 as in many previous years. High grade sweet peas, choice roses and quantities of good carnations are features.

Easter business is coming in strong at the establishment of H. Bayersdorfer & Co. Shipping facilities are now much better, but Mr. Bayersdorfer advises early orders while there is time in case of possible delays.

A very good demand had cleared up daily the increased production of the Jos. Heacock Co.'s roses. Killarney, Richmond and Hadley are the leaders. The large rose houses are reported as being in fine condition.

The Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange had a very good week; Manager Miller said better than a year ago. Very good rose stock in all popular varieties is seen here.

At Eugene Bernheimer's, September Morn roses are first choice. There is never enough of this variety to go around. A good supply of carnations and sweet peas are also seen.

Plenty of good carnations but a light demand, is the report of Berger Brothers. High grade orchid sweet peas, choice violets and snapdragons were seen in quantity.

The Robert Craig Co.'s Easter stock is fast getting into shape. A feature will be a house of Easter Greeting pelargoniums, which made such a hit last year.

GOOD SUPPLY; LOWER PRICES.

A week of springlike weather, and the announcement that "heatless" Mondays were to be no more, has put the trade—and all trades for that matter—in better humor. Nearly every day during the past week, during the middle of the day, the temperature went up to 50°. It turned cooler on the afternoon of February 15, but is not severe at this writing. Naturally, there has been an increase in the supply of stock with declining prices as a rule, but rose prices are holding up well. Though St. Valentine's day business was good with a number of retailers, that had but little effect on the wholesale market. Carnations, bulbous stocks, sweet peas and various minor stocks are all plentiful, and one day of fairly good business is not enough to clean up. The arrival of the Dutch steamer Nieuw Amsterdam with a cargo of bulbs, mostly gladioli and dormant plants, and attending incidents of her arrival, served as a topic of interest in the trade, a number of leading growers of this vicinity, and both east and west, being deeply interested.

February 18.—There is a fair amount of buying this morning, but the majority of stocks are slow. It is reasonable to suppose that from now on until the Easter business begins, trade will be dull. Although for the past three nights there has been sharp frost, the days are clear and stock continues to increase in supply. More American Beauties are arriving and the best specials are down to 60 cents each, wholesale rates, with a prospect of going lower. Tea roses are holding up well, but carnations and all white bulbous stocks are slow. Paper Whites and freesias are drugs and there is a surplus of yellow narcissi. Violets are plentiful and cheap. There is no change worthy of note in orchids, gardenias, lilies and lily of the valley.

NOTES.

Is there a general demand in the trade for another red rose? That is a question that we should like to have discussed. We do not believe that the fine quality of Hadley has ever been disputed, but recently we have heard rumors that some of its growers intended to reduce their planting because the yield was not large enough to be profitable, compared with some other stocks. Hoosier Beauty is good only for a limited part of the year, and some retailers do not want it even at its best. As for Richmond, it has almost vanished from this market. Scott Key does not come well in winter. The great objection to Hoosier Beauty is its weak stems. Several new red roses were seen in last year's shows, but not enough is known of them to form an opinion. Several wholesalers of this district, including Frank H. Traendly and Horace E. Froment, both of whom specialize in roses, think another red rose is needed.

President Totty, of the Society of American Florists, advises us that the convention of the society, which was to have been held in April, in St. Louis, has been postponed to the third week of August. The reasons assigned for the change of date are, that leading men in the trade, who personally, or by their agents attend the conventions, believe that by August there will be a more definite knowledge of what may be expected for fall and winter business. President Totty says, in effect, that we are passing through a hard and trying winter, and April will be too early to even guess what conditions may be in the fall.

Frank H. Traendly was much pleased with his visit to the meeting Clifton, N. J., who spoke at the meet-

VAUGHAN'S ASTER SEED FOR FLORISTS

NEW ASTER—Mammoth Non-lateral Branching

MAMMOTH NON-LATERAL BRANCHING

MAMMOTH NON-LATERAL BRANCHING WHITE, 2 ft. This is without doubt the largest Aster on the market. Many of the flowers will measure four inches in diameter. The plants grow about two feet high with a low branching habit, and the flowers which are borne on non-lateral stems are full, with petals curled and incurved, making the flowers appear like a cross between an Ostrich Feather and a Giant Branching. $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., \$1.00 \$0.35

MAMMOTH NON-LATERAL BRANCHING BLUE, 2 ft. Very like the preceding except the flowers are a medium shade of blue $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., \$1.00 .35

OTHER AMERICAN ASTERS

LAVERNER GEM. One of the most charming sorts. The flowers are of a true lavender shade and the petals are gracefully curled and twisted, and the blooms are borne on long stems. .25 2.20

PEERLESS PINK. The flowers are enormous, globular in shape, many five inches across, of a most delightful and pleasing rich shell pink. First flowers appear about the middle of August, but the plant is at its zenith about four weeks later. .20 1.20

CRIMSON GIANT. This shade has been one which has seemed to lack intensity of color, but in this variety the blood red blossom is particularly bright. .20 1.20

SENSATION. The reddest of all red asters, the color being a dark rich garnet or ox-blood red, which glistens in the sunshine like a live coal. The plants are of the free branching habit, about 18 inches high, the double flowers, averaging about 3 inches in diameter, are borne freely on stems about 12 inches long. .25 2.00

10 Per Cent cash discount, on orders of $2.00 or over, when cash accompanies order. Florists' catalog is now being mailed.

THE ROYAL—Early-Flowering Branching

This type fills a gap between the Queen of the Market and the Late-Flowering Branching Asters. Sown early inside, and planted out with Queen of the Market, it follows that variety very closely.

CREGO

This flower is giant in size, many blossoms six inches across. The petals are nearly double the length of the older varieties and are twisted and curled into a very fluffy effect.

White, Shell Pink, Dark Pink, Lavender, Crimson, Azure Blue, Purple. $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 35c .20 1.20
Any of the above. .15 1.00
Mixed, the above .15 1.00

Hohenzollern, Extra Early White .25 1.60
Extra Early Rose .25 1.60

THE MIKADO

Petals are narrow, very long and gracefully reflexed. The outer petals show to their full extent, while gradually toward the center they bend and curl on each other in such magnificent disorder as to make the fluffiest aster we have ever seen.

White $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 35c .20 1.20
Pink Rochester $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 35c .20 1.20

THE KING

The habit is similar to the popular Giant Branching, vigorous in growth, long, stiff stems. In form the flower is entirely distinct from any other variety; petals somewhat resemble the quilled varieties, but are much larger and broader, those in the center being curled and incurved, completely covering the crown. In shape and size the bloom is round, full and very large.

Rose, Pink, Violet, White, Crimson. .20 1.40
Any of the above. .20 1.20
Mixed, all colors .20 1.20

AMERICAN BEAUTY

2 $\frac{1}{2}$ ft. Is similar in type of flower and growth to the well-known Late Branching Asters, but differs in that all the large blossoms are produced on much longer and heavier stems. It is the first of a new strain of late branching habit, and of robust growth. The flowers are fully double to the last and are a most lovely shade of bright carmine-rose, almost identical with the World-famous American Beauty Rose. Each plant forms a perfect bush. $\frac{1}{4}$ oz., 50c .25 2.00

John Scheepers & Co. have taken 700 square feet of space for their exhibit in the flower show in the Grand Central Palace. We have seen the plan for their exhibit and believe it will be unique and exceptionally fine. John Scheepers says: "I firmly believe that this, the rainy day for horticulture, is the psychological time to support it so that it may again support us when better times come, as they surely will."

Mrs. A. T. Roth, wife of the buyer for David Charles' Sons, had a singular misfortune about three weeks ago. She retired one night in good health and with perfect hearing and when she awoke in the morning her hearing was entirely lost, in one ear, and skillful treatment has, up to this time, had no effect. She is a young woman, only 26 years old.

A man was arrested in the wholesale district, February 16, for having in his room an outfit for the manufacture of high explosives, but he was not a florist. Possibly he was a humorist who had overheard some of the wholesalers complain of low prices and was devising a scheme to raise them.

A meeting of the flower show committee was held in the Grand Central Palace on the afternoon of February 18. The members of the committee are impressed with the big idea that the show will be the best ever.

At the store of Max Schling, it was stated that they had an excellent business on St. Valentine's day. At his seed store, preparations are completed for a big spring drive.

Charles H. Brown, 2366 Broadway, has gone to Orlando, Florida, for a few weeks. Mrs. Brown is spending the winter there for the benefit of her health.

Pappas Brothers, 2216 Broadway, report a great improvement in business since the milder weather.

G. E. M. Stumpp advises us that his St. Valentine's day business was quite as good as last year.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-sixth annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 18-20, 1918.

ONION SETS are firmer, reds and yellows about $2.50, whites $3.50 to $4.00.

HOLLAND bulb exporters are reported making large profits on cases and ocean insurance.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—A few warmer days the past week have crowded the seed stores to their capacity.

PRESIDENT MILLER, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, has been calling on the trade of New York and Philadelphia the past week.

WESTERN seedsmen say the demand for vegetable seeds is away ahead of last year's at this time. Flower seeds are about the same as last year.

J. CHAS. McCULLOUGH, Cincinnati, O., who is enjoying fine sport catching sail fish at Palm Beach, Fla., expects to leave for home February 25.

VISITED CHICAGO: C. C. Massie, of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.; T. Herschel Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.

MRS. CARL CROPP, Chicago, is visiting her son, Carl, Jr., this week at Cambridge, Mass., where he is in training for the United States radio service. He expects to leave shortly on ocean duty.

AMOY, the center of the Chinese narcissus industry, was visited by severe earthquakes, February 18, with serious injury to life and property. Cable communication with Hongkong is interrupted.

It is announced that members of the Dutch Bulb Association have signed up, fixing 90 days as the limit in terms. How will this affect the numerous dealers and salesmen not members of the association?

FLOWER SEED growers in California are complaining that the few light rains already reported have done more harm than good, causing germination followed by drying out which means the loss of the stock seed.

IMPORTERS have been greatly provoked by delays of the Washington permits now required for each shipment. It is understood at Chicago that on February 20 a blanket permit was issued covering all imports received up to and including February 16.

EUGENE SCHAEFFEL, of Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co., Paris, France, well known in the American trade, and Mrs. Schaeffel, announce the wedding of their daughter, Miss Yvonne Schaeffel, and Captain Louis Nassoy, of the Thirtieth Infantry regiment, January 21.

ANGERS, FRANCE.—R. Godineau advises that Maurice Godineau, his brother and partner in the firm of R. & M. Godineau, has been the victim of a railway accident in a train bearing French soldiers on leave from Italy whither Mr. Godineau had been sent at the beginning of the French intervention.

California Welcomes Rain.

L. W. Wheeler, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif., advises as follows, February 19:

"Welcome rains have fallen during the past few days, with prospects of a continuance. Although the usual rainy season is half gone and more than normal spring rains will be required to make even fair yields, there is now enough moisture to start crops growing.

"Should the rain continue late, there is hope for a fair quantity of beet, carrot and onion.

"Celery, mustard, parsnip and salify will probably be very short, as with even favorable conditions, the reciprocation to date is but 25 per cent of normal.

"The outlook for radish is poor, and under the most favorable conditions, not more than half a crop can be expected.

"There is ample time for lettuce."

Amsterdam Inspection.

Owing to government suspicion of enemy contamination of the nursery stock and bulbs on board the S. S. Nieuw Amsterdam, special orders were given that a 100 per cent inspection was to be made on the dock, supervised by the authorities. All cases were to be opened and each plant minutely inspected. This inspection was begun February 11, in the presence of trade representatives, who immediately recognized that much damage was being done by this procedure. Some of the consignees immediately took the matter up with the officials and succeeded in having the work halted. A committee of importers was then formed and conference held on the dock, the result of which was that, all stock entered and duty paid would be subjected to a 20 per cent inspection instead of the proposed 100 per cent. Further, that shipments consigned in bond to interior ports would be examined at the interior ports, consignees having the option, in both instances, of supervising the method of packing.

Under the 20 per cent inspection the methods were improved. The stocks—rhododendrons, boxwood, roses and other plants, apparently arrived well packed and in good condition. The gladioli bulbs also seemed to be in good shape.

Philadelphia Seed Trade.

The seedsmen are engaged in a patriotic business, that of supplying the source of food to the nation. The demand last season was so great that they were compelled to do two years' business in one. From present appearances, they bid fair to duplicate last year's performance, provided the supply holds out. Although prices are in most cases fully double those of 1917, the buying has already commenced and is much stronger than that of last February.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., report very active buying, particularly in vegetable seeds. The doubling prices appear to make no difference, customers seeming to be well satisfied that their orders can be filled. Delayed shipments from their sources of supply is causing considerable inconvenience. Two nights a week is the overtime work at present.

The H. F. Michell Co. has made a good start in their vegetable seed department, many large orders having been received. Great improvements in the store, consisting of seed shelves and cases on the west side of the room, its entire length, with counters in front, will give them almost double the capacity for waiting on transient customers. Delayed incoming shipments are also hindering here. An extreme case is of seed shipped by freight from California last November, but not as yet in sight. They have found a good demand for florists' flower seeds.

I. N. Simon & Son are away ahead of last season at this time and anticipate a heavy business. The poor transportation facilities of the railroads are a great inconvenience in both receiving and shipping goods. Night work has begun here to try and keep even with the orders.

The Moore Seed Co. expects, from the way things are starting, that this year's business will exceed that of 1917. A scarcity of sweet corn is noted, with none of the late varieties to be had. Lima beans retail at 55 cents, and sweet corn 55 to 60 cents per quart.

The Robert Buist Co. enjoys a large southern trade and reports business coming too fast already. It appears as if it was going to be more strenuous than last year, as the end of some stocks is almost in sight.

Salzer's Jubilee.

One of the most elaborate catalogues of the season is that of the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., the jubilee issue in celebration of the firm's fiftieth anniversary. The feature of the front cover is Jubilee sweet pea, a rich salmon orange of the Spencer type. Established in 1868, its founder being John A. Salzer, a young minister who had taken up market gardening as a side line to help in the support of a large family, the firm's half century of splendid growth has reflected the high ideals and sterling integrity upon which the business was launched two generations before. The John A. Salzer Seed Co. today has one of the most up-to-date and commodious establishments of its kind in the United States, the main building occupying one and one-half city blocks with another large warehouse devoted to the wholesale business. The seed cleaning department, equipped with machinery of the most modern type, has a capacity of 100,000 bushels. The seed corn grading, drying and shelling department is one of the most complete in America. A large range of glass and extensive trial grounds are also maintained. About 500 persons were employed in the various departments last season, while the incoming and outgoing shipments for 1917 amounted to more than 25,000,000 pounds.

John A. Salzer, who died in 1892, was succeeded by his son, Henry A. Salzer. The latter, it will be recalled, was killed in an automobile accident, August 22, 1916.

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

H. W. Selby, Philadelphia, Pa., President;
C. W. Waid, Grand Rapids, Mich., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich., Treasurer.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—Members of the growers' association have appealed to Director-General McAdoo in an effort to facilitate movement of their crops. Express companies have been refusing to accept perishable greenhouse products for transportation, due to car shortage.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, February 18.—Mushrooms, home-grown, No. 1, 20 to 25 cents per carton; lettuce, box, 22½ to 25 cents; radishes, 50 to 60 cents per dozen bunches; celery, $1.25 to $1.50 per box; tomatoes, per 6 baskets, $2.00 to $2.50; cucumbers, per box, $1.75 to $3.75.

New York, February 18.—Celery, dozen stalks, 20 to 50 cents; cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.50 per dozen; mushrooms, 80 cents to $2.40 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per pound, 10 to 28 cents; lettuce, 3-dozen strap, 30 to 60 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.00 to $4.00.

Celery Markets.

The trade in northern celery showed little activity in producing sections. Storage stock is being cleaned up in Rochester, N. Y., district but is shipped nearly all on commission. Florida Golden was in heavy supply at shipping points and lower at $1.35 f. o. b. Sanford in 10 inch crates and $1.00@1.25 f. o. b. Palmetto in 10 inch crates; 12 inch crates sold 25 cents above smaller sizes. The Florida celery movement for the week was 101 cars, California shipped 172 cars and New York 46. Sales to jobbing trade in northern markets ruled lower this week at $2.25@3.15 in 12 inch crates in the rough, selling at $2.25@3.15 in 12 inch crates with fair demand. California Golden Heart declined 50 cents in leading markets, selling at $3.75@4.25 per crate in the rough. New York celery was weak, best available stock selling at $1.25@1.50 in New York and $2.50@3.00 in various smaller eastern markets with demand generally slow.—Market News, February 14, 1918.

Radishes Under Glass.

At this time of the year, radishes under glass are a good proposition. There are, no doubt, houses that have been shut off from heat, owing to scarcity of coal, and with the return of warmer weather, the radish offers a quick cash crop, as no expensive plants are required to get under way. Some claim it is an easy crop to grow, while others admit it is a difficult one; however, one large grower last year, when viewing a house of radishes grown by the writer, remarked: "This is one of the easiest things to handle if done right; yet, one of the hardest to do right that I know of." He is right. It is one of those simple operations that is easily missed. We have seen well-known growers make absolute failures of radishes.

There are several most important points to watch. The first one, we should say, is thorough moisture. We have demonstrated to our own satisfaction that seeds started in poorly watered beds, will continually prove a failure, no matter how much work is given later on. Motto: Get the moisture to the bottom before the radishes are up. Second, when up, they need a low temperature for a week or 10 days to hold them short, and induce them to bulb. After that, temperature can advance 10° to get more top and to hurry them along. Third, overcrowding spells failure. This is especially true on benches, as the crop is easily starved. On benches, we thin them carefully, say to one inch by three inches or a trifle more, but on solid beds we run a seed-drill every six inches and leave them alone. By testing the seeds, we can regulate the drill to get a proper stand and save all hand labor. Fourth, plenty of plant food is necessary. Radishes do not require as much humus as lettuce; in fact, we have done well with them on stiff soil, provided they are well fed. We found nothing better than pulverized chicken manure mixed with acid phosphate, say about one part phosphate to three or four parts manure. We apply the phosphate direct to the fresh manure and some dry earth to help absorb ammonia and dry the manure at once. Pulverized sheep manure will take the place of the poultry droppings.

Among the numerous varieties offered, we use Scarlet Globe only. As a good strain it fills the bill. We like to select some of the very nicest colored and best shaped radishes at each pulling, pot them in three inch pots and later on plant them in a bench or corner of house and raise our own seed. In February, we can raise a crop in five weeks; in March in about four weeks, and in April, in three weeks, sometimes in eighteen days. Radishes are easily injured by tobacco smoke. They are subject to green aphid; hence, fumigate or spray with nicotine.

MARKETMAN.

French Endive.

Witloof chicory, or French endive, a name given to the bleached shoots by the fruiterers, who import it from France, can be grown in this country equally as well. Seed is sown outside during May or June in rows 12 inches apart in deep rich soil. Water, if necessary, to insure a full growth by November. The roots are then lifted and leaves trimmed, leaving a growth of about one inch. Rub off any side shoots and cut off the slender bottom point of the root. The roots are then heeled in or planted upright in trenches so that the crown is eight inches below the surface of the ground. Put on a covering of six inches of leaves. After December 1, these roots can be brought into the greenhouses

DREER'S GRAND NEW CANNAS FOR 1918

Ten truly marvelous acquisitions, introducing new tones of color and showing the highest development in form and habit.

Carmine Beauty. Deep bright carmine flowers, freely produced high above the heavy dark-green foliage which has a narrow red margin. The flowers, while not as large as those of Olympic, are of a much brighter and more pleasing tone. 4½ ft. 75 cts. each; $7.50 per doz.

Cheerfulness. No more appropriate name could be given to this brilliant novelty. Its beautiful bright fire-red or deep orange flowers appear early and continue without interruption until frost. Add to the prevailing color a golden border and center with each petal flaked carmine-crimson and you may form some conception of this fascinating variety with its erect stems always topped with clusters of cheerful color held high above the foliage. 3½ ft. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Cloth of Gold. A very attractive dwarf, compact, growing, free-flowering golden yellow. 3 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Dazzler. Time and again the past season the dark green foliage of this variety has been hidden beneath the mass of clusters of deep fire-red flowers. The intensity of coloring and freedom of blooming coupled with compact habit, make this variety the peer of the best for bedding purposes. 3½ ft. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Golden Eagle. A wonderfully intense golden-yellow. Very free upright grower. The large flowers are produced in great clusters well above the foliage. 4½ ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Harmony. Great clusters of good-sized, well-formed geranium-red flowers are arranged on good stems in such a manner as to give the trusses an almost globular appearance. Altogether a dignified harmonious combination. 3½ ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Poppy. Intense poppy-red. Large perfect florets in good trusses over greenish-bronzy foliage. Rich and effective. 5 ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Salmon Queen. An entirely new color in Cannas. Rosy salmon-scarlet, blending to a rosy-carmine toward the center. The large substantial flowers are freely produced in great clusters high above heavy green foliage. Very effective in bedding. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Sensation. To get a sensational color-tone in a pink Canna is particularly noteworthy. Our first impulse was to call it "La France" because the color called to mind the La France Rose but the tone is even cleaner and purer; it being a lovely pale-rose. The foliage is a beautiful glaucous-green; the plant dwarf and compact. One of the most noteworthy additions to Cannas in recent years. 3 ft. 75 cts. each.

TYPE OF NEWER CANNAS.

Superb. This variety is unique in color and truly superb; having large, clean bright orange-scarlet blossoms of good substance, produced on strong stalks with glaucous-bronzy foliage giving a most pleasing effect. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

One each of the above Ten Novelties for $4.00.

New Cannas From Other Sources

We offer here eight new varieties, which after several years' trial have proven themselves worthy of our commendation.

Cleopatra. A striking beauty. Wonderful deep carmine-crimson flowers surmounting the dark glaucous-bronze foliage. This variety stands out strongly in effectiveness. 4 ft., 50 cts. each; $5 per doz.

Dragon. An incessant bloomer, continuing to produce new stalks of flowers until cut down by frost. Dark ox-blood red. 3 ft., 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Flag of Truce. A large flowered creamy-white, with faint pink dots on each petal. The general effect is white. Not as white nor as tall as Eureka but quite distinct and valuable. 4 ft., 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Gaiety. Reddish-orange mottled with carmine and edged with yellow. The tongue is yellow and densely spotted with carmine. 4½ ft. 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Lafayette. In some respects resembles the variety "Meteor" but the flowers are not quite as dark, stand more erect and the plant grows taller. 5 ft. 30 cts. each; $3.00 per doz.

Pocahontas. (Bronze-leaved Olympic.) Large oriental-red flowers borne on firm upright stems, just high enough above the foliage to show the entire head. The foliage is a dark bronze-green with emerald shadings; the ribs a darker bronze; one of the best recent introductions. 4 ft., 30 cts. each; $3 per doz.

San Diego. Chinese-orange or Persian-yellow. The crimped petals are remarkable for substance which enables them to withstand the hot summer sun without wilting. Another charm lies in the dark bronze color of the buds which harmonize with the rich bronze foliage. 4 ft., 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Varouna. We have tried this variety for several years and at all times the bright orange-scarlet flowers, combined with the good bronze foliage, has won our admiration. A free luxuriant grower, producing its flowers well above the plant. 4½ ft. 25 cts. each; $2.50 per doz.

One each of the Eight Varieties for $2.00.

in batches, and planted in soil under the benches. They should be planted erect and covered with a foot of soil. When the shoots are seen emerging through the top, which takes about four weeks, they are ready for market.

The white bleached growth is cut off and tied in bunches or packed loose. It is sold at retail in the fruit shops or fancy grocery stores at from 50 to 75 cents per pound. As this takes up the waste room under benches, it is well worth a trial, particularly by men who are giving vegetables a chance to help them out these strenuous times.

Cordwood Used on Farms.

Approximately 83,000,000 cords of firewood were used on the farms of the United States, according to estimates made by crop reporters of the Bureau of Crop Estimates in December, 1917.
Similar estimates made in December, 1916, indicated about 82,000,000 cords used. The average cords per farm was 12.6 in 1917 and 12.5 in 1916. The price of wood advanced 25 per cent during the year, from an average of $2.75 per cord in December, 1916, to $3.42 in December, 1917. On the basis of prices reported last December, the value of firewood used on farms of the United States is about $283,000,000, or $43.13 per farm. In these estimates a cord is reckoned as 128 cubic feet.

BUSINESS HOLDS UP WELL.

The St. Valentine's day trade was all that was expected, and probably better if the truth were known. Most stocks were cleared out fairly clean, and the business will show an encouraging increase over last year. Everything that was good had a chance to sell. Cut flowers in boxes were in demand, so also were good plants of cyclamen, cineraria, primula, etc. Made up plant arrangements in baskets at moderate prices were good property.
The specialty knick-knacks, such as paper cupid flower holders, heartshaped boxes, etc., sold well enough to justify their presence, besides giving individuality and character to the occasion.
The florists' stores featured the valentine idea strongly in their window decorations, and made the most of the "Say it with Flowers," and "Let Flowers be your Valentine" phrases, which no doubt helped in the final total.
Business so far for February is holding well up to previous records for volume, although the increased cost of doing business is an item that will demand attention when it comes to figuring profits.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY PROVES BOON.

St. Valentine's day, aided by favorable weather, proved a boon to local florists, and most reports are that business was double that of last year.
Violets again had a heavy run, and arranged with lily of the valley, freesias, myosotis, Sweetheart roses, sweet peas and other combinations, proved the ready sellers. The retail florists' club again proved that by co-operative advertising the best results are obtained. The heatless Saturday and Monday were loyally carried out by all the florists of the city, and with the exception of funeral designs, it was impossible to purchase flowers. Two days' business is therefore lost, which in the florist line, means forever and cannot be made up. Thousands of tons of fuel were saved, and it is again possible to purchase coal without any other "pull" than your bank roll. The shortage of coal has caused most of the growers to run their houses at lower temperature, which has held back the rose crop and certainly proved beneficial to the color, and also holds up the price, for the new list, taking effect February 18, quotes No.
1 roses at $20 per 100, No. 2 at $15, and No. 3 at $10—select red are held at $25, so that prices have not fallen much since Christmas. Carnation prices have been reduced to $4 per 100, but this is not caused from an overcrop but from the large line of bulbous stock, which no doubt reduces the sale of carnations, some of which were ticketed in the cut rate stores, February 16, at 19 cents per dozen, and if they keep on, will be in line with the popular song "Where do we go from here boys, where do we go from here?" Roses and lily of the valley are the only two items which are holding up, for with other stock, it is a question of what will you give for it? Anxiety is prevalent in regard to Easter lilies, for with the early date and reduction of heat in the houses, it is doubtful if 50 per cent of the average number will be in. This should prove a blessing to growers and retailers alike, for it will maintain prices. The growers of bedding plants have started early, and will endeavor to raise larger quantities of stock than ever. Reports from all over the country are received daily, that many of the smaller growers have allowed their houses to freeze up or have closed them temporarily, so that the demand from the larger centres should be unprecedented.

W. Wilson, of Woodstock, was a recent visitor who has been calling on the different growers. He approves of set prices on carnations and violets, of which he is a large producer, these prices to take effect in November and last until the following March or April, without any increase for the holidays.
His view is, that knowing what the flowers are to bring, the growers will be in a better position to do business, and that they will make more profit than with the fluctuations of prices as they are today. Go to it, Wilson!
follow your Uncle Woodrow, but it looks like being up against a stone wall when you try to get the growers in this region to co-operate in anything, but a helping hand on the uplift of holiday price lists. H. G. D.

JOHN G. ESLER, Secretary, Saddle River, N. J.

Terre Haute, Ind.

With pleasant, warm weather, there was a splendid demand for all kinds of flowers and plants for St. Valentine's day. The call for spring blossoms was enormous, while violets seem to be losing in popularity, with sales diminishing as each year goes by. Plants in bloom moved fast, especially cyclamens, primroses and cinerarias. All in all, the volume of business was about equal to that of a year ago, and much better than was expected, with so many of the young men with the colors.

S.

SALEM, O.—J. J. Gunn & Co. have filed a petition in bankruptcy. Increased expenses and high cost of fuel are given as the cause. Assets are said to exceed liabilities.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—The retail florists' association, at its annual meeting, elected the following officers for 1918: Chas. Schoenhut, president; Robert Scott, secretary-treasurer, who with W. J. Palmer, S. A. Anderson and Theo. Frank comprise the board of directors.

OWNERS' RISK SHIPMENTS.

Society of American Florists Takes Action.

The Meeting of Catalogue Men.

A large and enthusiastic meeting of publishers of horticultural catalogues was held at the new national headquarters of the S. A. F., 1170 Broadway, New York, February 21, at 2 P. M., to consider the question of liability attaching to a proper delivery of plants to purchasers. The subject was discussed from all standpoints, and the experiences of many of those present were related. It seemed to be the consensus of opinion, that when plants were properly packed, according to standard methods, and delivered to the transportation company, the responsibility of the shipper ceased, and the shipment while in transit was at the risk of the purchaser. The following resolution resulted, the vote on the same being unanimous:

"Resolved, That all wholesale shipments of perishable nursery and greenhouse stock, also seeds and bulbs, shall hereafter travel at the purchasers' risk, and it is recommended that this rule be adopted by all shippers."

The action taken was considered necessary, owing to existing conditions in express service at the present time.
It was also decided by unanimous vote, that the matter be referred to the committee on tariff and legislation of the society, Wm. F. Gude, chairman, Washington, D. C., with the request that all claims be filed in a block, placed in the hands of an attorney, and that the committee confer with the counsel of the American Association of Nurserymen, and that the committee bring to the notice of the transportation companies some facts as to the large amount of business being transacted by parcels post.

It was also suggested, that when damage to a shipment is visible or suspected, the consignee accept the shipment subject to examination by the express agent and the filing of a claim to cover the damage to be determined. It is a matter between the consignee and the express company, which company has already signed for the shipment as in good condition, and it is impossible for the consignor to make the adjustment necessary in the circumstances.

The gathering was a thoroughly representative one, and included delegates from some of the largest shipping concerns in the country.

JOHN YOUNG, Secretary.

Penn's Plea for Bigger Business.

Now that our publicity campaign is well on its way, may we not expect further encouragement for still greater results in this good work for the stimulation of better and bigger business from those who have not as yet subscribed to our fund? Your officers of the S. A. F. and members of publicity and finance committees and their auxiliary committees of the various districts and states are giving of their time and money towards this new movement, but the response is not up to the mark. Show your appreciation of this good work for greater sales of flowers by sending in your donation now, thereby not only increasing your own sales, but by also helping every branch of the florist business. Will you be satisfied to allow your neighbor to contribute to our publicity fund, and not do your bit?

Show your liberality by coming across now, without any solicitation on the part of any one, and make this, our first campaign, a big success. Send your checks to John Young, secretary, 1170 Broadway, New York.

For every dollar spent now, it will come back 10 for one, in the near future.

Get the thought now in the minds of the public for the need of more flowers and take advantage yourselves by tying up to our publicity movement in your own town through the daily press, and watch the results. We are out to raise $50,000 for our first campaign. We have raised $30,000 now. Let's go over the top, and you'll feel better for doing your duty in this fine noble work which the S. A. F. has undertaken to do.

APPRECIATION.

I want to take this opportunity of thanking you in behalf of the publicity and finance committees of the Society of American Florists for giving them valuable space in your paper and thereby helping our campaign to further its mission towards raising our $50,000 necessary to carry out our plans.

I have watched with great interest all articles written and published by you, as well as those of members interested in our great work, and I know the feelings of the officers and members of the S. A. F. are being expressed in the above sentiment.

HENRY PENN,

Chairman Publicity Committee.

National Publicity for Flowers.

Judging from the newspaper clippings being received by the promotion bureau of the Society of American Florists there was a large and general response from retail florists to the suggestions made that they make individual effort to draw to their own establishments the benefit of the publicity accruing from the page advertisement in the Saturday Evening Post. In many cases a large co-operative advertisements were used, the copy covering a whole page. The electrotypes supplied by the promotion bureau were very generally used and the advertisements stood out prominently, so that they could hardly fail to attract attention.

Those who have sent in orders for window and door transfers, and glass signs will please take notice that delivery of all has been promised in a few days, and all orders will be filled within a day following the receipt of the material. The stock of electrotypes provided for Easter and Mothers' day, and other occasions is now at hand, and all orders for the whole set, or single electros, are now filled.

The Wholesale Florists' Association of St. Louis has come across handsomely by a contribution of $25 from each member. Chairman George Asmus of the publicity finance committee reports the following additional subscriptions annually for four years unless otherwise noted:

THE RETAIL TRADE

Arm Shower Bunches.

At a recent wedding, the bride carried a shower bunch of white daisies and white sweet peas, which was loosely arranged and plentifully decorated with chiffon. There was no handle, there being as a finish here, a bunch of daisies in the reverse direction, the space between being filled with the fluffy bows of the chiffon. The bouquet was carried over the left arm, the shower falling over the front of the dress. The shower was of No. 2 satin ribbon.

The maid of honor's bunch was made in a similar manner, of yellow daisies and lavender sweet peas, with sprays of shaded lavender and yellow snapdragons reversed at the handle. This was decorated with figured, shaded yellow chiffon, and carried over the arm. Both bouquets were of good size, but not heavy, as the flowers, and plenty of them, were so loosely arranged. With the chiffon ribbons, they presented a finished appearance which is not seen to the best advantage in the illustration, as it was necessary to take a partial side view to show the arrangement at the handles.

Wolfe's Tuscania Memorial Wreath.

One of the most artistic floral designs seen in Waco, Tex., in many years, was the gift of Wolfe, the Florist, of that city, for the memorial services for the victims of the Tuscania. The wreath, representing the splendid handiwork of Mrs. Annie Brigance Wolfe, was of red, white and blue, the outer circle being of red carnations, the blue ribbon inserted ending on a field of calla lilies, the center of the design being a silken flag, while perched above was a dove. The design was a duplicate of that which easily won first prize at the recent Houston flower show.

Hotel Flower Stands.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

There is a demand among high-class hotels for flower stands for the sale of cut flowers and plants to guests and to supply decorative plants for the hostelry. Have such stands in leading hotels proved a paying proposition generally? What is considered a fair average rental on decorative plants on an annual basis, such stock to be watered as required, washed and dusted, and where locations prove unfavorable, changed every three or four weeks? I operate glass and carry a good line to meet the requirements, but in this locality during five months of severe weather, the cost of wrapping and delivering large cibotiums, etc., is considerable.

Toronto.

Conducting a flower stand in a hotel, and depending entirely on the work of the house and the patronage of the guests, has never been found very profitable. Even as a branch of a store with an established business, the stock of which, as well as help, can be drawn on at a moment's notice, never much more than pays expenses, and many such ventures are given up as unprofitable. When the business is conducted in a store on the ground floor of the hotel, with an entrance and show window on the street, and the rear, opening on one of the corridors, there is a much greater opportunity, as a goodly share of the transient and family trade of the whole city is a possibility.

One of the most successful stores of this description is that of J. J. Habermehl's Sons in the Bellevue-Stratford hotel, Philadelphia, Pa. This is one of the noted hostelries of the country. It is also the center of the social life of the city, as here are held the assembly balls, and nearly all other large public and private social events. At many large dinners, balls, receptions, etc., the decorations are very elaborate and amount to thousands of dollars. There are also a continuous run of luncheons, small dinners and after the theatre or opera parties, at which there are always more or less flowers required for decorating the table, corsages, etc.

John Habermehl, in recounting their experiences, when at first the business was a branch of their store and greenhouses at 22nd and Diamond streets, said that old customers would order flowers from them over the phone at the hotel store, but ask that they be sent from the greenhouses, as they were afraid they would cost too much if put up at the down town store. This hurt the trade somewhat, but on the other hand they gained perhaps more on account of the prestige of their position and the higher class trade they were catering to, and received orders from strangers, who wanting something choice, came to this higher class shop to get it. At times, the hotel business was a great advantage, particularly when they made all arrangements for the work directly with the guests or parties themselves. When, however, the management undertook the commission, and the flowers were billed to them at retail prices they placed a good-sized profit on the goods ordered, and as the flowers were known to come from the hotel florists, they were blamed for the high price.

ARM SHOWER BUNCHES.

Yellow Daisies, Lavender Sweet Peas and Snapdragons.

The hours of the hotel store are very long, there being so many late affairs and after the theatre dinner parties. Frequently a crowd would come in late and a number of tables would have to be fixed up at once. This meant late hours for the help and carrying a stock of flowers to meet such requirements. In such a large place, the permanent decoration of halls, dining rooms, parlors, etc., requires a lot of plants, and one man's time to look after them. All the work of cleaning, watering, etc., had to be done at hours that did not interfere with the guests in the use of the rooms.

For the rental of such stock, at least 75 per cent, or if possible, the entire cost of the plants used should be charged for the first month's hire, as two months is about the average life of stock which has so much to contend with. Customers often complain when charged $1 for the hire of a $10 palm, which Mr. Habermehl said was really not enough, as after being used 10 times, there was nothing for labor, hauling, damage, or the necessary accessories. He figures that it costs at least 25 cents each to transport decorative plants, counting from selection in greenhouse until they were returned. As many rent them out at from $3 to $4 a dozen, or $10 a load of three dozen, they are doing business at a loss. Far too many florists do business in a haphazard way, not keeping any account of their overhead expenses. Loads of plants that go out, should have every plant, pedestal and pot cover charged up, the list to be checked up on the return. It is very easy to lose a plant or pedestal here and there, particularly if some one about the building happens to set one aside to take home. Great care must be taken to charge up every plant that is used in renewing stock hired by the month, as only in this way can it be determined whether it was profitable. As to operating a flower stand in a hotel without a street or window display, Mr. Habermehl said he would not think of it, the ordinary business of the transient guests being too uncertain.

Chas. Stahl, another Philadelphia florist who makes a specialty of decorations and hotel work, believes there would be no money in this branch for those who do not have greenhouse facilities in which to recuperate the stock. To make the business of hiring plants profitable, there must be almost continuous use, carrying them from place to place, sometimes for a week before they get back home. Plants rented out by the month have to earn almost their full value the first month. He has found the imported palms to stand much better than the home grown stock, which he attributed to a better root growth. Palms from the other side are as a rule in smaller tubs in proportion to the size of the plant. The tubs, too, were filled with a mass of roots.

Next Week in the Flower Shop.

We are now approaching the greatest floral holiday of the year, it being only three weeks to Palm Sunday, which is the first day of the Easter week, that period which affords such a great opportunity to those prepared and ready to take advantage of it.

All energies should be utilized in preparation for this great event. All accessories, such as plant baskets, lattice boxes, plant tubs, fern and bulb pans, crepe paper, pot covers, mats, fibre and other ribbons, if not already in stock, should be ordered at the earliest possible moment. Old stock, if painted or gilded, can be made to look almost as good as new, and much of it worked off at this time.

If all plants have not been ordered or selected, this should be attended to at once. The general opinion among the weather vane of the trade, is that there will be a business fully as good as that of last year. It is not too early to display a well filled plant basket or two. Many who see them now, will remember when they want them later.

Have two good-sized lettered cards prepared with the inscription "Easter Sunday, March 31," one each for the store and window. They will have great advertising values.

Always have displayed a good-sized pan or two of Easter lilies; very often orders are received from such samples. A shallow tub, enameled white, with the bands gilded, is a good receptacle for lilies. Secondhand ones are often to be had from confectioners, which are then to be painted.

All stock sizes of wreaths and crosses should be mossed during spare moments. If the magnolia leaved pieces are running low, get busy on these and avoid night work later on.

The market is now full of flowers. Run a special each week using sweet peas, calendulas, carnations, or roses. A neatly gotten up card that Uncle Sam will carry for two cents should be sent to the customers' list weekly, calling attention to the special. All should carry the date of Easter. This is personal, up-to-date advertising, which will bring in far more than it costs.

Do not forget Paddy's day. It comes on Sunday this year, so the parade will take place on Monday. It is always worth while to feature the day, as there are public and private dinners, at which "green" carnations, shamrocks, etc., are more or less in demand.

The national publicity fund passed the $30,000 mark last week. Is your subscription in yet? Henry Penn, of Boston, spent this much to advertise his own business last year, while the whole trade and allied interests have been struggling since last August to raise $50,000. Peel off a five, ten or twenty from that roll and send it at once to John Young, secretary, 1170 Broadway, New York.

Lilium Giganteum.

As many growers of Lilium giganteum are in a quandary as to whether their plants are coming along just right for the early Easter, the writer made a visit to Harry Faust at Merion, Pa., who has for years made a specialty of forcing lilies for sale in pots at that time. His crop (he has some 12,000 bulbs), is making satisfactory progress. The first batch of 7,000 bulbs was potted December 10-15. These are now on an average about nine inches above the pots. Some smaller and stronger plants are seen, here and there, 12 to 15 inches above the pots. No buds are in sight as yet. Another lot of 5,000 bulbs was potted December 28-30. All were 7 to 9-inch stock. This last batch is coming along very fast, many of the most forward being seemingly nearly as far advanced as those potted two weeks earlier. The night temperature for all, has been, from the start, not less than 60°; now the mark is 65°, and up to 70°, during the day. When the sun is out, they get all that comes from this source, even if it gets up to 85° or 90°. Water is given freely when required, with syringe baths frequently on all sunny days. The water used has the chill taken off by means of a steam chamber, consisting of a six-inch pipe, eight feet in length, through which the 1¼-inch water main passes.

About five per cent of the potted bulbs either failed to start or have shown they will not amount to anything. These are thrown out as the plants are given more room, which is now being done. This percentage of loss is considered below the average. Mr. Faust is satisfied that he can easily flower all plants, in which the buds can be seen by opening up the foliage one month before Easter Sunday. They need not be even large enough to count. After they turn down, it takes about two weeks to finish them for market.

The illustration shows an average sized plant from each set of bulbs. The one on the right is a trifle the strongest, but the other, planted two weeks later, is fast catching up. The stick in the pot marks its exact height, on February 2. The photograph was taken February 9. The plant appears to have almost doubled in size since that time. Several plants measured gained an inch in height on February 11, which was a bright sunny day. Mr. Faust thinks that the second planting will catch up to and be in flower along with the others in good time for Easter delivery.

National Botanic Garden to Be Enlarged.

Wm. F. Gude, Washington representative of the Society of American Florists, supplies the information that, in an amendment to a bill (H. R. 9867), intended to be proposed by Mr. Gallinger, it is provided that within two years after the conclusion of the war, buildings shall be removed and the land known as East Seaton and West Seaton parks, shall be attached to and become a part of the national botanic garden, with permission to erect conservatories and other improvements of a permanent character.

PATCHOGUE, N. Y.—Frank Gleiche, of Medford, L. I., is reported to have purchased the range of Frank Niquet.

OTTAWA, ONT.—At a recent meeting, the advisability of forming a florists and gardeners' club here was discussed, the plan being well received.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

Early Preparations.

An early start is a very essential factor for the plants intended to produce high-grade blooms, whether the object in view is for exhibition or for first-class commercial purposes. Many of the very finest exhibition varieties have to be started early to insure their being full double blooms at their best as regards size, depth, fullness and petalage. The very early commercial varieties, to be profitable, also require early propagation and a long season of growth to ripen their wood for the maturity of the blooms in their respective season. A large number of growers do not take this into consideration and treat the varieties of every section alike, without any regard of the time of their blooming; consequently, we find every year poor examples of the early sorts sent into the markets at the same time as the mid-season varieties.

The large specimen pot plants are another class that need early starting to be able to get plants of the largest size. The best stock obtainable is none too good to start as cuttings to produce the class of plants mentioned. The first consideration, therefore, is to get the stock plants in the best of shape. Go over the stools and clean off any diseased leaves.

Then loosen up the surface soil a little between the plants. To encourage the stools to throw a good supply of cuttings, they should be given a light, sunny bench and the soil kept a little on the dry side, with a moderate degree of temperature maintained. A high temperature will produce cuttings quickly, but they will be thin and spindly, remaining in that condition for a long time.

One of the surest precautions against diseases of any kind that chrysanthemums are subject to is to watch closely even the smallest detail in the general routine of caring for the plants from start to finish. Do not allow them to become infested with insects before attempting to eradicate the pests. Nowhere does "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" apply more forcibly than in keeping chrysanthemums clean of insects.

While the method most generally used in propagating chrysanthemums is to run the cuttings in the usual propagating bed of sand, many of the private gardeners who are most expert in growing the large exhibition blooms do not insert their cuttings in the sand at all, but pot them direct into 2¼ or 2½-inch pots and set them on a bench where they can be kept a little close and syringed regularly until rooted. The short-jointed cuttings, before they have had a chance to lengthen out at all, are the best to select for this method of propagation. Trim the cuttings in the usual manner, removing any surplus foliage, and when potting set firmly and soak the cuttings well in. Use a fresh, finely sifted soil, with a liberal amount of clean, sharp sand added. After the first soaking in, they will stand for several days before needing water again, excepting an occasional syringing, but the soil should not be allowed to become dry enough to cause the cuttings to wilt. Strive at all times to keep the cuttings firm and plump until root action has commenced. Then as the young plants become established in the soil and are in need of shifting into larger pots they should be attended to, so as to guard against the wood becoming hard. The same selection of the cuttings for the propagating bed as that advised for the pots should be carried on, so that there will be a uniformity of grade with the plants throughout the season.

The sand best suited for propagating chrysanthemum cuttings is a medium coarse torpedo bank sand that will allow the water to pass freely through it and remain sweet. When a green scum forms quickly on the surface the sand is not suited for propagating purposes. The one most important point to consider in the propagation of chrysanthemums is never to allow the cuttings to wilt. The amount of water that has to be given by watering or spraying to prevent this makes it imperative that the sand be fresh and clean. Another advantage of early propagation is that when a variety is scarce it can be very readily increased by planting out the young plants and propagating therefrom. In addition to the exhibition sorts that should go into the sand at this time, the following early varieties should be propagated now. They are all short-jointed growers and need a long season of growth: Pink and White Ivory, Polly Rose, Smith's Advance, Golden Glow, Alice Day, Unaka, October Queen, Tiger, Early Rose, Monrovia, and Early Frost.

PLANT NOTES.

Easter Lilies.

The one important crop to the plantsman at this time is the lilies for Easter, for they must be properly timed to be at their best on that date. Easter this year comes March 31, and most growers like to see buds on their plants six weeks before that time. If the buds are not showing, the temperature will have to be increased to 70° at night. This will do the plants no harm if they have good sunlight during the day and are given all the ventilation possible, but the ventilators should not be opened unless the sun is shining and the thermometer at least at the same degree as the night temperature, and avoid all draughts possible, for the plants grown so warm are very tender. It is next to impossible to bring a lot of lilies in all together, so it is better to grow them so the slowest ones will be in on time, and move those that are more advanced into a cooler house and retard them, but this should not be done until the buds are nearly full grown. A lily retarded when the buds are forming is very difficult to start into active growth again, but after the first buds begin to turn white the plants can be moved into a house of 50° or lower and they come on slowly and will be of better quality than those grown warmer. The plants should be all tied to a neat stake as soon as the buds form, if not already done, for the buds add considerable weight to the top of the stems and they bend over very quickly. When the buds form, if the plants are pot bound, a watering of liquid manure will increase the size and substance of the flower. It will be a continued fight against aphids from this time on, and fumigation or spraying with nicotine will have to be regularly and continually practiced to bring the plants into bloom in the best condition.

Mignonette.

The grower will always find some plants in his beds of mignonette that produce exceptionally large spikes of bloom; the plants are more vigorous in foliage or the blooms of better form, and these spikes that show special characteristics should be selected and the seed saved, and in this way the grower can procure a strain which after two or three years' selection will be far ahead of any seed he can buy. This seed should, however, be saved before the bees and other insects are flying around and attracted to the houses, for they will cross-fertilize the flowers with undesirable strains. The seeds of mignonette do not ripen all at once, and as the pod remains open the ripe seed falls out and is lost, so special preparation must be made to receive it. Select the spikes that are to be saved for seed and tie them to strong stakes and mark them. The flowers should then be cross-fertilized by rubbing a camel's hair brush up and down the flowers. This should be done every bright day, so as to secure a thorough pollination. To catch and hold the seed, take a piece of heavy brown paper and roll it into a cone shape, and after winding a piece of cotton around the stem and stake below the flowers tie the small end of the cone-shaped paper around the cotton, the paper spreading upward so as to catch all the seeds that drop out of the seed pods. This can remain until all the seed has ripened, and as the spike grows the cross-fertilization continues, but care should be taken that no water gets into the paper to wet the cotton, and the seed must be gathered before the days become so warm that insects and bees are in the houses.

Sweet Peas from Cuttings.

New sweet pea varieties being always expensive and not always seeding freely, multiplication by cuttings may be made to increase the production from a certain amount of seed four or five fold. First of all, the mother plants must be grown short and stocky, for cuttings from weak plants would be worthless. When the plants are four to five inches high and have five to six joints make the cuttings with a good pair of scissors, just above the third joint. Scissors are better than a knife, on account of the fibrous stems, which, resisting the knife, are apt to tear or pull the roots. Remove the leaves from the cutting, except the upper two, and pot in sand in thumb-pots, taking care to place them near the edge. Water before and after potting, cover with glass; wipe the glass now and then, to remove superfluous moisture, and shade if too hot, though the cuttings like the light. They will be rooted in two or three weeks, when the glass may be removed, and a week later they may be repotted and treated the same as seedlings. Well cared for, they will give the same results and will bloom about the same time.

Violets.

With the approach of spring the violet plants grow rapidly and quantities of runners will spring from the old stools and propagation of the runners at this time will save much time and room later in the season when the spring stock is insistently demanding space, and much better plants are procurable from cuttings taken now than from divisions in May, when the days are often warm and the plants more or less exhausted. And if the young stock is procured now the old plants can be thrown out as soon as through blooming, securing available room at once. These runners or laterals root easily at this time in a propagating bench or can be taken off with a few small roots and either potted or placed in flats and will take but little room. And as early as possible placed in a cold frame. Treated in this manner, splendid stock may be obtained for planting out early, either in the field or in the houses, and with good strong stock to start with much better results are sure to be attained than by being obliged to plant small, weak stock later in the year. As the warm days approach the houses will need to be shaded, for the sun bleaches the flowers, and a watering of liquid manure will greatly assist in maintaining the size of the blooms and also keeping up the color.

Hydrangeas.

The greatest demand for hydrangeas is in May and June, and to have them in the best condition at that time the plants should be started before March 1. While they may be started later and forced harder, yet the plants so grown are not as sturdy and do not give so good satisfaction after they are placed on the porches. Start the plants in a cool house and if the wood has become dry in their winter quarters frequent syringing will assist in softening it. When they begin to grow do not crowd them. Crowding and too much heat are the principal causes of the long, ungainly plants so often seen. If they are grown in a cool house, with plenty of room, the plants will be sturdy and short-jointed, covered with beautiful foliage and shapely, and are a great ornament, which surely cannot be said of the tall plants with small foliage and bare stems toward the base. When the plants begin to grow rapidly they will require plenty of water, and during the warm, sunny days of spring, when the houses are hot, all the ventilation possible, and at this time watch carefully for red spider, which gather in great numbers on the young growths and blooms and quickly spoil them. If they appear, syringe heavily until they are overcome. Keep the plants staked and tied as soon as required.

Floricultural Advancement.

Paper by Edward Williams, Grand Island, read at the annual meeting of the Nebraska State Florists' Society, Lincoln, January 15.

The subject, "Advancement of Floriculture," having been assigned to me, I will endeavor to give you a brief synopsis of the past year, as it enters my mind at this time. The year 1917, from what I can gather, was the best year, from a business standpoint, the florists have enjoyed. Several new varieties of roses for cut flowers were introduced, which will be grown extensively this coming year. The rose, Columbia, which I have had the pleasure of seeing, seems to me to be ideal. E. G. Hill may well be proud of this addition to the rose family. Ophelia Supreme, by Dailedouze Bros., is another which ought to do well with all of us, as the parent rose, Ophelia, is an easy doer. So they claim for this rose.

In my estimation, the Pink Killarney is on the decline. This season will be the last of them for several growers. Many are growing the Shawyer for their leading pink rose, which is a superb sort if mildew can be kept away from it.

I do not believe that our list of carnations can be improved upon for the coming season. While we have for red that wonderful Nebraska, which, in my estimation, will be the leader in its color for years to come, there are Belle Washburn, Mrs. C. W. Ward, Cottage Maid, the Enchantress family, Matchless and White Wonder.

There are several new varieties in the chrysanthemums for pot culture as well as cut flowers, which we will hear from later. The list is so large that I will not endeavor to name them. What we want to grow are the best ones for average returns, the ones that bring in the money to help pay the coal bills, and leave the show varieties to the fellows who do not have to pay.

Imported plants were very scarce this past season, hence we have had to fall back on what we had ourselves. In my case, the cyclamens were the leaders. They sell themselves. The last Christmas demonstrated that. There is no question but that we are keeping pace with the times when it comes to bringing in new varieties, and building modern plants, which are essential to growing good plants and cut flowers. Now, how about the returns? Getting right down to brass tacks, are we getting the returns? I have dwelt on this subject before, and I am afraid that you will begin to think that I am a crank on the subject, but, nevertheless, I am going to say a word or two. Are we getting as good a return from our investment as good a return from our investment as we would if our money was invested in another commercial line? You will answer me by saying that it all depends upon the man at the helm. True, to a certain extent. There is hardly another line of legitimate business that carries the risk we do, hence our remuneration should be accordingly. What did we face last fall when it was time to lay in our winter supply of coal? This winter is taxing the energy of every grower, large or small, to conduct his business along economical lines. We were face to face with an increase of from 40 to 50 per cent on our coal, a problem that looked gigantic, and the only way we can meet it is to adjust our prices to meet the advanced expenses. Some of us secured our winter supply, others did not, and they have had to suffer the consequences by having to close a part of their ranges or discontinue doing business altogether. Speaking for myself, I figured as nearly as I could and prorated the extra expense through the season, compared with last season, and have endeavored to get better prices for my commodities.

I find that adhering to our method of allowing 20 per cent to our agents means quite a good deal for a season and helps meet our extra expense. I think that if we can get an even break in a season like this one we can congratulate ourselves.

The profession, as a rule, is a patriotic lot, and we are called upon a little more often than others for donations of different character, hence our generosity sometimes gets a little the best of us.

We are confronting right now a problem that we must take heed of, and must govern ourselves accordingly. I will only say this much, which ought to suffice for those of us who have kept watch of what has been done in our behalf, that if there is a florist in Nebraska who is not a member of the S. A. F. he ought to be, and if I have my way he will be a member before this year rolls around, for he is getting the benefit of something that he is not paying one cent for—like a boy peeking through a fence at a baseball game, which he could not do if the people on the inside did not pay to get in.

There are many more florists forcing vegetables this winter than ever before, and they will force vegetable plants for early spring planting and the returns for them will help towards meeting the extra expenses.

The people, as a whole, expect to pay more for flowers and plants than they did a year ago. They know that the expense of producing them has advanced to a degree that it would be suicide to try and hold them at the old prices. I do not believe that the government means to prohibit people from buying what they deem necessary. A funeral without flowers is the same as trying to dance without music. A sick room without a plant or a bouquet is like a death chamber. You will hear people call the product of our business a luxury. Far from it. It is just as essential to have flowers for certain occasions as it is to live. The past year has brought new thoughts to use in our line, the same as to others. What we have to do is to adjust ourselves to the conditions; not overdo it, but try and add to in a way that will pull us through without scaring us.

There are many new things in sight for us the coming year. We have progressed sanely, and it is up to each individual to proceed along lines such as will strengthen our standing in a commercial way; also along the conserving way. Since we met a year ago, there has more transpired than we care to tell or repeat.

I sincerely hope that when we meet again we can smile with the smile that is true and with a handclasp that is firm, with the conditions that the flag which bears the stars and stripes of a united country shall have shown to the world that democracy means peace, and that we will have it.

Fern Scale Control.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Will you kindly advise me of a remedy for a small white scale that attacks the Boston fern and turns the fronds white or yellow, as shown by the specimens enclosed.

C. E. F.

Oklahoma.

This particular scale insect is, unfortunately, a rather common pest on Boston ferns, and also attacks other varieties, doing much injury. Either dipping in, or spraying with, a solution consisting of half an ounce of whale oil soap and one teaspoonful of the 40 per cent solution of nicotine to one gallon of water, will help to overcome this trouble, but the treatment will have to be repeated several times in order to be effective. After using this solution on the plants the latter should be protected from sunshine for a day, as the soap will be likely to injure the young leaves unless they are protected from the sun.

T.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.—Local florists have formed an organization with the following officers for the ensuing year: G. H. Heels, president; C. Zeestraten, vice-president, and C. Hahne, secretary.

STERLING, ILL.—The Sterling Floral Co. has entered suit for $3,000 damages against the Northern Utilities Co., claiming that gas from the defendant's mains escaped through the ground and killed plants.

American Gladiolus Society.

AGGRESSIVE METHODS ADOPTED.

On February 1, the American Gladiolus Society at the direction of its president, A. E. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind., launched a five months campaign for membership. The present increase in garden interest manifesting itself throughout the country as a result of the nation's call for food production to tillers of the soil, increased the number of amateur gardeners in this country over 600 per cent. The next step in our gardening enthusiasm will be the taking up of "Flower Growing as a Hobby and Relaxation from the Stress of War." The American Gladiolus Society has long been active in fostering intelligent garden activity under proper lines, and this campaign will be not alone a membership campaign in the sense of having for its sole object the increase of members, but will as well undertake the fostering of increased gladiolus growing on the part of the American public.

The campaign will be in able hands. The services of Joseph J. Lane have been secured, and he will lead the membership committee in their activity. Mr. Lane is known throughout the country among garden lovers through his active association with a number of horticultural societies and floral bodies. He was one of the founders of The American Dahlia Society, and its first secretary. His aggressive methods in the early days of this organization did much to establish it on a solid footing on which it exists today. He secured over 300 members in the first three months of the organization's existence.

A committee is being appointed comprising a large number of the leading gladiolus dealers throughout the country, and all interested are invited to get in touch with the chairman, or write to President Kunderd. Detail plans will be promulgated through bulletins issued from time to time, and results of the campaign announced as it progresses. The executive committee has authorized the waiving of the membership fee for the period of the campaign, which is until June 1. Anybody joining in that time need not pay the initiation fee, but simply the annual dues of $2 per year.

Arrangements have been made with Madison Cooper, Calcium, N. Y., who is treasurer of the society, to mail his paper, The Flower Grower, to all members during the life of their membership. This publication, formerly The Modern Gladiolus Grower, has been enlarged in size, and broadened in contents so as to become extremely valuable to every flower lover, particularly to those who are interested in the culture of the gladiolus.

Professor A. C. Beal, of Cornell University, is secretary of the society, and is undertaking to carry on an extensive drive for members from his office, and has already produced a splendid increase. President Kunderd wishes it to be understood that he believes this year to be a most logical one for intensifying the work of all floral societies, because of the conditions facing our country at the present time. Flower lovers are people of sentiment as well as action. Those who remain at home will need to continue their flower gardening as well as increase their vegetable and food plantings for the poise that the occupation will bring to them.

New York Federation of Societies.

The winter meeting of the New York Federation of Horticultural Societies and Floral Clubs was held in Ithaca in connection with farmers' week, February 12, 1918. The lectures were much better attended than had been anticipated and 27 delegates were present from the New York Florists' Club, Buffalo Florists' Club, Rochester Florists' Club, Syracuse Rose Society, Syracuse Florists' Association, New York & New Jersey Plant Growers' Association and Binghamton Florists' Association.

At 9 a. m., C. L. Thayer, instructor in floriculture, gave an illustrated lecture on "Some Herbaceous Perennials of Commercial Value." He was followed by Dr. A. C. Beal on "What Research Can Do for the Florist." Dr. Beal reviewed in a general way, the work which the experiment stations have already done and outlined those types of commercial work which he considered to be of the most importance to the commercial florist. Dr. L. M. Massey was prevented because of illness from giving his paper on "Diseases of Roses"; Dr. Donald Reddick, of the department of plant pathology, spoke for Dr. Massey. Professor F. W. Morse, of Amherst, Mass., who was to have lectured, was also prevented from being present, and Professor E. O. Fippin, of the department of soils, gave a very valuable talk on "Soils for Greenhouse Crops."

At 1 p. m. a luncheon at the Clinton house was given the delegates by the department of floriculture and proved a most enjoyable occasion. At 3 p. m. a round table discussion was held on the subject of "How the Agricultural College Can Best Serve":

(a) The Cut Flower Specialist — Robt. Simpson, Clifton, N. J.

(b) The Plant Specialist—Anton Schultheis, College Point, N. Y.

(c) The Retailer—W. A. Adams, Buffalo, N. Y.

The business meeting, which was to have been held at four o'clock, was postponed until the flower show in New York next month, because of the absence of President F. R. Pierson, and also because the Buffalo and Rochester delegates were obliged to leave earlier than they had anticipated because of a change in the train schedule. This meeting, however, will be held in New York on Monday afternoon, March 15, at four o'clock.

The following delegates were present: W. F. Bultman and Frederick Scharoun, Syracuse, N. Y.; R. J. Roskelly, Ithaca, N. Y.; E. H. Stetmeyer, J. J. Riebling, E. W. Werick, O. J. Klingenmerer, Wm. L. Kasting, W. A. Adams, and J. M. Fiebelkorn, Buffalo, N. Y.; Anton Schultheis, College Point, N. Y.; Frank H. Traendly, Flatbush, N. Y.; H. S. Morgan, Auburn, N. Y.; H. E. Bates, Rochester, N. Y.; Herbert H. Hill, and G. Guthrie Marvin, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Robert Simpson, Clifton, N. J.; James W. Heacock, Wyncote, Pa.; A. M. Fancher, Binghamton, N. Y.; John L. Robert, Syracuse, N. Y.; George W. Arnold, Ensenore, N. Y.; A. C. Beal, David Lumsden, C. L. Thayer, S. C. Hubbard and David Murray, Ithaca, N. Y.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS IMPROVE.

With all restrictions taken off regarding closing on heatless Mondays, the fuel commissioners granting an extra two hours for closing of the flower markets, and the severe cold weather broken, everything is beneficial to all. Business is improving and stock never looked better. Carnations were never finer and sell at $2, $3, $4 and $8 a hundred. American Beauties are scarce and poor; 18-inch sell for $3 a dozen, fancy $6 a dozen, while Killarney Queen, Ophelia, Hadley, Sunburst, Sunburst sports, Shawyer and Maryland go at 12½ and 16 cents for the best. Sweet peas are good with a number of poor shipments arriving at 50 cents to $2 a hundred. Wallflowers, myosotis, English primroses and English daisies are in great demand. Pansies and yellow marguerites are selling slowly. Cattleya orchids are selling fair at $3 and $5 a dozen.

NOTES.

Thomas Roland has an extra large stock of flowering plants for Easter, among them camellias and Peterson and Roland begonias, Dorothy Perkins, Hiawatha, Lady Gay and Crimson Rambler rose bushes, bougainvilleas, genistas, small heather plants and a large number of hybrid roses.

Mann Bros., who for years have raised lilies, lilac, rhododendrons, hardy azaleas and kalmia plants for the Easter trade, will not have any this year on account of coal shortage, having closed down four of the houses.

Harold Ryan, who has taken over the Hoffman greenhouses in Cambridge, is sending to the market Roman hyacinths and varieties of tulips and jonquils. He is also growing some specimen strelitzias.

Business is improving at Penn The Florist's store and the demand for funeral work is very heavy. The windows were attractively arranged with azaleas and cherry trees for Washington's birthday.

Mr. Greenlaw, salesman for the S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia, Pa., is in town for a few days after a splendid trip through the middle west and Canada, where business is very good.

The W. W. Edgar Co. has an extra good line of plants for the Easter trade. Some very good lilies, Avell grown French hydrangeas and rose bushes of all kinds are featured.

A. M. Davenport's houses look better than ever with expectations of a large Easter trade. Among his stock he has Genista praecox, hypericum, and a large variety of bulbs.

Edward Welch's wholesale store is a very busy place these days. Any time you go there, the whole force is busy shipping orders. He reports business very good.

James Galvin, traveling salesman for H. M. Robinson & Co., has returned from a trip through Maine and New Hampshire where he reports business very good.

William Gilson has returned to his work at the market after a week's illness with the gripe.

B. A. Snyder & Co. had a busy week and their line of flowers are among the best in Boston.

George Noyes, salesman for Samuel Goddard, is confined to his home with the measles.

John J. Cassidy continues to do a good business with two of his clerks sick. S. K. G.

Providence, R. I.

BRISK DEMAND AND PLENTIFUL SUPPLY.

Trade during the past week has been brisk and stock plentiful. Bulbous flowers are coming strong and there is a good sale for what is offered in pots. Easter lilies are plentiful and find a good market. Carnations are good and move nicely. Roses are the only short item. Violets are coming better than at any time this winter. From all appearances the Easter business will be good and the shortage of supply will be small. From the present indications there will be ample for all requirements. Local stores stimulated the Washington's birthday demand with some very attractive windows.

GOOD TRADE AT FINE PRICES.

Business during the past week has been very good. Valentine's day trade was particularly heavy and fine prices were maintained. Funeral work was also unusually heavy. There is still quite a shortage in a great many lines. Roses are still on the scarce list and are commanding high prices. The heavy shipping call is keeping the supply on the short side continually. Good American Beauties, and it must be said they are extra fine, are bringing $4 to $5 per dozen. Russell is a scarce item, this week, and prices are hard to quote. Shawyer is coming in more freely and so is Killarney. Radiance and Hadley are in short supply. There are practically no Cecile Brunners in the market. Ward is very good and Irish Fire Flame is becoming more prominent. Carnations have dropped $1 per 100, owing to the heavy spring cut coming along. The quality is very good and also the demand. Enchantress Supreme is the most popular variety in this market. Cattleyas are plentiful with a steady demand. There are very few phalaenopsis being offered and there is no lily of the valley to be had at all. Gardenias are in liberal supply and sell steadily at good figures. There is a very heavy supply of fine freesias to be had and they meet with a continuous demand. Narcissi are also in heavy supply and prices have taken quite a drop. Lilium giganteum and longiflorum are coming in slowly and are bringing $4 per dozen for good stock. Snapdragons are scarce at $1 per dozen. Tulips and hyacinths come in slowly and bring steady prices as pot plants, as this seems to be the only way the public will buy this stock. Sweet peas of the finest quality and varieties of the latest winter flowering Spencers, are in good demand at $2.50 per 100 stems. In pot plants, rhododendrons are taking the place of azaleas and meet with great favor. Boston ferns sell well, as do cinerarias and Primula malacoides. Very few cyclamens are seen. Asparagus and ferns are scarce with a strong demand. Fruit blossoms in many colors are to be had. Large quantities of cut Acacia mollissima is also arriving.

NOTES.

With the sale of the Sidney Clack range of greenhouses at Mayfield to M. Snutenhauser, of Schwerin Bros., the trade sees the retirement of one of the best liked and best informed men connected with the business in this city. Mr. Clack feels that he is entitled to a long rest from business cares and takes with him the good wishes of every one in the trade, that he may long enjoy the fruits of his labor. The new proprietor intends to erect a large retail store on the premises, located on the state highway south of this city.

The Art Floral Co. made elaborate window displays for Valentine's day. Each window contained a large heart made of red immortelles and red ruscus leaves. This was illuminated from behind with red electric lights, giving a very beautiful effect. Each heart was eight feet high and was the work of J. W. Williams, who was generously complimented for his good work. Manager Matraia reports Valentine's day business the best ever.

Manager J. A. Axell, of the E. W. McLellan Co., reports the heaviest Valentine's day shipping in the firm's history. This firm is now shipping over 400 dozen bunches of violets to northern and eastern points daily. While the cut of roses is a large one it is not adequate to meet the demand of this firm's business. They are also shipping freesias and other seasonable flowers, including a heavy cut of asparagus and ferns.

Manager Walter A. Hoff, of MacRorie-McLaren Co., says his firm is more than pleased with the patronage their new store in the Palace hotel is receiving. Only the finest grade of stock is handled and it meets with ready sale. The firm is always receiving splendidly grown pot stock from their nurseries at San Mateo. The watchful eye of Supt. Andrew McDonald is accountable for this.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. had a busy week on funeral work, owing to the death of one of our most prominent citizens. Every design was of the most costly order, and the heavy call for orchids taxed the supply for a few days. They say that the past week was a splendid one for business, the only complaint being that they are unable to secure enough stock for their demands.

The Bessie Boston Dahlia Farms, at San Mateo, of which Mrs. E. Lymbery is manager, is now busily engaged in filling orders for dahlias. The firm's attractive new catalogue has been mailed and she says the volume of business being received far exceeds her expectations. All her new prize winners are being listed this season.

Frank Mills, of Palo Alto, was a recent visitor to this city, calling on his many customers. Mr. Mills is one of the very few growers who has maintained a fine cut of lily of the valley during the past few years. He reported a heavy shipping to the north for Valentine's day.

H. Plath, of The Ferneries, is disposing of great quantities of foliage and flowering plants. His motor trucks may be seen in different parts of the city daily, delivering to his customers. He says his Easter stock never looked better and has booked heavily for that occasion.

G. Rossi & Co., have a fine lot of rhododendrons that will be ready for Easter. The plants are a mass of bud, the chief variety being Pink Pearl. They also have a large stock of birds' nest ferns in different sizes which are selling rapidly.

Some of the finest Spencer sweet peas being received by this market are coming from the Western Nursery Co., of Redwood City. This is their first season with sweet peas, and their success has induced them to plant largely another year.

The Elmhurst Floral Co. is sending some of the best Shawyer roses seen in this market for a long time. Okada Bros., the proprietors, have their range of glass always in first class condition, testifying to their ability as rose growers.

The many friends of Percy Ellings, of the Lynch Nursery Co., will be glad to hear that he has recovered from his recent illness and is in harness again. He is now compiling the firm's chrysanthemum catalogue.

Gus Berkman, prominent in the trade in Seattle for many years, has returned home after a long visit to his many friends in this city. He came south for the benefit of his health and returns fully recovered.

The United Flower & Supply Co. is handling a heavy cut of freesias. Margolds and daisies are considered among their specialties. They say that the business for Valentine's day was very satisfactory.

The Ashland Nursery at San Leandro, which specializes in carnations, is sending in a large cut of excellent quality. Their stock is eagerly sought by the flower buyers at the wholesale market daily.

Podesta & Baldocci have maintained a splendid showing of orchids in their Grant avenue store all week. Many finely flowered cattleyas were shown and disposed of for Valentine's day.

M. A. Poss, the San Mateo florist, was a visitor during the week and says business is good with him. He says the recent rains have opened up the plant business with a rush.

Miss Groeche, the popular bookkeeper of the Art Floral Co., has left for a short vacation with her father, Fred Groeche, the well-known nurseryman of Santa Rosa. G. N.

Massachusetts Agricultural College.

S. J. Goddard, of Framingham, Mass., addressed the M. A. C. Florists' and Gardeners' Club February 19. The meeting was held in conjunction with the regular meeting of the Northampton and Holyoke Florists' & Gardeners' Club. He read a short paper on carnations and there followed an interesting discussion. During the evening it developed that Mr. Goddard does little syringing, as he believes syringing causes the spread of rust and other diseases. If the plants are sprayed with a salt solution in spring and fall, red spider, etc., will be destroyed and enough salt will remain on the plants from the fall spraying to keep them clean until spring. In answer to the question of the reason of long stems and large flowers, he said he believed this was due to using cow manure.

After the meeting, Mr. Goddard judged the various vases of carnations. Butler & Ullman, of Northampton, were awarded first for a vase of Benora. Other exhibitors were F. D. Keyes & Son, of Florence; G. H. Sinclair of Holyoke, and R. S. Carey of Holyoke. Mr. Goddard exhibited a vase of new seedlings and also a wonderful vase of Laddie. This is an exceedingly large sort and is said to be of value commercially as well as an exhibition flower. There does not seem to be any great trouble from splits, and it is said to average from 12 to 15 flowers per plant. After the meeting, refreshments were served by the M. A. C. club. C. E. W.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The monthly meeting of the above society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, N. Y., February 13, at 2 p. m. There was an excellent attendance, with President Robert Jones in the chair. Chas. Young and Wm. Milstead, of Glen Cove, were elected to active membership. The president appointed the following to act as judges for the monthly exhibits: Jos. Adler, Wm. Noonan and Frank Watson. Their awards were as follows: One pot of cyclamens, Thos. Twigg, first; one pot of cyclamens, certificate of culture to Robt. Jones. Mr. Jones, upon request, gave a short talk on his method of growing cyclamens, which proved very interesting and instructive. An essay written by H. B. Dornier entitled, "What the Universities Are Doing for Floriculture," was ably read by Ernst Westlake. A letter of thanks was ordered sent the author. It was moved and approved that the subject of holding shows for the coming year be laid on the table. Competitions for the next monthly meeting to be held on March 13, at 2 p. m., are: One pot or pan of tulips, any variety, one plant of cinerarias and three heads one plant of cineraria and three heads HARRY GOODBAND, Cor. Sec'y.

RICHMOND, IND.—The greenhouse at Glen Miller park, recently destroyed by fire, will be rebuilt.

CLEVELAND, O.—William H. Beaumont, pioneer florist, whose father opened the first flower shop in this city about 50 years ago, died here recently.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Frank N. Doubleday.

By a cable message, received at the office of the Doubleday, Page Publishing Company of New York and Garden City, February 22, it was learned that Mrs. Frank N. Doubleday, wife of the publisher, had died the previous day in Canton, China, of apoplexy. Accompanied by her husband, she left her home in Glen Cove, L. I., N. Y., December 9, 1917, for a tour of the Far East, on a special mission for the Red Cross. Mrs. Doubleday was born in Chicago, 52 years ago, the daughter of Liverius and Alice De Graff. She had written a number of books on gardening and nature under the nom de plume of Nelte Blanchan.

A. F. F.

William F. Harkett.

William F. Harkett, a well-known florist of Dubuque, Ia., and for a number of years associated with his father, W. A. Harkett, in the management of the Harkett Floral Nursery in that city, died February 17, aged 43 years. The deceased was one of the most popular young business men of the city which had been his home since birth, and his death brings sincere regret to a large circle of friends. Surviving are his parents, a sister, Miss Flora, and two brothers, Arthur and Charles, all residing in Dubuque.

ST. JOSEPH, MO.—Frank Stuppy has joined John Furrow in Oklahoma for a hunting trip.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—The March meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana will be held at the Cumberland establishment of the Bertermann Bros. Co.

MARSHFIELD, ORE.—The Marshfield Florist Co. reports excellent weather conditions, free from snow, and trade active enough to move everything grown.

MR. STERLING, KY.—A. J. Humphries, florist, has brought suit for $800 against the Kentucky Natural Gas Co. for loss of stock from freezing due to low gas pressure.

OTTAWA, ONT.—The executive committee of the Canadian Horticultural Association will visit this city, March 18, to make arrangements for the annual convention to be held here in August.

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—The following officers of the New Haven Horticultural Society have been elected for 1918: G. A. Cronic, president; A. E. Dady, vice-president; W. J. Rathgeber, secretary.

HARTFORD, CONN.—Doogue & Co. have filed a petition in bankruptcy and the affairs of the concern will be wound up February 15, after an existence of three years. A settlement of 25 cents on the dollar is offered.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—To facilitate shipments, Robert Groves, of Adams, has moved his packing and shipping departments to 43 Lyman street, this city, from which address all business will be handled until further notice.

WACO, TEX.—The many friends of T. J. Wolfe, who has been quite ill for about three months, will be glad to hear that he is improving. He says that business is good; in fact, too good for a sick man.—Visitors: James McHutchison, New York, on an extended western trip; E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; Robert Newcomb, Chicago; Frank X. Stuppy, St. Joseph, Mo.

THE garden movement promises to assume large proportions this year. Everyone in the trade should prepare for it and help.

SUPPLY men are complaining of the scarcity of imported goods, leading one to infer this is the opportunity of the age for the home producer.

Chrysanthemum Demand.

Elmer D. Smith, the well known chrysanthemum specialist, of Adrian, Mich., in a recent letter says: "Trade for chrysanthemum plants and cut flowers in 1917 was the best we have ever experienced, much to our surprise."

Chrysanthemums, lilies and many other plants can be grown to perfection with very little artificial heat.

American Rose Society.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society held a meeting at Hotel Collingwood, New York, February 21, 1918, at 2 P. M. A report was received from the committee appointed by President Hammond to confer with the New York flower show committee February 5, regarding the transfer of the spring exhibition and the annual meeting of the American Rose Society, from St. Louis to New York. The committee recommended that the American Rose Society co-operate with the New York flower show committee in holding its spring exhibition in New York, the flower show committee guaranteeing to provide suitable space for the exhibits, the premium lists and the general direction of setting up the exhibits. The American Rose Society is to name the judges. The report of the committee was accepted and ratified. W. R. Pierson and Robert Simpson were appointed to look after the interests of the American Rose Society in connection with the exhibition.

Judges were appointed for plant and cut flower exhibits. Robert Pyle, West Grove, Pa., was appointed on the central committee of rose test gardens. An application for life membership was received from Mrs. Charles Frederick Hoffman, president of the International Garden Club, which received favorable action. The secretary reported 56 life members and 998 annual members whose dues are paid for 1918. The secretary also reported that notices of the change in the time and place of the annual meeting and the spring flower exhibition are being mailed to members; also that all members whose dues are paid for 1918 will be given entrance tickets to the flower show at any time during the period, March 14-21.

THE ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the American Rose Society will be held at the Grand Central Palace, New York, March 16 at 3 P. M., in connection with the New York flower show. No tickets will be sent out for this exhibition to save the unnecessary payment of war tax but membership cards for 1918 will be good for admission free upon presentation at the secretary's office. All members are urged to be present at this meeting if possible.

E. A. WHITE, Secretary.

Illinois State Florists' Association.

CHAMPAIGN TRAIN SCHEDULE CHANGED.

The annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association will be held in the Floricultural Building, University of Illinois, Urbana, March 5-6. A very instructive programme has been prepared and every florist in the state is invited to attend and take part in the discussions.

Attention is called to the following changes in the original train schedule, effective February 24: The Chicago party will leave the Park Row station, via the Illinois Central railroad at 8:45 A. M., instead of 9:15 A. M., as previously planned. March 5, due at Champaign, 11:50 A. M. Other trains are as follows:

Lv. Chicago.	Ar. Champaign.
2:00 A. M.	5:35 A. M.
7:30 A. M.	12:01 P. M.
4:50 P. M.	8:45 P. M.
6:15 P. M.	9:25 P. M.
8:15 P. M.	11:20 P. M.
11:00 P. M.	3:30 A. M.

The fare in each direction to Champaign, the railroad station for Urbana, is $2.52, plus 20 cents war tax. No reduction is made for the round trip. There is no party rate.

THE PROGRAMME.

The programme for the opening session, starting at 2 P. M., will include an address of welcome, by Professor J. C. Blair; reports of the officers; committee on fuel investigation, by George Asmus; reports on experimental work, by Dr. Lehenbauer; general discussion, nomination and election of officers and invitations for the fall flower show. In the evening there will be an entertainment programme under the auspices of the Floricultural Club of the University of Illinois, including a talk by Professor Dorner. The second day of the convention will be devoted to unfinished business and inspection of the greenhouses. All florists are invited to be present.

I. L. PILLSBURY, Pres.

New York Flower Show.

There was a meeting of the schedule committee, February 16, at the office of the secretary, 1170 Broadway, at which the preliminary schedule of prizes was revised preparatory to the publication of the final schedule, copies of which may be had upon application to the secretary.

The American Rose Society has agreed to waive the ruling as to one pinch only being allowed in the classes for 100 roses, and in the classes covering rose displays. In all other classes the rules of the society prevail. It is also announced that the society will offer its gold and silver medals under the rulings usually applying. A special prize of $50 has been offered by Mrs. Hobart Warren for the best red rose not yet disseminated.

The early ordering of trade tickets is urged. The prices are: For 100 or more 20 cents each, less quantities 25 cents each. No names will be printed on the tickets this year, but purchasers may rubber stamp their names on the backs, if desired.

JOHN YOUNG, Secretary.

Import Licenses.

Effective February 16, 1918, President Wilson's import proclamation requires license for all articles from all countries, according to the Official Bulletin. To avoid congestion of traffic at docks and on railroads crossing the border, it was found necessary to issue three temporary general licenses, the second and third of which will be revoked at 12 o'clock p. m., March 4.

The first general license, the date of expiration of which has not been determined, covers all commodities from Canada except those covered by the president's import proclamation of November 28, 1917; the second covers all goods in transit from all countries on February 16, except goods covered by the same proclamation, and the third includes all fresh fruits and vegetables from all countries.

By the issuance of these general licenses, opportunity is given the importer to apply for and obtain regular import licenses for future shipments so that upon arrival at ports of entry such licenses may be presented to the collectors and the goods released. The bureau of imports is prepared to handle applications for licenses and pass upon same within 24 hours from the time of their receipt. No telegraphic applications for licenses will be received.

Lancaster County Florists' Association.

February 21, with the thermometer at 14° and a high wind, found only a few of us able to leave our places and take in the visiting trip, but the few learned some things; and here they are: First, at Amos Rohrer's, the conservation of space was strongly evidenced by the flats of young carnations and other plants put up on shelving where they did little damage to the crop underneath, and from the looks of the young carnations they certainly liked their roost up near the glass, better than if they had been down on the regular benches. Mr. Rohrer is a carnation man primarily, but had some good sweet peas as a side issue. In carnations, he has good results from all, and especially from White Wonder, which he always does to a finish that makes his white an exclusive product. Belle Washburn is well liked, and Miss Theo seems to like Strasburg from the way she is blooming here. The older varieties are always good and are as good as usual.

At Chas. B. Herr's, carnations are always good and this season is no exception; it is hard to pick one out for special mention, but Pink Delight perhaps comes the nearest to being worthy of this distinction, as it is truly a delight. Merry Christmas has been something of a disappointment, owing to diseased stock, the result of about 20 per cent of diseased cuttings and its tendency to have a crooked neck. The flowers bunched made a fine showing, and with a little selection, will, no doubt, come up to expectations. Two thousand cuttings of Alice just potted would indicate that he is going to grow this variety next winter, and there is always a little corner reserved for calla lilies. Mr. Herr, like some of the rest of us, is up against a coal proposition that is anything but pleasant, and certainly does not add anything to the pleasures of being a florist, although he has never been as close to freezing up as some of the rest of us.

Through the courtesy of Lewis Dyer, a brother-in-law of J. Wade Galey, we were enabled to visit his place with comfort via automobile, the range being about a mile from the trolley. J. Wade Galey is a comparatively new man in the business, but has been observant, both on his own place and in visiting the places of others, with the result showing in the wonderful success he has had with carnations. Today it can be said without exaggeration that he has the best two houses of carnations in Lancaster county. His plants are going to exceed the 14 flowers per plant that was considered by the American Carnation Society a very liberal estimate, and it may seem like an exaggerated idea, but I fully believe that he is going to double the 14 per plant, with the exception of Albert Roper, which is not producing very heavy and has quite a few off colored flowers. Beacon is one of the favorites here and produces very few bursted flowers. Alice is also considered one of the best. The cuttings are selected with care each year and grown in paper pots, and I might add that the soil on this place is ideal for carnations and asters, of which a good lot are grown in the summer.

Mrs. Albert M. Herr was running a chicken potpie supper for the benefit of the ladies' auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A., of which she is president, and as a result, the writer corralled the visiting boys and had them take supper at the Y. M. C. A. With the visiting florists, we had some real guests in the shape of W. J. Muth, Lansdowne; Joseph Goetter, Wallingford, and James Brown, Coatesville, Pa. They visited the establishments of Willis B. Girvin at Leola and Charles and Elmer Weaver at Ronks in the forenoon and left Lancaster, 6.18 p. m., feeling that their day was well spent.

proceedings, of which I can give you only a small synopsis. In the discussion, it was brought out that 1,800 plants of Beacon produced 1,400 blooms for Christmas, and that 1,400 plants of Alice produced 1,800 blooms for the same occasion and this without any forcing of the plants. It was also brought out that Mrs. C. W. Ward always brings a better price than any of the other varieties, but will not produce as much per square foot of space. The necessity of careful selection in taking cuttings was dwelt upon and instances shown where the results fully justified any extra time that was used for such selection. Another feature of interest to the outside world, was the method employed by B. F. Barr to have a continuous supply of good carnations for the store. He plants about two-thirds of them on raised benches and the other third on solid beds, the latter coming in heavy with bloom in the spring and early summer when the benches are on the decline.

Criticisms were offered on Albert Roper, which produced one perfect flower in four; on Cottage Maid, which was without any definite color and should be placed in the variegated class and in a separate class for bursting its calyx. Merry Christmas seemed to have a serious affliction of the neck, and it was doubted if any surgical operation would overcome this defect. Old Gold was, up to date, not considered worthy of an opinion.

Plans for a series of ladies' nights are under way, and the writer wagers that when our friend Nolan gets these notices, he will not miss the meeting as he did this one. Of course, the "plans of mice and men gang aft a'glee."

GOOD MARKET AND FAIR PRICES.

The market during the past week has been in very good condition. Stock of all kinds is in a much improved condition. Sweet peas and carnations are extra fine, and while they are arriving in heavy cuts, they seem to move well and at fair prices. The poorer grades of carnations, of course, are a glut and move only at bargain figures. The supply of roses has improved in quality, although the supply is still short of the demand. American Beauties have been quite plentiful, but on account of the demand created for Russell by the retailers, they do not have a big call. Jonquils, narcissi and tulips are coming in quite heavy, but move well for this class of stock. Freesias, have a good call. Violets are a glut and move only at bargain prices. Lilies and callas are equal to the demand. Greens of all kinds are equal to the call. Southern smilax is poor in quality. Business has slowed up a bit, due in a measure to the Lenten season, but funeral work has been very good, far greater than during the month of January. Hand in hand with the funeral work, have been the sick room bouquets, which showed a decided increase.

NOTES.

The local joint publicity committee held a meeting February 19 at which quite a number of plans were gone over for future publicity tied up with the national campaign. It was voted to repaint the sign used by the national flower show committee next to the Moolah Temple, with the words "Say It With Flowers." It was also voted to authorize the secretary and treasurer to solicit monthly subscriptions for one year for general publicity. It was also voted to pay the secretary a commission on the amount of money collected for this purpose as a salary. Another feature taken up was the disposition of surplus flowers at a time of glut, and a letter was drawn up to send to all retail florists along these lines. A member of one of the wholesale florists was also invited to become a member of the joint publicity committee, they to select their spokesman. This will give every branch of the business a good representation on the joint committee.

The next officers' meeting of the florists' club is scheduled for Kirkwood, at W. A. Rowe's home. Mr. Rowe, by the way, is cutting some of the finest snapdragon ever seen on this market, with spikes four foot long. The varieties are, St. Louis, one of his own, and Venus. He is also cutting some very fine Enchantress Pink snapdragon.

O. C. May, of Sappington, Mo., is cutting some very fine freesias. He also reports that he sustained some loss of glass on account of the near-cyclone we experienced about a week ago.

Mrs. H. G. Berning, secretary of the ladies' florist club, announces a meeting Wednesday, March 6, at 2:30 P. M., at the central public library club. All ladies are invited to attend.

Hugo Gross is cutting some of the best violets seen here this year. The cut is handled by the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co.

H. G. Berning has been getting in quite a few American Beauties. His consignments of carnations are also fine.

LENTEN TRADE HOLDS UP WELL.

Since St. Valentine's day there has been an increased supply of flowers of all kinds on the market, with the possible exception of violets. Prospects for a fine business this spring are very apparent at this writing. Trade is holding up well during this lenten season, and the growers are all preparing for a record Easter trade. Funeral work has been exceedingly heavy, and there have been a few good-sized weddings, besides the usual demand for flowers for the sick room. Carnations are showing marked improvement in the stability of their stems, and the supply is adequate. In roses, red varieties are scarce. Orchids are in fine crop, and the same may be said of calla lilies and rubrums. In pot plants, there are a few azaleas, cyclamens, primulas, cinerarias, and obconicas. The local greenhouses show signs that Easter is not far off.

NOTES.

The New Haven Floral Co. has had a greater demand than they can supply on account of running their houses on low temperatures. They are cutting good carnations, sweet peas, roses, and bulbous stock of all varieties, much of which finds its way to this market.

There will be a meeting of the florists' club, March 13, at the New Haven Floral Co.'s greenhouses, New Haven, Ind. A large attendance is expected, as the February meeting was postponed on account of the severe weather and unfavorable conditions.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. did a fine St. Valentine's day business, and report the orders for cut flowers and blooming plants about equal. Funeral work has been very good at this establishment, with orders for blankets, and several other large pieces.

The Doswell Floral Co. is receiving some fine roses, sweet peas, and snapdragons from their greenhouses. This firm has some excellent hydrangeas, rambler roses, and other large plants which they are forcing for the Easter trade.

Judge and Mrs. W. J. Vesey, accompanied by Mrs. Will J. Vesey, Jr., visited with Sergeant Will J. Vesey, Jr., at Camp Taylor, Louisville, Ky., Saturday and Sunday. Sergeant Vesey is now at the officers' training camp.

Violets met with a bigger call this year than ever at the Edgar Wenninghoff store. He reports St. Valentine's day business very satisfactory, with a fine demand for spring flowers, both in pots and for corsage work.

The Flick Floral Co., has received a shipment of fine heather from California. Large cuts of roses and spring flowers arrive daily. Weddings and funeral work take the lead in the demand here.

F. J. Knecht & Co. had a good cut of both roses and carnations for St. Valentine's day and would have had many more had it not been for the adverse conditions of the past six weeks.

Miss Helen F. Patten, of the Patten Flower Shop, Toledo, O., was a visitor to this city last week, spending several days here.

STOCK IS PLENTIFUL.

Stock is plentiful this week in all lines, including roses, which are now reaching the market in larger quantities, especially in the longer-stemmed grades. Short roses continue to clean up well at good prices and are in somewhat short supply. American Beauty roses are a little on the short side, but other varieties appear to be plentiful. Milady and Mrs. Chas. Russell are reaching the market in splendid condition and are having a good call. Carnations are in large supply and have dropped considerably in price the past week. Lily of the valley has been moving rather slowly the past week for the first time this season. Sweet peas are reaching the market in large numbers, but have been selling well, considering the large supply of the stock offered. Violets are moving better than they have been owing to the mild weather, but prices are not what they should be. Snapdragons of splendid quality are obtainable and the same holds true for fancy iris. Freesias, tulips, jonquils and narcissi are very plentiful and are to be had in quantity at bargain prices.

Orchids are seen in numbers, especially Cattleya Trianae and Phalaenopsis Schilleriana and P. amabilis, which are to be found featured quite extensively in many of the leading downtown establishments. Gardenias, stevias, wall flowers, calendulas, candytuft, bouvardias, pansies, daisies and mignonette are included in the offerings. Lilies and callas are plentiful. Business has been rather quiet the past week, which was to be expected the first part of Lent, but the demand appears to be slowly improving and a few more days will probably find a decided change for the better in the general market conditions.

NOTES.

Paul Schramm & Son, of Arlington Heights, have been burning wood for some time to conserve the coal supply so as to pull through the season safely. A. P. Schramm, who visits the market quite frequently, says that his Robert Northam, manager of George Reinberg's store, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his father, whose death occurred this week. The funeral was held February 27 at Fond du Lac, Wis., and it is needless to add that there were many beautiful floral offerings from his many friends in the trade here.

Kyle & Foerster are featuring Mrs. Chas. Russell roses of unsurpassed quality. The flowers are attracting much favorable attention, owing to the fact that they are perfect in every respect.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner are handling a good supply of spring stock, particularly fancy tulips.

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, celebrated his sixtieth birthday with a party at the store last Wednesday, February 27, when all the visitors were treated to a fine smoke. Mr. Washburn has a host of friends in the trade here as well as elsewhere who are all pleased to know that he is in the best of health and sincerely wish him a continuance of same. It is hard to believe that the popular wholesaler is as old as he really is, for the years rest lightly on his shoulders and he looks as young as ever.

The large showing of bulbous stock at the Alpha Floral Co.'s store this week makes one think that spring is nearly here. One florist claims to have seen twelve blue robins this week on East Randolph street, which is not surprising when one hears the exact location.

Wietor Bros. have a good stock of strong healthy carnation cuttings on hand but orders for same are arriving so fast that an early cleanup is expected. They are now cutting a fine supply of carnations which rank second to none for quality in this vicinity.

Miss Olive Kracke, who has been assisting Mike Poletsos at the East Monroe street store of the Chicago Florist since several of the regular employees joined the colors, is proving to be an expert saleslady and is taking a great interest in designing.

Henry Hoefelder, with the National Army at Rockford, was called home this week by the serious illness of his father. He is a brother of Peter Hoefelder with Kennicott Bros. Co., who is also in the draft with a Class 1 rating.

Peter Pearson is shipping a particularly fine line of bulbous stock to Zech & Mann which includes especially well-grown Darwin tulips. He is producing his own bulbs at Jefferson Park and is having wonderful success with them.

William Wolf, who has been in the employ of A. Lange for the past 15 years, has opened a retail store at 7 West Monroe street. He reports business as good since February 23, the opening day.

Uncle Sam thinks so well of H. Van Gelder, manager of Percy Jones, Inc., that he has given him a Marshall Field & Co. rating, which means A1 in the draft.

Fred Lautenschlager of Kroeshell Bros. Co. reports inquiries as numerous and that many nice boiler orders have already been booked for next season's delivery.

Robert Gunterberg, brother of M. C. Gunterberg, wholesale florist, who is in Class 1 of the draft, has been notified to appear for examination this week.

Zech & Mann are having a brisk call for Milady roses which they are handling in good supply in addition to extra fancy sweet peas and Darwin tulips.

H. A. Bauske, L. R. Cook and Leon

Glow, with the A. L. Randall Co., who are in Class 1 of the draft, are expecting to be called to the colors soon.

H. De Calume of the Bassett & Washburn greenhouse force left February 23 for Rockford with the drafted men from Hinsdale.

The E. C. Amling Co. is having a good run on Spanish iris and colored freesia.

John Bruckner is serving on the jury for two weeks.

For Your Supply of CUT FLOWERS

 Remember when ordering that our line is so complete that it includes every item offered in the Great Chicago Market.

The annual meeting of the state florists' association will be held in the Floricultural Building, University of Illinois, Urbana, March 5-6. August Poehlmann, chairman, Philip J. Foley, James Morton and E. A. Ollinger are on the committee representing the florists' club to encourage as many to attend as possible and from present indications there will be quite a large delegation from this vicinity. The party will leave the Park Row station, via the Illinois Central railroad, March 5, at 8:45 A. M., due at Champaign, 11:50 P. M. The fare in each direction to Champaign, the railroad station for Urbana, is $2.52, plus 20 cents war tax. No reduction is made for the round trip. There is no party rate. Everybody is welcome.

The Rapid Wrapper Co. is experiencing a heavy demand for its wrapping outfits which calls for delivery before the Easter trade sets in. Leading florists everywhere realize the value of having a Rapid Wrapper in their establishments during the rush period—when every minute counts and judging from the many orders that have already been booked it appears as if everyone is anticipating a record breaking demand.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is having a brisk demand for orchids which are to be seen featured in the window displays of practically all the leading loop establishments this week. Cattleya Trianae and sprays of Phalaenopsis Schilleriana and P. amabilis are the principal offerings. The supply department is mailing its new catalog and will be pleased to send one to those in the trade who are not on their mailing list.

Miss Marguerite McNulty, Peter Baumann and F. Hoeckner of the Peter Reinberg store force will make a trip to the greenhouses to get a line on what stock Superintendent Peter Showsboe will have for them to dispose of for Easter.

The Wholesale Cut Flower Association will hold a special meeting at the Hotel Sherman, Thursday evening, February 28, at 6 o'clock. All members are requested to be present owing to the important business that will be discussed.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is supplying its trade with fancy bulbous stock in all the seasonable offerings in addition to a complete line of all the leading roses and carnations.

A. T. Pyfer & Company will have a good supply of lilies to offer for Easter from the Pyfer & Olssem greenhouses at Wilmette. Sweet peas are a leader at this establishment this week.

J. A. Budlong reports a strong demand for the pretty miniature rose, Nesbit, which is being handled in quantity along with a large supply of all other seasonable stock.

Hoerber Bros. continue to clean up all the snapdragons they are cutting owing to the splendid quality.

The John Kruchten Co. is pleasing its trade with a choice grade of sweet peas and appears to have its share of all other seasonable stock.

Weiland & Risch are cutting a good supply of fancy Champ Weiland, Mrs. Chas. Russell and Mrs. Moorfield Storey roses.

Erne & Company received a large shipment of fine boxwood this week which they report to be in brisk demand.

The Freres-Windler Co. continue to feature a large quantity of home-grown Asparagus Sprengeri.

SUPPLY IN GENERAL SATISFACTORY.

The market is fairly well supplied, with the exception of roses, which continue scarce and high in price. Carnations are being received in large numbers and are somewhat cheaper. Bulbous stock is much more plentiful and the quality is good. Violets, sweet peas and calendulas make up the balance of the offerings. Pot plants are still good sellers. Green goods are more plentiful but there is still a shortage of full requirements.

NOTES.

J. B. Masson reports that owing to a shortage of coal he was forced to drop the temperature of the lily houses so much that they will not be in on time. He is now cutting fine carnations, violets and bulbous stock.

Wm. Foith is cutting a good crop of carnations and sweet peas. He reports his lilies showing bud and in fine shape; also a fine stock of geraniums in three and four-inch pots.

T. J. Noll & Co. report good sales in general. They have a plentiful supply of bulbous stock, lilies and sweet peas, with roses heading the list of scarce items.

The Rosery reports a week of good business, especially in funeral work. Pot plants are selling well. This store is now the possessor of a new Ford.

A. Mohr reports he is completely sold out of cinerarias and bulbous stock. He has 3,000 lilies in fine shape.

H. Kusik & Co. are showing fine stocks of roses, carnations and fancy sweet peas. Greens are scarce.

John Stevens has carnations in large quantities. He says his lilies are in fine shape.

Ernest Moore, formerly of this city, is now with James Hayes, of Topeka, Kan.

W. J. Barnes had the largest one week's sale of cinerarias in his history.

LARGE SUPPLY AND FAIR BUSINESS.

Business is fair with supply large and, in some lines, in excess of actual needs. Shipping trade is fair. Roses are arriving in larger numbers than they have been at any time during the past several weeks, still all are selling almost as fast as they come into the market. Carnations are very plentiful and sweet peas are in a large supply. They are proving good property. Easter lilies are fairly abundant and excellent rubrums and callas may be had. The bulbous offerings include tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, freesias and an oversupply of narcissi. Other offerings are violets, calendulas, baby primroses, for-get-me-nots and pussy willows.

NOTES.

E. G. Gillett spent the larger part of last week in Scottish Rite work. The local florists in the parade of Shriners on Saturday were E. G. Gillett, C. E. Critchell, Fred Gear and Wm. Mayhall. At a bowling tournament at Goode's alley between the growers and storemen, the former were victorious. Ar-

DAILY ARRIVALS OF STOCK HEAVY.

The market is full of flowers; every line appears in increasing quantities daily. Roses are now even a trifle ahead of the demand. The American Beauty shipments are increasing, very good stock now being offered. All the other varieties are also at their best, everything lovely but the price. The dealers get all they can, but except for use in funeral work, there is no steady demand and prices worthy of the stock and season are almost impossible to maintain. Carnations take up a lot of room in the boxes—good stock most of it, worthy of better prices, but much of it goes in the Saturday cleanups to be huckstered off on the sidewalks in the business centers or the residential districts. Bulbous stock is plentiful, particularly daffodils, which are seen in quantity in all the houses. Spanish iris and fignitana, that superb large blue flowered variety, is one of the most decorative of the newer introductions. These are both features in most of the stocks. Easter lilies are plentiful, but hold well in price, as do callas. L. rubrum, as seen, was never better. The market absorbs quantities of this flower, which a year or two ago was a novelty in the winter season. Sweet peas of excellent quality make a great bid for favor, and no buyer goes away without a goodly supply. More violets, than buyers, good as they are. Gardenias also go begging. Cattleyas are in splendid form; there are quantities of them, but the good buyers appear to be in the camps or elsewhere. The one bright spot, at least that which shows up best in the returns, is green—75 cents per dozen for asparagus sprays, almost a record price with dagger and fancy ferns $3 per thousand, and hardly enough to go around at that.

TRANSPORTATION PROBLEMS.

The experience of the various interests in the trade, in transportation matters, proves that while there has been some improvement in the express companies' handling of goods, results are far from satisfactory. Incoming shipments of a number of cases, all delivered to the company at one time, arrive on the installment plan days and even weeks apart, requiring very careful checking up. Arthur Niessen advises that all shippers, or those ordering goods which are delayed by the express companies, or parcels post, should at once take it up with the express or post office officials. The officials say they are at all times trying to improve the service, particularly that of the parcels post. They have several times called the attention of employees of the Philadelphia office handling parcels post matter to the perishable nature of flowers, and in consequence such shipments now get preference over other packages. They desire to hear of any delays, as in that way they can rectify or expedite this service, which if nothing is said, is supposed to be perfect. Many men, Mr. Niessen says, will not go to the trouble to write letters of complaint, saying it is no use. If every failure or delay was called to the attention of the various officials, there would be so

THE MICHEL LECTURE.

Eugene H. Michel, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., this city, delivered a most delightful lecture on "Cannas" before the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, at its monthly meeting, February 19, in Griffith hall. Mr. Michel's remarks were most practical, his descriptions of the many varieties shown on the screen were glowing, and put cannas into the hearts of many of his delighted audience. The colored slides were exceptionally fine, showing vases of selected spikes of bloom, together with lawn beds and fields in full flower at Riverton. There were on exhibition several vases of fine snapdragons and a vase of a red sport of Benora carnation, all the flowers of which were four inches in diameter.

At the Berger Brothers market, freesias, daffodils and orchid sweet peas are in evidence. Easter lilies are also a feature. Business has been quiet the past week.

Lots of roses in all grades are seen in the Jos. Heacock Co.'s stock. Manager Cortis reports a fair demand, cleaning up every day. Splendid cattleyas in quantity are a feature here.

"Nothing to brag of," is the report of Edward Reid, "still we manage to keep things moving." Carnations and superb orchid sweet peas are headliners.

Manager Miller, of the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange, reports a full line of all stocks, being particularly strong in roses. Things were quiet along the line the past week.

Benny Gibbs, of the Eugene Bernheimer force, declared that the "father of his country" did not help a bit this week, as things had been anything but stirring. Orange snapdragons, sweet peas and choice carnations were quantity stocks the past week.

Fred Klinger, chief in the receiving department, and James Frazier, one of the chauffeurs of the Leo Niessen Co., joined the colors the past week.

NOTES.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. are exploiting a fine line of Easter plant baskets. Mr. Bayersdorfer thinks from the way orders are coming in, that the trade expect a big Easter.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons are looking forward to a good Easter. Their Diamond street conservatories are filled with choice stock, of which fine azaleas are a feature.

The London Flower Shop anticipates a good Easter and are already preparing to make the most of it. Choice flowering plants are a feature here.

Charles Grakelow enjoyed a good run of funeral work the past week. He keeps the boys in good humor, as he makes his daily rounds.

H. C. Vansant, Newport News, was a visitor the past week, looking up stock for the Easter holidays.

Samuel Sproul, of the Locust Flower Shop on South 60th street, has closed K.

LENTEN DULLNESS FELT.

The dullness that has prevailed in the trade during the past months, due to war conditions, has been more noticeable since the beginning of the Lenten season. Coupled with this, a week of mild weather greatly increased the supply of stock and prices are tottering and falling. The most marked increase in supply and decrease in demand and prices has been in American Beauty roses. Within 10 days the price of specials has been cut to half or worse. Around St. Valentine's day, special American Beauties were wholesaling at the rate of $75 per 100; today $25 to $35 are nearer the figures. The tea roses are holding up better, but a break seems inevitable. Carnations, orchids and various other stocks are necessarily cheap. It is reported from the Netherlands that many of the bulb growers will turn a part of their bulb land into vegetable growing. We believe this to be a sensible move; good for them and good for us. For years, we have been impressed by the fact that this country was importing too many bulbs. In the times when bulbs could be handled and forced by cheap labor, it was not so bad, but cheap labor is not now in the market. Of late years, bulb stock, about from this time of year till it goes out, has been so plentiful in this market that it became a positive nuisance and a detriment to other stocks that require more time and skill to grow. We have no desire to injure the business of the Hollanders; but charity should begin at home. A reasonable amount of bulb stock is desirable, but an avalanche, as Artemas Ward used to say, "is 2 mutch."

February 25.—The weather is mild and springlike and heavy supplies of bulbous stock, carnations and sweet peas are arriving. The greater part of Easter lilies—cut stock—is poor, also a considerable supply of short and inferior lily of the valley. There has been some improvement in violets, the mild weather enabling the street merchants to do business. Tea roses and good tulips seem to be the best sellers. The Flamingo tulips move freely at 60 cents per dozen, with 75 cents for the best. Hyacinths and narcissi are slow.

NOTES.

Noteworthy among the harbingers of spring, are the catalogues of the florists, seedsmen and nurserymen. Regardless of war conditions and the high cost of paper, we must acknowledge they are as handsome as ever, among them Vaughan's Seed Store's wholesale price list of vegetable seeds, for 1918, which, if considered as a serial, is now in its forty-second year; from Weeber & Don, 114 Chambers street, New York, catalogue of "sturdy" vegetable and flower seeds; from George L. Stillman, Westerly, R. I., "Dahlias of Distinction"; from the Richard Diener Co., Inc., Kentfield, Marin Co., California, a catalogue of gladioli of their own production; from William M. Hunt & Co., 37 Warren street, New York, a catalogue of seeds and bulbs.

Now that the weather has grown warmer, and flowers are cheaper, many of the retailers are making fine window displays, and in variety they take a wide range. As a centerpiece for window decoration, the tall acacia plants are popular, the supporting features being baskets and vases, in which, according to the taste and fancy of the decorator, any or all flowers can be used. The French anemones are now pretty and popular flowers and the market is well stocked with them. Forget-me-nots, mignonette, myosotis, pansies, buddleias, snapdragons, and as a matter of course, the staple stocks such as orchids, roses and carnations, are all seen in gift baskets and window decorations.

The honest agriculturists and horticulturists of this state seem to be bent on a bold stroke in politics. It is rumored that a movement is on foot for fusion of the farmers with the democrats and to select Professor Liberty Hyde Bailey, of Ithaca, former dean of the State Agricultural College at Cornell, and author of the Standard Encyclopedia of Horticulture, as a candidate for governor. Incidentally, it is stated that Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, in this city, is one of the sponsors of the scheme.

Washington's birthday was largely given over to the entertainment of 10,000 soldiers that came in from Camp Upton, L. I., and to their parade in the afternoon. The business in flowers was light. Several of the boys, who were formerly in the florist business, were in the parade.

Lawrence Thieler, formerly bookkeeper for John Young & Co., who is now a sergeant in the army, stationed at Camp Upton, was in the parade, February 22, and also visited his former employers. Since joining the colors, he has gained 25 pounds in weight.

B. S. Slinn, of the Cut Flower Exchange, has just returned from a short visit to Florida, and is enthusiastic about the trip. He found the ocean warm enough for bathing. He visited a number of the growers of Asparagus plumosus and reports them prosperous.

Nicholas Archias, proprietor of the retail store known as the Broadway Florist, 2094 Broadway, has purchased the store at 2445 Broadway, formerly conducted by Peter Velotas. He is a clever designer and decorator, and both his stores are well stocked.

The C. A. Dards store, Madison avenue and 44th street, in addition to other activities, is doing quite a business in fancy baskets of mixed flowers, such as snapdragons, tulips, narcissi and sweet peas, which are attractive features.

At the store of George D. Nicholas, Seventh avenue and 123d street, we have recently noticed attractive features in plant baskets of azaleas, marguerites and primroses, all artistically arranged.

Leikens, Madison avenue and 55th street, arranged a fine decoration on Washington's birthday for a dinner at the aviation field, Mineola, L. I., given by officers of the aero squadron.

Chargranis Brothers, who have a neat store in the Regent Theatre building, 1908. Seventh avenue, advise us that their St. Valentine's day business was good.

Malandre Brothers, Broadway and 72nd streets, are showing many fine features in plants and cut flowers and report good business.

In addition to a good stock of roses and carnations, J. K. Allen, 118 West 28th street, is now handling a fine stock of buddleia.

A. Meyer, 1062 Madison avenue, advises us that his St. Valentine's day business was better than in former years.

CHICAGO

NEW YORK

One of our humorists—we have a lot of them—has a novel scheme to keep constantly before the people the necessity of growing more vegetables. He wants the girls to trim their hats with vegetables, and he is so enthusiastic about it that he thusly bursts into song:

"Miss Margarite McTwillly has
The sweetest little bonnet,
It is a Hoover hat, you know,
For it has carrots on it."

"Tell me where the food is and I'll move it," writes Director General McAdoo of the railroads to National Food Administrator Hoover. Perhaps if the seedsmen will tell Mr. McAdoo where their seed corn, beans and peas are, he will move them too. Unquestionably, Mr. McAdoo is a man of brains and energy.

P. L. Bogart's Brothers, 970 Sixth avenue, had the pall and a large number of fine designs for the funeral of N. K. Bloodgood, an old and prominent citizen, which was held at the Church of the Heavenly Rest, February 23.

At the store of A. T. Bunyard, Madison avenue and 48th street, we have recently noticed a beautiful window decoration of large acacias and baskets and vases of spring flowers in variety.

Since A. L. Young & Co., 54 West 28th street, put in a new front and otherwise improved their store, it is one of the show places of the district and their business is good.

American Beauties and other roses, fine carnations and tulips and a great variety of other stock arrives daily at M. C. Ford's, 121 West 28th street.

B. Jacobs & Co. are handling fine stock of the French anemones.

TRADE IN GENERAL IS QUIET.

Business during the past week has been rather dull, with funeral work the mainstay of the trade, although there is a fairly good demand for plants for hospitals, cut flowers being expensive in comparison with other years. The best carnations continue to retail at $1.50 per dozen and roses command from $2 to $6. Sweet peas are, however, beginning to arrive in large quantities. Cattleyas are plentiful, but the call is weak. Violets sell well.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

F. W. Bolgiano, Washington, D. C., President; Wm. G. Scarlett, Baltimore, Md., First Vice-President; David Burpee, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary-Treasurer. The thirty-sixth annual meeting will be held at Chicago, June 18-20, 1918.

VISITED CHICAGO: E. L. Page, of the Page Seed Co., Greene, N. Y.

THE mail trade throughout the country is bounding ahead of all previous records.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—Wood, Stubbs & Co. have increased their capital stock from $200,000 to $350,000.

ALBERT DICKINSON, of Chicago, is recovering at Orange City, Fla., from an illness of several weeks.

CURTIS NYE SMITH supplies important data on seed embargoes which will be found on page 334 of this issue.

IT is reported the United States government will requisition all the present season's food beans as well as the coming crop.

J. CHAS. McCULLOUGH and family, of Cincinnati, O., and Lem Bowen and wife, of Detroit, Mich., are at Miami, Fla., this week.

W. W. BARNARD, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, is touring California in his auto and recently visited the fresia growers.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—The A. J. Brown Seed Co. has received orders aggregating about $100,000 for seed peas for England and France.

CALIFORNIA advices of February 25, supplementing the information given in our last issue, are to the effect that seed growers are having more rain, a total fall of six inches for the week.

GRASS SEEDS.—Prices for grass seed on the Chicago Board of Trade February 27 were as follows: Timothy, $7.00 to $8.25 per 100 pounds; clover, at Toledo, $25.00 to $30.00 per 100 pounds.

ONION SETS have again advanced slightly in the Chicago district, reds and yellows being now $2.75 to $3.00, and whites $3.50 to $4.00 in car lots. The rot is said to be much worse than anticipated.

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 26.—President Wilson issued a proclamation today putting the fertilizer industry under license. Licenses must be obtained by March 20. The proclamation is under the food and fuel conservation law.

Two more of Vaughan's Seed Store employes at Chicago joined the colors this week, Ed. Goldenstein, the well known manager of the bulb department, and Chas. Mason of the retail staff, making a total of 14 stars in the firm's service flag.

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.—The Hallawell Seed Co., whose store adjoins the British recruiting station, recently attracted throngs to its windows, which were donated for the display of trophies captured by the allies. This firm reports a heavy spring counter trade.

California Rain.

L. W. Wheeler, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., Gilroy, Calif., advises as follows, February 27:

"Good rains have fallen the past week in the California seed growing sections. Growers are now busy completing planting and the earlier planted crops are making satisfactory growth. The rainy season usually ends here about April 1 and the rainfall is now under 50 per cent normal. Abundant spring rains will be needed to bring crops through.

"Onion and root crops have suffered considerably from the drought. The most optimistic estimate gives possible yields of onion, beet, carrot and lettuce about 60 to 70 per cent. Salsify, parsnip and parsley 50 per cent. Radish not over 30 per cent.

"Substitute the word precipitation for reciprocity in the fourth paragraph of last week's message."

Western Seedsmen's Association.

The above association met at Kansas City, Mo., February 16, for the purpose of considering the best plans for meeting conditions confronting seedsmen for the season of 1918, especially those engaged in the package seed business. The following firms were represented: American Seed Co., Fort Worth, Tex.; Barteldes Seed Co., Lawrence, Kan.; N. J. Burt & Co., Burlington, Ia.; Condon Bros. Co., Rockford, Ill.; Griswold Seed Co., Lincoln, Neb.; Harnden Seed Co., Kansas City, Mo.; Mangelsdorf Bros. Seed Co., Atchison, Kan.; Missouri Seed Co., Kansas City, Mo.; Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn.; Sabetha Seed Co., Sabetha, Kan.; A. W. Schisler Seed Co., St. Louis, Mo.; Sioux City Seed Co., Sioux City, Ia.; Mel L. Webster Co., Independence, Ia., and Waco, Tex., and Wood, Stubbs & Co., Louisville, Ky.

The following resolution was drawn up and adopted unanimously:

Whereas, owing to a total lack of rainfall in California since March last, and the existence of very unfavorable conditions in other important seed growing sections, the prospect for a crop of garden seeds this year is the poorest seedsmen have ever faced; and

Whereas, owing to changing conditions and the feeling of unrest among the farmers, growers are reluctant to make contract prices for 1918; and

Whereas, the cost of labor and materials has advanced enormously in the last few years, therefore be it

Resolved, That it be recommended to the seed trade engaged in putting up seeds in packets, that instead of trying to decrease the quantity of seed in the packet to meet new conditions, the quantity be based on a $3.50 per 100 price to the dealer, and that in selling at this price it be recommended that the dealer resell the packets for 10 cents or three for 25 cents.

Also that it be recommended that cartons of beans, peas and corn be marked to retail at from 15 cents to 20 cents, according to quantity in the package, and that the price to the dealer be on the basis of 9 cents each for a carton of four ounces.

Also that it be recommended that for the present at least all future contracts with dealers for bulk seed be booked at open prices.

Denmark Prohibits Seed Trading.

The British minister at Copenhagen reports that the Danish ministry of the interior has issued a notice forbidding, pending the issue of further regulations, all trade in all kinds of seeds, including field seeds, root seeds, garden seeds, etc., whether of Danish or foreign origin, both of the 1917 and of previous harvests. Bird-seed is, however, excepted. Moreover, all deliveries of such seeds, notwithstanding running contracts, are forbidden until further notice.—British Board of Trade Journal.

New York Seed Trade.

Since the cold wave passed, there is a noteworthy speeding up in the seed trade district. Farmers, market gardeners and war gardeners seem to be heeding the advice that has been widely published, that is, to buy early.

On February 20, Peter Henderson & Co., received a shipment of corn that had been started from "somewhere" upstate on December 22, 1917.

J. B. Deamud of Vaughan's Seed Store, has returned from an extended trip.

S. D. Woodruff & Sons advise us that seed potatoes will be $6.50 per barrel.

Clover at Toledo.

Clover stocks showed a heavy decrease last week, receipts being 2,195 bags and shipments 3,911. For the season, to date, receipts have been 20,806 bags and shipments 44,036. Last year an accumulation of 19,361 bags was made in the same period.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—James Vick's Sons will remove to their new quarters, 23-25 Stone street, about March 1.

FARMERS' BULLETIN 901, entitled "Everbearing Strawberries," has been issued by the United States department of agriculture, a pamphlet of 20 pages and numerous illustrations devoted to the above subject.

Potato and Onion Supply for Army Camps.

Some idea of the consumption of potatoes and onions at the army camps in the United States is given in a recent call for bids on these two items by the quartermaster general's office, the requirements being 13,750,000 pounds of potatoes and 884,000 pounds of onions, deliveries to commence about March 1 and be completed in 30 days.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, February 25.—Mushrooms, home-grown, No. 1, 20 to 25 cents per cartor; lettuce, box, 22½ to 25 cents; radishes, 50 to 60 cents per dozen bunches; celery, $1.25 to $1.50 per box; tomatoes, per 6 baskets, $2.00 to $2.50; cucumbers, per box, $1.75 to $3.75.

New York, February 25.—Celery, dozen stalks, 20 to 50 cents; cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.75 per dozen; mushrooms, 80 cents to $2.20 per 4-lb. basket; tomatoes, per pound, 12 to 35 cents; lettuce, 3-dozen strap, 30 to 60 cents; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.00 to $4.00.

Seed Sowing.

At this moment, when the interest in regard to the seed situation is keen, some general notes on getting results should be in order. Sometimes we have seeds on hand from last year, or even two years ago, and knowing what these are, such stocks are of great value; next our seedsman may furnish us seeds of a year ago or more; or some of the seeds that are absolutely fresh may be of poor vitality, owing to unfavorable crop conditions last year. Any gardener who has hotbeds or greenhouses should test all seeds he is likely to use, so as to get familiar with their growing qualities. Thus we can reduce the seeding of high vitality lots to the minimum and spread such seeds out over a great area; on the other hand, poor lots can be overseeded in order to get a fair stand. It may be stated that no matter if a certain kind of seed will grow for many years, each year will reduce the germinating power some. This is not so noticeable the second year, but after three years most seeds deteriorate rapidly.

We would like to make a broad statement that more seeds are annually lost by over-covering than under-covering. A heavy covering is not nature's way. In a wild state the seeds fall to the ground and are either held in place by humus, leaves, or dead grass, or beaten into the earth by rain. In most cases the covering is very shallow. Then we find that during long-continued wet spells seeds germinate the easiest. It is the alternate shower and sunshine of April that is the proverbial spring weather. In our practice, we can imitate Nature. In greenhouses, hot beds and frames under glass, we have for years used the ordinary cheese cloth or white "bunting" as a cover. By its use we are enabled to cover seeds sparingly, if at all; the seeds are pressed into the ground with a brick or plank and the cloth laid directly upon the soil. Water will go right through the cloth, yet any displacement of seed is not likely. Sufficient light is admitted for the young plants, the first day or two after germinating reducing risks at that time, and the cloth can be used over and over if removed and dried for future use. As a substitute, newspapers are used; while they are good as they go, they are waterproof and sprinkling does not reach the seeds directly. Whatever we use, cheesecloth, newspaper or burlap, frequent sprinkling is in order—coaxing the seeds to sprout. The more doubtful the lot of seed, the more attention should be given. Outdoors, over-covering is serious. Time and again have we seen fields where failure to get a stand resulted from deep sowing. Proof of this can always be found at the ends—where the drill is turned and some of the seeds are merely spilled on the ground and stepped on—if these grow and the main field is a failure, look into your depth adjustment. Grand Rapids lettuce especially is sensitive to covering, and so are beets.

MARKETMAN.

Vegetable Markets.

Jobbing prices of vegetables reported by the United States department of agriculture for the period February 12-18, were as follows:

The market in the potato producing sections settled to a rather more steady basis. Holding in some sections at about the low points of the preceding seven days, the general tone was still very weak. While stock in bulk, track side, ruled unchanged, $1.82 per 100 pounds at Presque Isle, Me., lower $1.68 at Caribou and steady at $1 to 1.10, Waupaca, Wis., seed stock, Bliss Triumph, held, $2.25 in bulk Waupaca, seed cobblers ruled $1.97, at Presque Isle, and Michigan Round Whites, sacked, sold 25 cents lower, $1.70 to 1.90, f. o. b. Grand Rapids. F. o. b. sales at Rochester, N. Y., for No. 1 Round Whites dropped 10 to 15 cents, selling $1.90 per 100 pounds in bulk, and $2.05 to 2.10, sacked. Western sacked white stock sold from wagons, track side, 5 to 10 cents lower at Greeley, Colo., ranging $1.10 to 1.15, but held unchanged at $1. Idaho and northwestern shipping stations. Conditions generally favored buyers on account of liberal offerings. Demand in all shipping sections was reported slow, but total volume of shipments gained sharply.

The few f. o. b. onion sales reported were at a fairly steady range, $2 to 2.50 per 100 pounds for yellow stock, sacked, f. o. b. cash on track at Northampton, Mass. Most shipments from producing sections were on commission basis. Total for week was 217 cars, the decline of 22 cars being divided quite generally among central and eastern producing states. Carlot shipments reported for season from 13 leading northern onion states were 10,313 cars at 600 bushels per car or 6,187,800 bushels. Sales to jobbers in general markets ranged $1.75 to $2.50 for Ohio, Indiana, New York and Massachusetts, yellow stock with slow, weak markets. Western red stock ranged $2 to $2.50.

The market was stronger in Michigan bean producing sections, prices paid growers ranging fully 25 cents higher at $11.25 to 11.75 per 100 pounds for navys in bulk. In Western New York pea beans were still selling at $11 in bulk from wagons, track side. Colorado Pintos made another sharp advance to growers, reaching $7.50 per 100 pounds, in bulk, re-cleaned basis, and the week's range at Denver and Greeley was $7 to 8. The market was strong in San Francisco, small whites ranging, $12.50 to 12.65, pinks $8 to 8.25, and limas $12.50 to 13.10, f. o. b. The general bean situation has been strengthened by recent large purchases of imported Colorado beans for the navy and of entire California white stocks for the army. Price of California pink stock is being informally fixed at $8 basis. Colorado county agents and food administrators are reported offering agreement blanks to growers of Pinto beans at the same price basis. Michigan navy and various white stock ranged about steady at $13.50 to 14.25 per 100 pounds to the jobbing trade. New York pea beans sold, $13.50 to 14.50. California small whites ranged firm at $13.25 to 14 and Cali-

DREER'S GRAND NEW CANNAS FOR 1918

Ten truly marvelous acquisitions, introducing new tones of color and showing the highest development in form and habit.

Carmine Beauty. Deep bright carmine flowers, freely produced high above the heavy dark-green foliage which has a narrow red margin. The flowers, while not as large as those of Olympic, are of a much brighter and more pleasing tone. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 75 cts. each; \$7.50 per doz.

Cheerfulness. No more appropriate name could be given to this brilliant novelty. Its beautiful bright fire-red or deep orange flowers appear early and continue without interruption until frost. Add to the prevailing color a golden border and center with each petal flaked carmine-crimson and you may form some conception of this fascinating variety with its erect stems always topped with clusters of cheerful color held high above the foliage. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 35 cts. each; \$3.50 per doz.

Cloth of Gold. A very attractive dwarf, compact, growing, free-flowering golden yellow. 3 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Dazzler. Time and again the past season the dark green foliage of this variety has been hidden beneath the mass of clusters of deep fire-red flowers. The intensity of coloring and freedom of blooming coupled with compact habit, make this variety the peer of the best for bedding purposes. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 35 cts. each; \$3.50 per doz.

Golden Eagle. A wonderfully intense golden-yellow. Very free upright grower. The large flowers are produced in great clusters well above the foliage. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 50 cts. each; \$5.00 per doz.

Harmony. Great clusters of good-sized, well-formed Geranium-red flowers are arranged on good stems in such a manner as to give the trusses an almost globular appearance. Altogether a dignified harmonious combination. $3\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 50 cts. each; \$5.00 per doz.

Poppy. Intense poppy-red. Large perfect florets in good trusses over greenish-bronzy foliage. Rich and effective. 5 ft. 50 cts. each; $5.00 per doz.

Salmon Queen. An entirely new color in Cannas. Rosy salmon-scarlet, blending to a rosy-carmine toward the center. The large substantial flowers are freely produced in great clusters high above heavy green foliage. Very effective in bedding. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

Sensation. To get a sensational color-tone in a pink Canna is particularly noteworthy. Our first impulse was to call it "La France" because the color called to mind the La France Rose but the tone is even cleaner and purer; it being a lovely pale-rose. The foliage is a beautiful glaucous-green; the plant dwarf and compact. One of the most noteworthy additions to Cannas in recent years. 3 ft. 75 cts. each.

TYPE OF NEWER CANNAS.

Superb. This variety is unique in color and truly superb; having large, clean bright orange-scarlet blossoms of good substance, produced on strong stalks with glaucous-bronzy foliage giving a most pleasing effect. 5 ft. 40 cts. each; $4.00 per doz.

One each of the above Ten Novelties for $4.00.

New Cannas From Other Sources

We offer here eight new varieties, which after several years' trial have proven themselves worthy of our commendation.

Cleopatra. A striking beauty. Wonderful deep carmine-crimson flowers surmounting the dark glaucous-bronze foliage. This variety stands out strongly in effectiveness. 4 ft. 50 cts. each; $5 per doz.

Dragon. An incessant bloomer, continuing to produce new stalks of flowers until cut down by frost. Dark ox-blood red. 3 ft. 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Flag of Truce. A large flowered creamy-white, with faint pink dots on each petal. The general effect is white. Not as white nor as tall as Eureka but quite distinct and valuable. 4 ft. 35 cts. each; $3.50 per doz.

Gaiety. Reddish-orange mottled with carmine and edged with yellow. The tongue is yellow and densely spotted with carmine. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 15 cts. each; \$1.50 per doz.

Lafayette. In some respects resembles the variety "Meteor" but the flowers are not quite as dark, stand more erect and the plant grows taller. 5 ft. 30 cts. each; $3.00 per doz.

Pocahontas. (Bronze-leaved Olympic.) Large oriental-red flowers borne on firm upright stems, just high enough above the foliage to show the entire head. The foliage is a dark bronze-green with emerald shadings; the ribs a darker bronze; one of the best recent introductions. 4 ft. 30 cts. each; $3 per doz.

San Diego. Chinese-orange or Persian-yellow. The crimped petals are remarkable for substance which enables them to withstand the hot summer sun without wilting. Another charm lies in the dark bronze color of the buds which harmonize with the rich bronze foliage. 4 ft. 15 cts. each; $1.50 per doz.

Varouna. We have tried this variety for several years and at all times the bright orange-scarlet flowers, combined with the good bronze foliage, has won our admiration. A free luxuriant grower, producing its flowers well above the plant. $4\frac{1}{2}$ ft. 25 cts. each; \$2.50 per doz.

One each of the Eight Varieties for $2.00.

January 26, 1918—Regional director western railroads, seeds.

January 30, 1918—Regional director eastern railroads, seeds and nursery stock.

January 30, 1918—Regional director southern railroads, seeds.

February 2, 1918—Regional director western railroads, nursery stock.

February 11, 1918—Director general railroads, all railroads and water carriers connected with railroads; seeds and by definite agreement with counsel for the seed and nursery trade associations, February 16, supplementary order will be issued as a routine matter, including nursery stock in General Order No. 1 of February 11, 1918.

Regional divisions of railroads and regional directors—General order No. 4, issued January 18, 1918, for the purposes of operating the railroads of the United States, classifies railroads as eastern, southern, and western railroads, as follows:

Eastern railroads: The railroads in that portion of the United States north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers and east of Lake Michigan and the Indiana-Illinois state line; also, those railroads in Illinois extending into that state from points east of the Indiana-Illinois state line; also, those railroads in Illinois extending into that state from points east of the Indiana-Illinois state line; also, the Chesapeake & Ohio, the Norfolk & Western, and the Virginian railways.

Southern railroads: All railroads in that portion of the United States south of the Ohio and Potomac rivers and east of the Mississippi river, except the Chesapeake & Ohio, Norfolk & Western and the Virginian railways, and also those railroads in Illinois and Indiana extending into those states from points south of the Ohio river.

Western railroads: All railroads not included in the above definitions and broadly speaking, all railroads in the territory west of Lake Michigan and of the Indiana-Illinois state line to the Ohio river and west of the Mississippi river from the Ohio river to the Gulf of Mexico, excepting those railroads in Illinois included in eastern territory and those railroads in Illinois and Indiana included in southern territory, as above stated.

REGIONAL DIRECTORS.

A. H. Smith, president of the New York Central, is appointed regional director with office at Room 3627 Grand Central Terminal, New York, in charge of the operation of eastern railroads.

C. H. Markham, president of the Illinois Central, is appointed regional director, with office at Atlanta, Georgia, in charge of the operation of southern railroads.

R. H. Aishton, president of the Chicago & North Western, is appointed regional director with office at Chicago, 226 West Jackson boulevard, in charge of the operation of western railroads.

Orders issued by the gentlemen named in their capacity as regional directors will be issued by authority of the director general, and will be respected accordingly.

ILLINOIS STATE FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION.

Twelfth Annual Meeting and Exhibition, Urbana, March 5-6, 1918.

Live Meeting With Improved Attendance.

The twelfth annual convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association was held in the Floriculture Building, State University, Urbana, March 5-6. This was a very interesting meeting, many of the puzzling trade questions of the day being seriously discussed. The attendance was much better than that of last year and the visitors displayed such interest and enthusiasm as clearly show there are many new plans and cheerful days in the business of the immediate future.

President Pillsbury promptly opened the meeting by calling on Prof. Blair, of the State University horticultural department, who welcomed the members of the association in his usual happy style, assuring them he believed it to be their patriotic duty as florists to keep the business firmly entrenched at the front, spreading broadcast through their products the sunshine and consolation so necessary in this dark time of sorrow. He added that the university is well represented in the war work of the day, 3,000 members of the staff and students being already in military service and the agricultural department active in the production of scarce medicinal plants. The addresses and reports of the officers followed, as printed elsewhere in this issue. Harry G. Johnson, of Bloomington, presented the report of Treasurer Washburn, who for the first time in many years was unable to be present, and in the audience there were noted many feeling expressions of regret at his absence, caused by serious ankle injury, now progressing favorably.

At the close of his address President Pillsbury read a letter from Dillon Myers, of Bluffton, Ind., representing the florists' association of that state, urging the greenhouse men of Illinois to help the food administration by the production of more and better vegetable plants. A telegram from J. C. Vaughan, of Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, now in Florida, was then presented.

MR. VAUGHAN'S TELEGRAM.

Miami, Fla., March 4, 1918.

I. L. Pillsbury, Pres.,
Illinois State Florists' Association,
Urbana, Ill.

Best wishes for successful meeting. Believe your association should recommend that its members maintain product and distribution of finest plants and flowers in the trade, thus deserving, and I anticipate, securing the continued patronage of that large class of well-to-do buyers whose tastes demand our products, and who are able to continue their well-established usage of flowers and plants. To slow down is suicidal. Better maintain our standards without profit rather than retrograde.

J. C. VAUGHAN.

A letter from C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, with regard to the fuel question, was next read:

MR. WASHBURN'S LETTER.

Chicago, March 2, 1918.

Mr. I. L. Pillsbury, Pres.
Illinois State Florists' Ass'n,
Champaign, Ill.

Dear Sir: I am writing you in regard to the coal situation, which is likely to develop this coming winter and which I think should be taken up by you at the present time. If you will remember at the meeting at Galesburg, you started to care for the fuel needs of the florists by appointing a committee. This action resulted in a national committee being appointed, and also our local florists' club appointed a committee for the Chicago district. This local committee succeeded in getting about 70 cars of coal for the florists in this vicinity during the most stringent coal shortage ever known. Now, would it not be as well to appoint a committee to take up the future coal situation with Mr. Williams, who is the coal administrator, and have the committee represent the whole state? By getting an early start much better results can be obtained. Mr. Williams has already stated that each trade should appoint a committee to take up the fuel question with him. If I am unable to be with you in Champaign this coming Tuesday, will you please present the matter to the association, and greatly oblige

Respectfully yours,

CHAS. L. WASHBURN.

As a result of Mr. Washburn's letter, the fuel committee was continued.

Chairman Asmus of the fuel committee reported that, contrary to the general idea, the association's representatives thought it best to go direct to the government officials with their grievances, stating them plainly, and this proved to be the right course. Working with the national society and the Chicago Florists' Club, much good was accomplished in placing the urgent needs of the trade rightly before the authorities. The work of the fuel committee of the Chicago club, consisting of Peter Reinberg, August Poehlmann and C. L. Washburn, with Fuel Administrator Ollinger of THE AMERICAN FLORIST staff, in charge, was cited as an example of what could be accomplished by proper methods. Mr. Ollinger had reported to him that in a period of six weeks 102 cars of coal had been delivered to the local florists, some of them, in very urgent cases, within 24 hours.

August Poehlmann, who followed, said he believed they had pursued the right course in the coal question. He added that there was now less talk about non-essentials, especially since the bankers advised government officials that the throttling of industry meant bankruptcy. The wise course for the present, he thought, would be to curtail the product, as his firm and many others had done, grow better stock and charge higher prices for it.

C. W. Johnson told of his tour of the eastern carnation growers, saying the western craftsmen had much to learn from them in this department of floriculture. The easterners, he said, frequently produced from 30 to 40 blooms per plant, and by careful culture and selection of stock were enabled to obtain abundant supplies of good flowers through May, June and July.

P. J. Foley of the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, spoke of the great losses frequently sustained by greenhouse men through the defective installation of the heating plant. He thought it would be a good investment on the part of many florists, in these trying times of high cost and shortage of fuel, to thoroughly examine their heating systems and change them where necessary. Defective installation, he claimed, often meant a difference of more than 100 per cent in the cost of fuel used.

President Lautenschlager referred to the national publicity campaign, urging the members to make the Illinois contributions worthy of this great state.

A. D. King, Mattoon, whose greenhouses were wiped out by the cyclone of last year, thanked the members and the trade generally for their valuable assistance.

The auditing committee (W. J. Heimbreeker and Geo. W. Jacobs) reported the accounts correct.

Dr. Lehenbauer presented his valuable report on experimental work, synopsis of which will be found elsewhere in this issue.

Peoria, Kewanee and Springfield were mentioned for the next fall flower show, the final selection resting with the executive committee.

The Evening Session.

At the evening session Prof. Dorner of the Floricultural Department delivered an address on "How the Floricultural Student Is Trained," for which we hope to find space in an early issue, and President Beust of the Floricultural Club read a paper on "What a College Education Means to Us." Two of the students, W. K. Moore and P. H. Heinz, then fought a lively broadsword duel. A one-act piece followed, entitled "Swartz der Florist," the students taking the various parts. It was a highly appropriate skit and very well put on. Izzy (W. G. Poehlmann) said Swartz was a born florist, coming into the world with a palm on each hand. The other characters were taken by W. J. Werstler, R. H. Mueller and Geo. P. Goodman.

That performance was thoroughly enjoyed by the numerous members of the college staff and their ladies in attendance and even more keenly appreciated by the trade visitors, a very pleasant evening terminating with ice cream in small flower pots, the cream made to resemble soil, with a live tulip bloom in the center of each pot, served on a fibre pan with coffee from a watering can.

The Visitors.

The visitors included the following: A. F. Amling, Maywood; E. Amling, Maywood; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville; Geo. Asmus, Chicago; M. Barker, Chicago; F. E. Bonham, Macomb; S. Buchbinder, Chicago; Emil Buettner, Park Ridge; F. R. Eddy, Chicago; P. J. Foley, Chicago; T. E. Franks, Champaign; W. J. Heimbreeker, Springfield; G. W. Jacobs, Canton; C. W. Johnson, Chicago; Harry G. Johnson, Bloomington; A. D. King, Mattoon; W. P. Kyle, Chicago; F. Lautenschlager, Chicago; George Mohn, Chicago; F. H. Morris, Chicago; I. L. Pillsbury, Galesburg; Adolph Poehlmann, Chicago; August Poehlmann, Chicago; A. T. Pyfer, Chicago; I. Rosnosky, Chicago; Frank Schramm, Crystal Lake; Wm. Spandikow, Crystal Lake; J. E. Yeats, Champaign; A. J. Zech, Chicago.

A. H. Nehrling traveled all the way from Crawfordsville, Ind., to be present, and said he felt well repaid for the trip.

The Exhibits.

Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, made a fine display of lily bulbs and excellent sweet peas grown by George Ball, Glen Ellyn, the varieties including Columbia, White Orchid, Rose Queen, Blue Jay, Yarrowa, Heather Bell and Mrs. Chas. Zvolanek.

Zech & Mann, Chicago, exhibited some fine vases of Darwin tulips grown by Peter Pearson of that city, and equally noteworthy vases of Chicago Jewel and No. 0012 sweet peas grown by the Deerfield Nurseries, Shermer-ville.

Frank Schramm, of Crystal Lake, staged a vase of his fine Russell roses.

Election of Officers.

The election of officers resulted as follows: W. J. Keimel, Elmhurst, president; W. J. Heimbreeker, Springfield, vice-president; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, secretary; F. L. Washburn, Bloomington, treasurer.

President Pillsbury's Address.

It is with pleasure I greet you today, and to know that in these troublesome times there are so many who are willing to put aside individual business for a day or two and meet here for the good of the trade. I hope it will be profitable for each one. When I think of the work the state florists' association has done in the past, and the men who have put in their time and efforts in its behalf, I want to thank them, one and all, and when we look at these experimental greenhouses and see the work that is being done, I wish to thank them for getting under this thing and making it a reality. To the teachers and professors who conduct these experiments so carefully and so successfully and make them the help that they are, I desire to extend the thanks of this convention.

To our worthy secretary, we are greatly indebted, not only for his untiring efforts at all times, but for his benevolent work for the relief of a brother florist, A. D. King, of Mattoon, when the tornado demolished his greenhouses and his business.

When we remember the many fine displays of flowers at our meetings and the fall flower shows at Bloomington and Galesburg, which the association and its members handled so successfully, we realize that there has been set a high standard for our work. I do not know what the possibilities may be for the future. At this time it may be opportune to tell you something of our fall flower show at Galesburg. We—and by "we" I mean H. F. Drury and myself—we began in the spring by advertising chrysanthemum plants. We gave them to the school children, if they would call and get them at our stores. With each one was given printed instructions how to grow them. We gave away between 1,000 and 2,000 plants. It advertised our flower show and created considerable interest in it. It also was the means of starting some children to growing plants, but I am sorry to state that the plants grown by the children were not very creditable. Then we called on some of the merchants and they furnished the premiums, something from their stock worth about $1 or $2. We gave each contributor 10 tickets. We advertised the merchants by putting their premiums with their cards on display in our window. We advertised the flower show by giving out a lot of tickets to the influential ones. When we got our retail merchants' association and our mayor interested we sent invitations to the florists of the state to come to Galesburg to our flower show. They bought 250 tickets to pay the expense of the invitations. We decided to make a nominal charge of 10 cents for admission to meet the expenses, and then decided to donate to the Red Cross any amount that might be over. We advertised it well in our local papers and with cards, and we had a good crowd. We laid out spaces around the outside of the hall for the wholesale men and sold them at $10 each, and I think they all did some business. The center of the hall was arranged for flowers and the florists and wholesale men responded splendidly and sent in a fine lot of displays. We thank each one of them for it. The banquet at the Galesburg club was a very enjoyable occasion and attended by a good crowd. The expenses of the show were $475 and the receipts $501.20, leaving a balance of $26.14. We sold some of the flowers after the show for $12.60, making a total net amount of $38.74, which we paid to the Red Cross. We would have liked to have had a larger sum, but we are glad to report this.

One thing of special interest occurred. C. L. Washburn brought up the fuel question and wanted to know if it was necessary for florists to put a part of their space in vegetables in order to get coal, and as a result of the discussion that followed a committee, consisting of George Asmus, C. L. Washburn and August Poehlmann, was appointed by the president to interview the state fuel administrator in the name of the state florists' association, which they did, and I have Mr. Washburn's letter reporting the same:

"Chicago, November 22, 1917.

"I. L. Pillsbury, Pres.,

Illinois State Florists' Ass'n,
Galesburg, Ill.

The committee which you appointed, consisting of Messrs. Asmus, Poehlmann and myself, called on J. E. Williams, the state fuel administrator, day before yesterday and Mr. Williams very kindly gave us about an hour of his time. After discussing the matter thoroughly, he stated that it was beyond his control to promise fuel for greenhouses; also that nothing had as yet been received from Dr. Harry A. Garfield, United States fuel administrator, in regard to the question whether greenhouses would be put in the non-essential class or not. He advised that we take this matter up with Dr. Garfield in Washington at once. We decided that it would be best to have this done by the national society and telegraphed President R. C. Kerr of the Society of American Florists the facts in the situation which we had found out. Mr. Williams stated that this was a national question and not a state question. We have found out everything as far as possible regarding the coal situation in this state and trust that our action will be satisfactory to you."

C. L. WASHBURN.

George Asmus will make us a report today. You all know how a delegation of the national society afterwards called on the national fuel administrator and with some good results. But, as you all know, we are instructed to be economical of coal—to try to save 30 per cent.

If there ever was a time it is now, during these troublous times, that every florist in the state should join the state association and also the S. A. F. By so doing he will lend his help and influence for the good of all. All should help in the national publicity campaign, and should also advertise locally, and so help to put the florists' business in its proper place and dignity. The time when flowers were claimed as luxuries has gone past, and whether used to carry cheer and hope to the bedside of the sick, or for beautifying the wedding, or extending the sympathy of loving friends at the time of death, flowers have a particular mission, refining, elevating and educating our people.

And again at these times, it seems to be the duty of every florist to devote a part of his greenhouses and time to the growing of vegetable plants, including cabbage, tomatoes, peppers, eggplant, celery, etc., for spring sales, and so help in winning the war and in the great struggle to provide food for the people as much as any other industry.

At this time it is the duty of every American to co-operate with our government in every way possible, and not only to grow and supply the plants necessary for the gardens, but to lend a helping hand in the great garden movement which is spreading over the country.

In conclusion, I want to extend the congratulations of the society to every florist who has a son in the United States army, upholding and protecting this great country of ours. I also recommend that each one keep up his dues to our society, and work for new members. Also to make it a point to attend each meeting, and to take part in the discussion, and grow and market the best flowers possible. Help the publicity campaign, both nationally and locally, elevating our profession. Help the garden movement by raising more vegetable plants and so supply better gardens. Co-operate with the government in all ways possible; observe meatless, wheatless and porkless days and fuel saving, being as economical as possible of the precious coal.

Fellow workers, I thank you.

Secretary Ammann's Report.

Your secretary is pleased to report that in spite of the very trying conditions in our land, we have little reason to complain, for the flower business in our state has not suffered any more than those of many other lines, and it is with much satisfaction that we can safely say the florist has not been found wanting in helping to do his bit in this struggle for the "Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave."

One little act of this association the past year that will stand out above the many things it has done heretofore was the charitable act of helping a fellow craftsman in time of need, and while the contributions as a whole were not as large as we would like them to be, yet it has awakened a spirit that will, we hope, in future casualties of this kind bring much better results. I speak of the contributions to the fund raised for A. D. King, of Mattoon, whose range was wrecked by a cyclone on May 26, 1917, which report in full is attached hereto.

There have been no deaths of any of our members this year. Eleven annual members have been added to our list. Many are still in arrears for dues who will not respond to a notice.

The fall show and fellowship meeting at Galesburg was not so largely attended as usual, but the displays were good and the meeting a success. The receipts for the year were..$72.00
Disbursements 45.55

SUPPLEMENTARY REPORT.

Your secretary begs to report that after the tornado which swept through central Illinois May 26, 1917, had carried in its destruction the entire plant, consisting of 15 greenhouses, of A. D. King, of Mattoon, one of our worthy members, we felt it our duty to send out a call to all our members to help him in his misfortune. This was done by sending letters to our members, and by publications sent through the courtesy of the trade press. The call was intended only for members of the state florists' association. It was very gratifying, however, to find among the very first to respond some of our worthy members of the craft from distant states, as the published lists will show. This only proves the myth of the old saying that charity always begins at home, but this does prove "that he is my friend and brother who has mercy on me," no matter where he is located. Experimental Work in Floriculture.

Report of Professor P. A. Lehenbauer, Champaign, of work begun at the University of Illinois, September, 1917, read at the annual meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, Urbana, March 5-6, 1918.

Experiments are now under way in the selection of carnations and roses. Selection is the principal factor, both in the production of new races and in the improvement of varieties. The object of these experiments is not to produce something entirely new, such as a new variety, but it is an attempt to determine if, and to what degree, the plants now grown by the florist can be improved. Especial attention is given to, first, increased production, secondly improvement in quality, and thirdly to certain undesirable features such as susceptibility to disease, etc.

Plant breeding has been carried on principally by two methods. One method, the older, is known as mass selection. It is called mass selection because in this method a large number of individuals are selected. There is a continuous selection for certain characters, generation after generation. It is based upon the slow increase of small variations in a direction guided by the experimenter.

Another method is largely used at present. It is known as pedigree culture or pedigree selection. In this method one individual is selected, rather than many, and this single individual forms the basis of all future selections. Both methods are important.

In the present work with carnations and roses we are using, in a way, a combination of the two methods. We have begun by selecting a comparatively large number of individual plants and have selected primarily with one object in view. However, when one is selecting for one primary improvement, for example, increased yield, it is necessary at the same time to keep the product up to the standard. Other characters, or all important characters, must be studied and taken into account. In order to do this properly, the score card must be used. The score card should give accurately each and all important characters of the plant. By its use each character can be judged separately, and by adding up the results the rank of each plant can be noted in a comparative way.

We are keeping accurate and complete data of each individual plant. In the work with carnations we have been growing during the past year 1,692 plants. There are four varieties represented, as follows: A local seedling, 500 plants; White Perfection, 395 plants; White Enchantress, 396 plants; Rosette, 399 plants. Records are taken every morning (except Sunday) as the flowers are picked. The following points are noted: number of flowers, diameter of flower in inches, stem length, condition of flower.

Four varieties of roses are being used in the experiments, namely, Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia, Pink and White Killarney. Each variety is represented by 288 plants. The following records are made in the case of roses: Number of flowers per plant, stem length, condition of plant, diseases, etc.

We know, of course, that selection has produced favorable results; the history of plant culture is full of evidences. We must remember, however, that nearly all noticeable improvements based upon selection have been made by means of seed selection or of plants reproducing normally by seeds.

In this work we are dealing with plants which are propagated almost wholly by vegetative parts. Our method of selection also is one of selecting and propagating subsequently by vegetative parts. But little systematic work has been done in this field. We are therefore not yet in position to know what results can be accomplished, either in increasing quantity or in improving quality.

Data that were collected on the carnation plants since October 4, 1917, have been assembled, and show some interesting facts. A noticeable feature is the differences and variation in production of different plants. There also is a striking variation in quality. Some plants have a very high percentage of undesirable features; others have produced uniformly good flowers. A comparison of the several varieties also shows some noticeable differences.

The work has, of course, not progressed far enough for a presentation of the data or to draw definite conclusions. Cuttings have been made from selected plants and the work is to be continued next season.

A beginning has been made in the investigation of several other problems. Certain greenhouse troubles, primarily physiological diseases, are being studied, but thus far only preliminary observations have been made.

PLANT NOTES.

Iceland Poppies.

A beautiful cut flower for summer use not often grown is the Iceland poppy. While it is a perennial, yet it can be treated as an annual if the seed is sown early and the plants transplanted. Seeds sown in March will bloom the coming summer, and the varieties of color range through the yellow and orange to white. The petals have a peculiar satiny texture and are beautifully crumpled, and if the flowers are picked in the early morning they will stand in water for a long time, and are very decorative. There are few annuals that will attract more attention than a vase of these lovely poppies arranged with appropriate green, and besides they have a delicious fragrance. They are easily grown, and if the flowers are kept picked will continue to bloom all summer. Another poppy that can be grown for cut flowers is the Shirley poppy, but the flowers do not last as well as the Iceland poppies.

Seeds for March Sowing.

The middle of March is the proper time for the sowing of the main crop of summer annuals. The seedsmen have seen that the growers have the catalogues, and the lists of the wants for the year should be made out at once, if not already done, and the seeds procured and sown. How often have we seen good growers spending valuable time during the busy days of May and June hunting for some small stock that could have been easily grown, but was neglected at the proper time. It is a good time now to look back at the sales of the last year or two and note what lines of stock were in short supply or were carelessly omitted. Such matters as this are the little things that count in a successful business, for the time taken in hunting up and procuring the cheaper kinds of stock during the busy season more than eats up all the profit received in handling it. The seeds that should be sown now are almost endless in variety, and they include asters, Phlox Drummondii, zinnias, marigolds, balsams, antirrhinums, begonias, calendulas, celosias, cobaeas, cosmos, gauras, mignonette, nicotianas, nasturtiums, petunias, salpiglossis, ricinus, salvias, scabiosa, stocks, thunbergias, and others that may be demanded. With the exception of Cobaea scandens, mignonette and ricinus, which should be sown in pots, these can all be sown in flats and as soon as large enough transplanted to pots or spaced in flats, and good stock be had for summer bedding.

Lilacs for Easter.

A large variety of blooming plants can be grown for Easter, and dwarf, shapely lilacs are appreciated by all flower lovers, and the cut sprays have now become a standard winter flower. For the pot plants the imported budded stock is preferable, but for cut blooms any lilac may be lifted, and they force quickly and easily in a warm house. The varieties most grown for pot plants are Marie Lagraye, white, and Charles X, purple. Four weeks in a temperature of 65° will bring them into flower. The plants when placed in the greenhouse should be syringed several times a day in order to assist the buds to swell and kept in a dark place. As soon as the buds begin to open the plants can be placed in full sunlight. The common lilac can be forced in the same manner. A bush which is well set with flower buds, and these are easily distinguished from the leaf buds, can be lifted and planted in a bench and will furnish fine sprays of flowers. If the plant is kept shaded from the sun by spreading a heavy cloth over it the flowers of the purple varieties will be white when forced. The plants will require plenty of water, for they make but little root growth and bloom upon the vitality which has been stored.

Rambler Roses.

The plants of rambler roses that are intended for Easter blooming should now be showing color, and if they are not they will require quite a little forcing to have them in the best of condition for that date. If the plants are at all pot bound, watering with liquid manure will be of great assistance to them and stimulate the flowers and make them much larger and an addition of soot to this will intensify the color. The plants will often, when setting the buds, make long growths from the base of the plants; these should be cut out, for they are taking much strength that should go into the flowers. These canes should be made into cuttings and propagated and will make small plants for next year's growing or can be planted outside and grown on for stock for the future.

There is always a good demand for well grown pot ramblers for Memorial day and early June, and plants started now will be in the best of condition at that time. They can be started in a cool house and frequently syringed until the eyes break, when they can be moved into warmer quarters and full sunlight. For June decoration there is nothing better in blooming plants than Crimson Rambler and the other rambler roses and hydrangeas; they make a beautiful combination and are also very decorative for porches.

St. Louis.

FUNERAL WORK LEADS DEMAND.

Business during the past week has been very good in funeral work, which kept the stock cleaned up well. Social orders have been light, but sickroom flowers have a good call. The market was well supplied with stock of all kinds, with the possible exception of good grade roses. The fact that the stock moved almost daily prevented it from piling up. Russell and Ophelia were the leaders. Carnations have been coming in fine, but are sold at bargain prices in big lots. The same holds good of sweet peas, although the general average price is better this year than last. Violets move only at bargain figures. Bulbous stock of all kinds moves fairly well. Lilies have not been overplentiful, but are equal to the demand. The green market holds its own with a scarcity of Asparagus plumosus.

NOTES.

The florists' club will hold its next meeting March 14 at the wholesale house of H. G. Berning, 1402 Pine street. This meeting has been designated as "carnation show" meeting, and all growers of carnations in this vicinity are invited to display some of their stock, either of established or new varieties. The trustees have arranged to take care of any shipments that may be sent in their care for exhibition.

The Missouri Botanical Garden had arranged a special display to take place during the month of April during the S. A. F. convention. However, since the convention has been postponed, we are informed they intend to invite the florists' club to hold their April meeting at the garden.

From all indications, Easter lily plants among the local growers are not going to be any too plentiful. Other bulbous stock, however, will be in good supply. Azaleas and rhododendrons will also be scarce. Spiræas and deutzias will be sadly missed this year at church decorations.

Last week W. W. Ohlweiler, of Clayton, delivered a lecture before the meeting of the Webster Garden Club on the subject of "Home Gardens."

W. S. Wells, formerly in the employ of the Missouri Botanical Garden, has again joined the garden forces under Alex. Lurie, horticulturist.

POOR DEMAND AND PRICES SUFFER.

The market has had some very dull days during the past two weeks and prices of all flowers, except roses, have suffered. These still hold up well in price, ranging from $4 to $15 per 100, with a heavy demand for shorts. There are plenty of carnations, as the bright days have brought on the crop we have been looking for for some time. The best bring $3 per 100, while the inferior grades are hard to dispose of at $1.50. Bulb stock is very plentiful and can be bought at any price if a buyer can be found. Paper Whites are a glut on the market. Lilies are arriving in larger amounts and the stock is very fine, and indications are for a fine lot for Easter. Freesias, tulips, daffodils and calendulas are all very plentiful with few sales. American Beauties are selling in small amounts only. There is very little call for them, as the stores only handle them on special orders. Some very good snapdragons are to be had, which sell well. Very little lily of the valley and few orchids are used. Sweet peas still have a good demand, but indications are they will soon take a drop, as larger amounts are coming in daily. They have done well so far this season, and the growers must expect a decline in prices. Some growers of this crop had hard luck during the cold snap and their stock shows the results. Some very good plants of all kinds are seen in the shop windows and remind one that Easter is only a few weeks away.

NOTES.

The A. W. Smith Co. had the decorations for the Jenkins-Price wedding in Ben Avon, Pa. It was one of the largest and most elaborate weddings in Pittsburgh this winter.

John Demas, who conducts a flower store in the Oakland district, was the victim of a clever thief, but who fortunately did not get away with very much.

Two men entered the office of Wm. Loew, on Diamond street, with intent to steal. They were discovered before they were able to make a "haul."

The Hayman Greenhouse Co., of Clarksburg, W. Va., suffered a $1,300 loss in a fire at their range last week.

Jacob Gerwig, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., attended the bowling congress at Cincinnati.

A plate glass window in the front of Mrs. E. A. Williams' store was broken Saturday night.

Jas. Hill, who is now serving his country at Camp Lee, is connected with the signal corps.

McCallum Co. is receiving some very fine Spanish iris, the first on the market.

J. W. Glenn, of Kittanning, left for Harrisburg, Pa., on important business.

The Zieger Co. is cutting some fine Romans.

Homer Woods is on the sick list.

BUSINESS FAIRLY GOOD; SUPPLY HEAVY.

Business is fairly good, but the supply is so large that the average prices are down to a low point. The demand from out of town is heavy and many buyers have been here placing orders for Easter. The rose supply is still short and more could have been used during the past week were they available. Carnations are very plentiful and it is difficult to clean up all receipts, particularly during the middle of the week. Sweet peas are in a good supply. They are excellent, and have been selling well. Fine Easter lilies, callas and rubrums may be had. Paper White narcissus are still in an over-supply. Other bulbous offerings are fairly plentiful and include double and single tulips, Dutch hyacinths, jonquils, daffodils and freesias. Other offerings are lily of the valley, orchids, violets, calendulas, baby primroses and forget-me-nots.

NOTES.

O. J. Honaker, of Lexington, Ky., was in this city last week as captain of a bowling team that rolled at the A. B. C. at the Armory.

E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., was a visitor when he stopped over while on his way to Richmond after a protracted stay in the south.

E. G. Gillett has been having a big business in C. J. Ohmer's asparagus from the latter's place at West Palm Beach, Fla.

C. E. Critchell has been selling many baskets for Easter.

Visitors: M. Johnson, representing A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; Mr. Brown, representing the J. M. Gasser Co., Cleveland, O.; Carl F. Brehmer, Chillicothe, O.; Mrs. J. W. Frisch, Dayton, O., and Miss Fannie White, Lexington, Ky.

BRIGHT WEATHER HELPS TRADE.

Business during the past week or 10 days has been somewhat stimulated by bright weather and the sunshine has increased the crops of roses, carnations, daffodils and tulips. Carnations especially have improved and the price has dropped on account of the increase in numbers. Roses are also more moderate in price. Bulbous stock is crowding the market to overflowing. Tulips and lilies are being held back for Easter. Flowering plants of all kinds sell well at good figures.

NOTES.

Hugo Teute has 28,000 lilies which are making good headway for Easter. He is forcing heavily, using heat from oil stoves, and his bulbous stock will be on time.

J. H. West, Ironduquoit, suffered a loss of about $2,000 when a wind-storm blew over a chimney, wrecking two houses. There was no accident insurance.

The plants, bulbs and greenhouse accessories of Frank R. Bohnke, sold at auction in bankruptcy proceedings last week, were purchased by his mother.

David Scott, of Corfu, in sending in some excellent snapdragons, mignonette and calla lilies, which find quick sale.

Paul Thomann is again at work, after having been laid up since last fall with a broken ankle.

George M. Keller, of Brighton, is erecting two houses, each 20x75 feet.

CHESTER.

Omaha.

The local automobile show, one of the largest in the United States, stimulated the demand for flowers, many being used in decorations as well as choice bouquets placed in the vases of the handsome new electrics. One concern decorated its large showroom with flowers which was used as a dancing pavilion and presented each lady guest with a bouquet. Touching on this matter, one of the local trade said: "Flowers for funerals and sickness are our principal steady sources of revenue. Under present conditions, with heavy overhead expense, we must go out into new fields to increase our volume of business, rather than try to force a radical raise in prices, which would be out of the question at the present time. During the two weeks before the auto show we called on every automobile concern in the city, calling the attention to the appropriateness of flowers for decorations in the showrooms and as gifts to the lady visitors. As a result dozens of them placed orders. A little energy is all that is required to develop a new field."

Perhaps the youngest flower merchant in the world is Jack Stock, seven years old, of this city, who often starts in the morning with capital as limited as one cent and finishes the day with a net profit of $2 or $3. He buys his stock from the local florists, who refer to him as their "traveling salesman," his first purchase of the day often being one short stemmed carnation, the proceeds from the sale of this and subsequent sales being reinvested in more stock.

Local florists are rejoicing in the belief that winter is over, which means a reduction in coal bills for some months to come. The fuel situation here, as elsewhere, with an exceptionally severe season, made the burden a heavy one to carry, with coal hard to obtain at any price.

Boston.SATISFACTORY BUSINESS CONTINUES.

Another good week of good seasonable weather, and business has taken a decided brace. Wherever you go, you hear encouraging remarks. Cut stock holds up well, with an abundance of spring flowers shown everywhere. Violets were never so plentiful and sell as low as $4 a thousand and $10 for the best. Spanish iris and Roman anemones have started to arrive in good numbers. Carnations are on hand in large quantities, but are selling slowly. Jonquils, Poeticus, Murillo and Flamigo tulips are moving well. Orchids are good and selling satisfactorily. Gardenias are poor and go at $4 to $6 a dozen. Sweet peas are arriving in much better condition and selling at $1.50 and $2 a hundred. Pansies and English daisies are in great demand; also myosotis and marguerites.

NOTES.

Welch Bros. Co. reports very good progress and they feel that the low mark in business has passed, and the steady, upward climb of the past two weeks has proved beyond a doubt that business is better and will continue. Orders are arriving better than ever.

B. A. Snyder & Co. have had a very busy week, and the amount of orders and the way they are arriving is pleasing to say the least. The stock of cut flowers carried by this firm is large and of the choicest varieties.

H. M. Robinson & Co. are very busy. They have a large shipping trade and one of the largest stocks of florists' supplies in Boston. The factory is working evenings making artificial flowers for Memorial day.

Borowski Bros. are sending in some very good lilac and azalea plants. They have just finished with cyclamen, which have been very successful this year.

Penn. the Florist, continues to do good business and reports funeral work better than ever.

John Lynch, former salesman at the co-operative market, died February 27, after a long illness.

Dolansky & McDonald carry a large line of orchids from the Frank Dolansky greenhouses. S. K. G.

Columbus, O.SHORTAGE OF EASTER STOCK FEARED.

Though stocks are limited in variety, and there was almost absolute dependence upon home growing, leading florists enjoyed a very satisfactory February business. St. Valentine's day trade was surprisingly heavy, in view of the fact that no special effort was made to stimulate it. Roses are the scarcest feature of stock at present, and there is large substitution of carnations, which are now coming in good. Sweet peas are also quite abundant, and the same is true of jonquils. The first hyacinths have made their appearance within the past week. There is some little concern about the supply of Easter flowers, unless transportation conditions mend. With the announced withdrawal from flower growing of two of the largest local ranges during the year, florists are interested in making connections with individual growers in this territory for supplies in specified lines, to take the place of former sources.

NOTES.

The new Fairview Floral Company, located north of the city, made its first cuttings March 4. The range is modern in every respect. A feature is an elevated track leading from the powerhouse, a distance of 200 feet, to the Hocking Valley railway, for the switching of fuel direct to the bins. The latter are a separate part of the power building, and the coal is conveyed to the furnace by a surface car.

Arrangement of the plant provides for future units. Carnations, sweet peas and other flowers will be grown extensively for the wholesale trade, much of the output having been already contracted for by local retailers. O. C. Grice, for a number of years in charge of flower cultivation for the Livingston Seed Company, is manager and one of the owners.

"Leave It to Us" was the motto chosen at the recent annual meeting of the Columbus Market Gardeners' Association. As indicated by this slogan, the association proposes to do its full share this season in response to the wartime demand for increase in the production of foodstuffs. Otto N. Gall was elected president; Henry Hahn, vice-president; Henry Gall, second vice-president; Theodore Oltt, secretary, and Ernest Dick, treasurer. J.

Detroit.LENTEN BUSINESS VERY DULL.

The mid-Lenten season is bringing a severe cessation of all festivities that may incidentally call for the use of flowers, even in a limited way, and the almost total elimination of this feature of the business is being keenly felt by the retailers, who, however, are enjoying a good patronage in funeral work and flowers for the sick. Reports are heard, too, of a good call for ferns and spring flowering plants for homes where the severe winter made conditions for their use most unfavorable. Anticipation of a good Easter trade is held by all the florists, and they are making extensive preparations to care for it. Emerging from a winter of unusual length and severity, it is most natural that the people will seek flowers as the charming omens of spring and indulge their pleasure in their use more than heretofore. All the growers this season here are oversupplied with Dutch bulb stock, and it is only the almost total absence of azaleas, rhododendrons and spireas that encourages them to hope for the disposal of any considerable portion of it advantageously. A few of those who have late-planted lots are trying to hold back the blooming period of them till Mothers' day, and the continued cold weather we are having is aiding this plan considerably. Greenhouse men are still groaning under the heavy penalty imposed upon them by the coldest and most prolonged winter in their experience, and many of them will, after Easter, strike a trial balance and determine by the result whether or not they will face another season of operations under the abnormal conditions now prevailing. Easter lilies are causing much concern to most of the growers, who have had much trouble in maintaining sufficient heat to insure their blooming for the early Easter of this year; and it is certain that the prices demanded by the growers, at least, will be higher than ever before and this is only to partially, as they say, cover the extra cost of fuel required for their early maturity.

NOTES.

Harry Taylor, manager of Breitmeyer's Whitney building branch store, has enlisted in the army Signal corps and left for Fort Leavenworth, Kan., March 4. Harry is a very popular young man who has made many close friends during his few years' residence here, and all will regret to see him leave, but wish him success in his loyal participation in the war.

Robt. Watson, the veteran florist, had planned to spend most of the winter in Florida, but was taken with illness that prevented his going and is now with his sister, Mrs. Clark, on 16th street. Mr. Watson's only son, Hugh, was drafted into the National Army and is now at Camp Custer, Battle Creek, Mich. J. F. S.

Massachusetts Agri. College Show.

The annual flower show of the department of floriculture is to be staged March 14-15. Although in previous years a flower show has been staged in farmers' week, the department's big show has usually been in the fall. This year the lateness of the opening of the college made it necessary to postpone the usual fall show. The department is working on the programme and will have it ready in a few days. The students are all very enthusiastic and working hard. The fact that the show is coming in the spring means that it will be quite distinctive. While formerly chrysanthemums were featured, Dutch bulbs will be most prominent this year, and it is believed the attendance at the show will be as large as in previous years.

One of the big features is to be a complete set of wedding decorations. Wax figures have been furnished through the courtesy of McAuslan & Wakelin, of Holyoke, and A. T. Gallup, Inc., of Holyoke. The wedding canopy is to be of smilax and white carnations. Orchids, lily of the valley and maidenhair fern with a shower of ribbon and valley will make a most aristocratic bridal shower bouquet. Then there are to be maid of honor bouquets, bridesmaids' bouquets and flower girl's basket, all made up of the most exquisite roses, sweet peas, etc. A bride's dinner table and a bride's luncheon table will complete the wedding decorations. There will also be an exhibit of stationery and printed matter connected with the wedding details, furnished by the Samuel Ward Mfg. Co., of Boston.

As in previous years, there are to be a number of table decorations. Easter tables, St. Patrick's day tables and patriotic tables will be featured. There will be a varied display of bouquets and flower gifts, together with several special bouquets. Flower baskets, box and vase arrangements, accessories, and many other things will help in teaching the public to "Say It with Flowers." C. E. W.

Providence, R. I.

Weather conditions have been in the growers' favor during the past week, with warm days and plenty of sunshine, naturally welcome after the winter they have been through. While cut flower sales have been below the average, funeral work has made up the difference. There is little change as regards the stock coming into this market. Roses are not in good supply, although several of the growers are cutting fairly good crops. This scarcity has turned some buyers to other stocks and the call for roses is not as heavy as formerly. Carnations are abundant, the supply being greater than at any time this season, and while they sell well prices are low. The violet situation is unchanged. Prices and quantity about the same as earlier reported. Daffodils are still in heavy supply, and the same can be said of Paper Whites. Tulips are coming better and sell well. Darwins have made their appearance, but the supply is short. Freesias and hyacinths sell freely, and the same is true of sweet peas, which are of excellent quality. Greens of all kinds are scarce, many of the stores experiencing difficulty to get enough to meet requirements. H. A. T.

The Late Mrs. Lillian D. Brightsworth.

Mrs. Lillian D. Brightsworth, owner of the Syracuse Pottery Co., Syracuse, N. Y., died at Fort Myer, Fla., February 12, at the age of 51 years. The deceased had been a resident of Syracuse for many years and was well known among the trade, being highly respected as a successful business woman.

AN experienced Florida grower does not expect very favorable results from the government's castor bean growing plans in that state, considering the soil unsuitable.

Alaska's Territorial Flower.

By an act of the territorial legislature, the forget-me-not, emblematic of the quality of constancy, the dominant trait of the intrepid pioneers who in spite of the almost insurmountable obstacles and insufferable hardships opened Alaska for development, is declared to be the territory's floral emblem.

Cyclone Damage in Kansas.

A cyclone, which visited the vicinity of Iola, Kan., February 27 and destroyed barns and industrial plants, caused but little damage to glass, the greatest being 250 square feet and thirteen hotbed sash at one establishment, while the Palmer range escaped with a loss of twelve lights. The weather remained warm and there was no frost damage. G. F. O.

Record of Goods in Transit.

The Jos. Heacock Co., Philadelphia, Pa., has found the parcels post service most efficient for the handling and delivery of cut flowers. Packages going as far as 600 miles, have in nearly every instance, including the holiday season, been delivered on first class train schedule.

In order to keep track of the efficiency of this service, they enclose the following record with many of the orders: The date and hour of day, indicating just when the package was delivered in the railroad postoffice is filled out. The balance of the record is to be filled in by the customer, who then mails the entire sheet to them in the addressed and stamped envelope provided. Should there be any serious delays or damage to packages during transit, the record gives the necessary details on which to make complaint and place responsibility. The postal authorities are very glad to have, or avail themselves of this data, when it is necessary to look up errors or delayed deliveries. The complete form is shown below.

Income Tax Reports.

This timely and important subject will be thoroughly analyzed and explained at the next meeting of the New York and New Jersey Association of Plant Growers, which will be held in room 110, Breslin hotel, Broadway and 29th street, New York, March 11, at 4 P. M. sharp. Wm. H. Siebrecht, Jr., who as the florists' attorney has made an extensive study of the income tax laws, will give an instructive talk on how the law affects you and how to fill out your report. All members of the trade are cordially invited to attend. A. L. MILLER, Pres.

Society of American Florists.

TO PUBLISHERS OF CATALOGUES.

Provision has been made in the equipment of the society's offices at 1170 Broadway, New York, for the filing of catalogues of firms and persons engaged in the production and sale of plants and plant stock, seeds, bulbs, greenhouse supplies and accessories, and goods used by florists in all branches of the trade. All issuing catalogues are invited to file copies with the secretary, that access may be had to them at any time by all who may wish to avail themselves of this service.

PUBLICITY COMMITTEES' MEETING.

At the request of Chairman Henry Penn, of the publicity committee, concurred in by Chairman George Asmus, of the publicity finance committee, President Totty has ordered that a meeting of the joint committees be called for Saturday, March 16, to be held at the offices of the society, 1170 Broadway, New York, at 2 P. M.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

National Association of Gardeners.

CONFERENCE IN NEW YORK.

A gardeners' conference, under the auspices of the National Association of Gardeners, will be held at the Murray Hill hotel, Park avenue and 41st street, New York, Friday afternoon, March 15, at two o'clock. A number of speakers, prominent in the horticultural activities throughout the country, will address the meeting on subjects pertaining to the gardening profession, and there will be a general discussion of the association's policy in relation to its co-operative endeavor with the gardeners' local societies and clubs; also, of its proposed campaign to establish the profession of gardening in the public eye on the same high plane as other sciences. All interested in the progress of professional gardening are invited to attend the conference.

President Robert Weeks has called a meeting of the trustees and board of directors for Friday morning, March 15, at eleven o'clock at the Murray Hill hotel, New York.

M. C. EBEL, Sec'y.

New York State Fair Flower Section.

At a meeting of the New York state fair commission held recently the date of the fair was set for September 9-14, 1918. Professor D. Lumsden, of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University, Ithaca, was again appointed superintendent of the department of flowers. Several new classes have been added to the premium list, prominent among these being premiums for collections of roses in the professional and amateur classes. Additional premiums are offered for gladiolus, and the sections containing premiums for pot plants and miscellaneous flowers have been materially increased. A novel feature will be the premiums offered for a collection of cut flowers. It will be gratifying to the florists of New York state to learn that liberal increases in the appropriation for the department of flowers have been made by the Honorable C. S. Wilson, commissioner of agriculture, who is an ardent worker for both the agricultural and horticultural interests of the state.

New York Spring Flower Show.

The final schedule of the New York spring flower show to be held in the Grand Central Palace, March 14-21, under the auspices of the Horticultural Society of New York, the New York Florists' Club and the American Rose Society, has been issued and copies of same may be obtained upon application to John Young, secretary, 1170 Broadway, New York. There are numerous classes for both commercial and private growers, with liberal awards in each.

SUPPLY AHEAD OF DEMAND.

With a week of continuous mild weather, both by day and at night, all indoor crops were hastened, and the quality of stock which reached the wholesale houses was ahead of the demand. Spring stock, such as sweet peas, violets, forget-me-nots, calendulas and bulbous stock, are in demand, and the most of the A1 grades are moved; it was the inferior grades which were bargained off. The supply of roses is now adequate, and while not heavy, all orders can easily be taken care of. The crop, which is showing the effects of unfavorable growing conditions since the New Year, are the carnations; the heavy snows in January, which kept the houses dark for a long period, the irregular temperatures and for which nobody can be blamed this season, affected the buds and growth, with the consequence that while the daily receipts are heavy, the percentage of good, stiff-stemmed, not-splits is comparatively small. The supply of green goods is about equal to the demand.

NOTES.

James Livingstone, gardener for Fred Vogel, Jr., and treasurer of the florists' club, has been asked by his friends and neighbors in Shorewood to give lectures on the practical work of home gardening. Mr. Livingstone has made many friends by his free advice on horticulture, a subject in which he is very thoroughly versed. We congratulate the Shorewood Civic Society on their selection.

Mrs. Ida Baumgarten has the sympathy of the local craft in the loss of her mother, Mrs. Waigli, widow of the late Captain Waigli, who died February 24 at the age of 83 years. The funeral was held February 27 at 11 A. M. from 628 Frederick avenue. The family comprises Mrs. Baumgarten, four daughters and one son.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. reports a nice lot of blooming plants coming along for the Easter trade. Bright weather for some time to come is a necessity to get their lilies in.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. is cutting some very fine orchids daily. Their roses, too, are coming along in good shape.

At J. M. Fox & Sons' they put in their leisure time getting baskets and fancy pots ready for the Easter trade.

Alexander Klokner, of Wauwatosa, is consigning some fine double pink stocks to Gust Rusch & Co.

Philips Brothers, 938 Broad street, made up a number of attractive features for St. Valentine's day. They advise us that their business was twice as good as on the corresponding date of last year.

At the new store of the Rosery Floral Co., 167 Market street, we recently found good business in funeral work and counter trade. They report good sales on St. Valentine's day.

Joseph McDonough, 376 Belleville avenue, stated that his St. Valentine's day business was good and that they have had a busy season.

Henry Brenninger, 519 Springfield avenue, in addition to his retail florist business is building up quite a trade in seeds.

Charles Luthy, 363 Springfield avenue, keeps a good store and is a constant buyer in the New York market.

A. Begerow, 946 Broad street, had good St. Valentine's day features and good business.

BUSINESS SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

Business has picked up considerably the past week, no doubt the better weather conditions helping out the counter sales, and with a large amount of funeral work, all seem fairly busy. Roses are still scarce, American Beauties and Russells being absentees on this market, and while other varieties are not plentiful, the high prices at which they are held limits the demand. Carnations are now in fine shape and some of the newer varieties show splendid size and stems, although the demand for the poorer grades is not brisk enough to move them at fair prices. Violets have shortened in crop, but bulbous stock is still fairly plentiful.

NOTES.

The retail florists' club held its monthly meeting February 18. A letter was received from the president of the Canadian Horticultural Association asking for two speakers for the convention to be held in August at Ottawa.

The most important feature of the evening was the appointing of a committee for a national decoration day similar to Memorial day in the United States. There could never be a more opportune time than the present to create interest for a day of this kind. March 17 will receive co-operative advertising from the members.

R. Jennings, of Brampton, has had the misfortune to be flooded from the back water of the creek on his place. The water went over the benches and put out the boiler fires for 36 hours. Ice formed on top of the water, and when the flood receded, this helped to keep the plants from freezing until the fires were again started, and although considerable damage was done, between $10,000 and $12,000. Mr. Jennings thinks that considerable of the stock will pull through.

J. H. Dunlop is cutting good blooms of his new red rose, Mrs. Henry Winnett. The blooms surpass anything coming in to this market, and will fill a long felt want. His pink seedling, No. 6, is also proving a good rose. The color much resembles that of a good Russell, only that it has heavier foliage and is more free.

The gardeners' and florists' club will hold its annual spring show in St. George's hall, March 12, when substantial prizes will be offered. Roses, carnations, violets, bulbous stock and groups will form the principal exhibits.

A. S. Jennings & Co., Fred Adams, manager, have stock in good shape. Primula obconica giganteum, as here grown, will make fine Easter plants. The buds are all showing on the lilies and he should have plenty of stock.

Carl Grobba will have a fine lot of cyclamens for Easter. These are now in 10-inch pans and will be well flowered. Lilies will be fairly well in, while his other stock all looks promising.

C. Tidy & Son find things fairly active. They are showing some Buddleia asiatica and azaleas which are well grown.

F. Duffort is bringing in good cinerarias, which find ready sale.

TRADE SHOWS SIGNS OF IMPROVEMENT.

Stock of all kinds is in heavy supply and is obtainable in large quantities at very low prices. Business has been unusually quiet the past week when there was practically nothing stirring but the demand is beginning to show some signs of improvement at this writing. There are plenty of roses to go around, but the receipts are small and a few brisk days would probably find a shortage in this line. Some particularly fine Mrs. Chas. Russell and Milady are included in the shipments, which are moving quickly, considering the general market conditions. American Beauty roses are none too plentiful and continue to clean up completely right along. Carnations are in heavy supply and are being sold at low prices in large lots. Sweet peas are arriving in exceptionally large quantities, but are moving at greatly reduced prices. Orchids, gardenias, and lily of the valley are seen in good supply at several of the houses. Violets, snapdragons, freesias, tulips, jonquils, wallflowers, stevia, calendulas, daisies, pansies, mignonette, forget-me-nots, irises, anemones, bouvardias, lilies, callas, candytuft and all other miscellaneous seasonable stock is to be had in quantity and affords the retailer a great variety to select from. The retail stores are all taking advantage of the present market conditions by making large window displays of all the offerings, including blooming plants of every description. Business was fairly good with the retailers Saturday, March 2, with a heavy demand for violets and sweet peas.

NOTES.

Joseph E. Wiltgen and Michael F. Freres, who have been conducting a wholesale business at 173 North Wabash avenue for over a year, closed their store this week. Mr. Wiltgen is in the next draft and will be called to the colors in the near future, which was the principal reason that caused the proprietors to decide to discontinue business. Mr. Freres has accepted a position with Zech & Mann, entering upon his duties March 4. Both of the young men are popular with the trade here, and it is with pleasure that the writer is able to announce that they closed their doors with a clean slate and have the best wishes of their many friends in their new undertakings.

William Graham has resigned his position as manager of the Fleischman Floral Co., to represent the A. L. Randall Co. in the east, with headquarters at Philadelphia, Pa. Mrs. Graham and her daughter, who is recovering from an operation for appendicitis at St. Luke's hospital, will join him as soon as her health permits her to make the trip.

Edward Mallison's many friends are pleased to learn that he is the new manager at the Fleischman Floral Co.'s store and wish him every success in his new position. He was with Chas. A. Samuelson previous to the time he joined the Fleischman force, and he has a record that any young man might well be proud of.

M. Penn has resigned his position with the Alpha Floral Co. and leaves this week to join his family at Boston, Mass. He is open for engagement in the East.

A. Lange, son of R. C. Lange, 3339 North Whipple street, who is in Class I of the draft, expects to be called to the colors in the near future.

Corporal Robert Brenton, formerly with Kennicott Bros. Co., who is with the United States regulars at Houston, Tex., is home on a furlough.

TO THE FLORISTS OF AMERICA:

When we decided to force bulb stock for the Chicago Market we began looking around for a Commission Florist to handle our output.

We selected Zech & Mann, of Chicago, as our selling agents BECAUSE

We wanted a house whose reputation for service and choice quality in other flowers entitled them to handle our Money-Worth Quality bulbous stock.

Twin boys arrived at the home of Mrs. Elsie B. Boehm, daughter of E. F. Winterson, this week, which accounts for the big smile that grandpa is wearing. E. F. Winterson, Jr., is as happy as his dad. It is now "Uncle Ed."

John B. Davis, of Sturgeon Bay, Wis., was here this week buying stock for his spring trade. He is building up a nice business in his vicinity and has practically all of Door county to draw from.

Peter Reinberg will have 5,000 pot lilies ready for Easter, judging from the present condition of the plants, and many orders for same have already been booked.

The Wholesale Cut Flower Association held a special meeting at the Hotel Sherman, February 28, at 6 o'clock, when a committee consisting of Frank Johnson, August Pohlmann and N. J. Wietor was appointed to represent the trade before the chairman of Division 19 in conjunction with the flotation of the next Liberty loan and other patriotic work that may present itself in the future, such as raising funds for Red Cross work, recreation camps, etc. Every industrial line will be mobilized and it is now up to all members of the trade to support this committee when asked to do so.

Peter Hoefelder, of Kennicott Bros. Co., has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his father, whose death occurred this week. A whole cabload of flowers were sent to the funeral from his many friends in the wholesale market.

Vaughan's Seed Store reports good demand for gladiolus bulbs to plant outdoors for cut blooms, some growers evidently expecting a repetition of last season's good prices for the flowers.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. evidently expect that green carnations will be bought as heavily as ever next St. Patrick's day, for their supply of dye on hand is sufficient to meet any demand.

C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, is planning a business trip to Columbus, O., where his son, E. B. Washburn, who is with the colors, is now stationed.

O. A. & L. A. Tonner have every reason to feel proud of the choice tulips they are offering, which compare favorably with the market's best in the line.

The Guardian Angel Florist, located on Devon avenue, lost four greenhouses, which collapsed during the heavy snowstorm last week.

The John Kruchten Co. is showing large quantities of carnations, among which the variety Aviator seems to be the predominating number.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are supplying their trade with fancy pussy willows in addition to a most complete line of all seasonable cut flowers.

Wietor Bros. report an exceedingly brisk demand for rooted carnation cuttings this season with a heavy call for Matchless and Alice.

For Your Supply of CUT FLOWERS

 Remember when ordering that our line is so complete that it includes every item offered in the Great Chicago Market.

The florists' club will meet at the Bismarck hotel, 175 West Randolph street, Thursday evening, March 7, at 8 o'clock. O. J. Friedman has charge of the social feature to follow immediately after the business meeting, so come prepared for a big surprise. T. E. Waters will show all those present how to make white carnations green with home-made dyes.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. will have a fine lot of plants to offer for Easter, including a splendid supply of lilies and rambler roses. This firm is now cutting a large supply of fancy cattleyas and phalenopsis which are to be seen featured in quantity in the leading loop establishments.

A. E. Turner, of Rosin & Turner, Mosinee, Wis., called on the trade here this week. His firm had wonderful success in storing Wisconsin ferns this season, which are fully equal to the best now being received from the east.

J. J. West, of Minneapolis, Minn., passed through here this week on his way to Detroit, Mich., and the Ohio pottery district to select spring goods for the Powers Mercantile Company, which firm he is identified with.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is strong on all kinds of seasonable stock, particularly carnations and bulbous flowers. Fancy long-stemmed roses are in good supply here.

J. A. Budlong's headliners this week are quality sweet peas and gardenias.

Erne & Co. are headquarters for fancy string smilax.

BEST FEBRUARY IN YEARS.

February business was far better than corresponding periods in previous years, the most notable feature being the heavy demand for pot plants. During the past week bulbous stock came in very heavy with the quality very good. Carnations are also plentiful and much lower in price, while roses, on the other hand, are scarce and high. Snapdragons, sweet peas and lilies are quantity stocks.

NOTES.

W. J. Barnes is cutting heavily on carnations, tulips and bulbous stock, all of which is readily disposed of. There is a brisk demand for funeral work and hospital orders.

Wm. L. Rock Flower Co. reports roses coming better. They are also cutting very fine sweet peas and carnations. February business was unusually heavy.

The Alpha Floral Co. had a record month of funeral work. This firm has planted a large quantity of sweet peas upon which they will depend the coming season.

Funeral work has been unusually heavy at A. Newell's. Pot plants are becoming more popular every month, as shown by his sales record.

H. Kusik & Co. are showing a fine stock of roses, carnations, sweet peas and bulbous stock. Shipping trade is showing a good gain.

T. J. Noll & Co. report stock plentiful, but the demand keeps it well cleaned up daily. Supplies move well.

Miss Lou E. Boggess reports a record breaking February, with an equally good outlook for the present month.

Ed. Humfeld reports good business in general. His lilies will be on time for Easter. E. J. B.

DEMAND IS NORMAL FOR SEASON.

The market has been fairly steady the past week, with the sales and supply about breaking even. The greatest supply has been in bulbous stock, but none of these flowers have gone to waste. The demand was about normal for this season, and with the exception of a few large weddings the latter part of the week, there was nothing of especial importance in the call for flowers. There is a fine crop of rubrum and Easter lilies available, also plenty of carnations and roses, but the market cleans up nicely each day. There is a large supply of Spencer sweet peas on the market, and these are bringing good returns. The quality is excellent. Some handsome orchid-shaded freesias were noted last week. In the line of pot plants, some fine cinerarias are seen; also, a few extra large azaleas. What these lack in quantity they seem to be making up in quality.

NOTES.

A recent business transaction of much interest to the trade was the sale of Markey Bros.' greenhouses and store to the New Haven Floral Co., who, in turn, sold the store to Henry F. Freese. Markey Bros. have been in business in this city for over 30 years, and their passing will be greatly felt by all the florists of this city. Their greenhouses, which are situated west of the city, will be ably conducted by the New Haven Floral Co. Mr. Freese will spend most of his time at the store, but will still retain his position of secretary-treasurer of the New Haven Floral Co. The store will be known as the Freese Floral Co. Miss Margaret Sturm of New Haven, Ind., and Mrs. Clara Shoaff, formerly with Markey Bros., will assist at the store. Immediately after the Easter holidays the remodeling and entire redecoration of the establishment will take place.

A large wedding last week called for decorations at both the church and house, which were carried out by the Flick Floral Co., who also made the handsome bouquets for the four ladies of the bridal party. At the church southern smilax was used with excellent effect on the railings and covering the entire front wall of the church and also the stairways leading to the balcony. Tall white wicker vases were filled with rubrum and Easter lilies and Shawyer roses.

Edgar Wenninghoff is showing some fine cineraria and hyacinth plants. The Lenten season seems to have had little effect upon the demand at this store. Mr. Wenninghoff has been confined to his home for a few days on account of sickness.

DEMAND NOT FAR BELOW NORMAL.

Business has been very quiet the past week. There are various other descriptions, some of them pronounced with more or less gusto, but the above is the fact without the persiflage. Notwithstanding all that is said about the poor business conditions, the consumption of flowers is not so far below the average. Some stores claim to be doing very well, or at least much better than they expected. Quite a few of the growers are far from despairing, and feel sure they will more than break even. The market the past week has been full of everything seasonable, except roses, which are now below the demand. All crops appear to be off. Some growers say they will now be scarce for a couple of weeks. This will help the sweet peas, carnations and bulbous stocks, all of which are now very plentiful. Orchids and gardenias are ahead of the demand and prices rule low. Plenty of good snapdragons are also available. Of calendulas there is far too much low-grade stock—two-thirds the quantity, but higher grade, would pay the growers better. Easter lilies and callas are seen in quantity in all the stocks and prices hold very well. Iris tingitana is a good seller. With normal business, this would almost class along with cattleyas. It is a magnificent flower, with its long, erect stem and beautiful shades of blue. The first larkspur was seen this week, also the first arbutus, this latter from Tennessee. It arrived in fine condition. Very choice sprays of Acacia pubescens are now offered. As a cut flower it is in a class by itself.

CLUB MEETING.

The feature of the March meeting of the florists' club was the delightful lecture on his trip to the Hawaiian islands by J. Otto Thilow. As a lecturer, Mr. Thilow is quite the equal of many of the famous professionals, and having as well, technical knowledge of the wonderful flora and fruits that were seen growing there, the members of the club and their ladies who honored him with the largest attendance the club has ever had were given a delightful journey through this remarkable land of flowers. The colored slides were wonderfully fine, being made from photos taken by Mr. Thilow. He was loudly applauded at the close and given a rising vote of thanks by his appreciative audience.

EASTER PROSPECTS.

All the plantmen are busy with their Easter stocks. Lilies, it is said, will be scarce. Quite a number of growers, on account of the high price and difficulty in getting coal, and the uncertain outlook, skipped lilies for this season. Crops that are coming on are reported in some places to have quite a large percentage of bulbs that are diseased or are not going to make the early date. There will not be any spiræas, which plant has always been a strong factor. There is nothing but left-over azaleas, which stock, however, what there is of it, looks fine, being very well set with buds. Hydrangeas appear to be in good shape, as do ramblers and hybrid roses. There will also be plenty of bulb stock. Perhaps the most important matter in connection with the Easter trade is transportation. Express shipments, while slightly improved, are far from being satisfactory. Everything possible is being done to help in this respect. Orders are coming in about as usual, so there will be plenty of business, if it is possible to obtain delivery.

WITH THE WHOLESALESAERS.

"Lots of business; as much as we can handle," is the good word at H. Bayersdorfer & Co.'s. All the outside men are meeting with great success. Express conditions are reported a trifle improved.

Fred. W. Cowperthwaite has taken a position as assistant manager with the MacNiff Horticultural Co., New York, and has sent in his resignation as secretary of the florists' club.

The Leo Niessen Co. reports a rather dull week, but they moved a lot of stock. Sweet peas, carnations and bulbous stock were quantity items. Acacia pubescens is a feature.

Eugene Bernheimer reports a little harder hustle for the past week. Roses are now going shy. Carnations and sweet peas are seen in quantity.

Berger Bros. report business slow. Easter lilies, sweet peas and carnations were the best sellers. Very good callas are handled in quantity.

Jos. G. Neidinger reports a good demand for plant baskets for Easter. His waxed flower design business is constantly increasing.

High grade sweet peas, Ophelia roses and carnations in quantity were headliners with Edward Reid. Business is said to be quiet.

Paul Berkowitz, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., returned March 4 from a western trip with a book full of orders. He found most of the trade optimistic, but many had suffered considerable loss from the shortage of coal during the severe winter weather.

Carl Cortis, of the Jos. Heacock Co., says roses will be a bit shy for the next couple of weeks, or until the new crops come in. K.

GOOD EASTER DEMAND ANTICIPATED.

The effects of the Lenten season are being felt in this city and funeral work is about all that can be depended upon to use up the stock of flowers, of which there are all of the bulbous varieties in profusion with a very limited sale. All are preparing for a big Easter demand, however, and a good trade is anticipated. Lilies in some of the ranges are looking well, and from now on will require considerable care to bring them in just right. Roses, with the exception of American Beauty, are equal to all demands, and good Ophelia, Shawyer, Russell and Sunburst are to be found in all of the stores. From now on there will be busy times getting everything in readiness for the big day.

TRADE QUIET AND PRICES DECLINE.

The wholesale market has been quiet during the past week. Tea roses continue to bring good prices, but in carnations, violets, bulbous and other minor stocks the tendency of prices is downward. The fine weather has given the street merchants a good chance to do business, and they are out, literally in droves, particularly on 42d street, between Fifth avenue and Times Square. They buy violets for $2 per 1000 and stand good chances of making a profit. They also sell sweet peas and other flowers that they can buy cheap and conveniently carry. Unquestionably, they hurt the business of some of the retail stores, but it is useless to moralize over it. The market is full of stock, and as the street men will take big chances, they move a lot of it that would otherwise be lost. The retail stores are now interested in the Easter lily crop. We do not believe that there will be any surplus of lilies for Easter. In some ranges the stock seems backward and not all of it will be in for Easter, but with so many pot roses and other substitutes, lilies do not loom as large as formerly.

March 4.—The weather continues clear and heavy shipments of stock are arriving. American Beauty roses have recovered a little, due more to a lighter supply than to increased demand. In tea roses prices are wavering with a downward tendency. Easter lilies move fairly well, but lily of the valley is short and cheap. The outlook is for low prices until Easter business livens up the market.

NOTES.

When this letter goes to press the flower show at the Grand Central Palace will be only one week ahead—March 14. A meeting of the joint committee of the Horticultural Society of New York, the New York Florists' Club and the American Rose Society was held March 2. All concerned are enthusiastic over the outlook for the best spring flower show ever held. The Red Cross, which at the three last shows, has conducted attractive floral tea gardens, will be allotted much larger space at the approaching show. The last three shows netted the Red Cross over $27,000. In previous years it has been the practice to charge $1 or more admission to the tea garden, which many people have considered undemocratic. We are informed that no admission fee will be charged this year. There will be a Red Cross garden theatre, and we assume that a nominal admission fee will be charged there. During the show it is planned to start a "Send a Sick Soldier Flowers" movement for the cheering up of sick soldiers in cantonment hospitals in this country. More than $15,000 is offered in cash and plate as prizes for exhibitors in the various classes.

The eleventh annual entertainment and ball of the Greek-American Florists' Association, held at the Terrace Garden, 58th street, near Lexington avenue, on the night of February 27, was, like the previous efforts of this association, a most enjoyable and successful affair. A force of decorators, under the direction of George Hanges, vice-president of the association and chairman of the decoration committee, had transformed the hall into a bower of beauty, many natural flowers and garlands being used. Noteworthy was a fine display of American flags. In the entertainment, which preceded the grand march and dance, the acrobatic feats, the comic songs and dances and other features were most entertaining and amusing. These features took up the early hours of the evening and the dancing continued till 4 A. M., February 28. A company large enough to fill the hall to "standing room only" attended. Peter Theopine, manager of the Boulevard Floral Co., Broadway and 86th street, is president of the association. The committee of arrangements were: Spiros D. Sakas, chairman; George Hanges, Chris. Pappas, P. Manzoros and D. Anargyros.

On February 28 Young & Nugent, 42 West 28th street, hired a boy, about 16 years old, who gave his name as Jack Miller and his address as 110 First street. He claimed he had worked in the Equitable Flower Shop, a downtown store. As he was a well-appearing lad, and they were busy, they failed to look up his references at once, and sent him out to deliver a large corsage bouquet of orchids, a box of flowers for a funeral, and a box of flowers for Roosevelt hospital, the whole being valued at $25. He never arrived at his various destinations nor returned to the store. Florists in New York and vicinity are warned to look out for him, should he make application for work and detain him if possible till they notify Young & Nugent.

George Burnett, the Chambers street seedsman, also well known in the wholesale cut flower district, has two sons in the army. William J. is now with the American forces in France, and his father recently received an interesting letter from him. He speaks highly of the kindness of the French people and mentions the children who go about the camp and talk. He adds: "I believe the boys will learn more French from the kids than any other way." Walter Brownwell, manager of the Burnett Brothers' store, has recently received a letter from the other son, Robert M., who is at Camp McClellan, Anniston, Ala. He writes interestingly of their training and says they are all anxious to "see the kaiser."
